Out of Prison The Revenge Starts by Adam Davis Chapter 1

Chapter 1 Return

In Sherland, a city in the country named Vericano,

In Zerino Prison.

The most terrifying criminals in the world were imprisoned here. Each of them had done great crimes.

There was the prime minister with great power, the richest man in a country, the fallen war god, the skillful hacker, the genius doctor, the Heaven Master who raised ghosts, and the cultivator who failed an Ascension...

But today, the prison, which was originally noisy and lively, seemed extraordinarily quiet. Those terrifying criminals who made the world tremble came to the square one by one under the burning sunlight and watched a young man leave.

The man was named Leones Bloom.

He had been in prison for five years. Today was the day he gained freedom.

He would also be the first person to be released from the prison since it was built.

“Leones, the medical skills I taught you can only be used to kill people, not save them, remember that?”

“Leones, you promised me to take care of my daughter. You can even marry her if you want.”

“Let the dagger I gave you take a blood shower every day. You should take good care of it. After I get out of prison, I will ask you for it.”

“After you go out, you must do some shocking crimes, or you will shame us. It’s been five years. We didn’t train a waste, did we?”

All the prisoners chattered, giving Leones a final warning and asking him to do something shocking after he got out of prison. After all, they had trained Leones for three years.

“Okay, let that little bastard go. I’m already tired of him.”

Suddenly, in the corner of the square, a dejected old man who held a liquor bottle in his hand spoke coldly while raising his head and taking a sip of the liquor.

“Leones, when you get out of this prison, we will have no relationship with each other. Whether you do good or evil, that is your own business. But remember one thing.”

“If you are caught and sent here again, we will kill you and throw you out to feed the wolves.”

As soon as the old man spoke, all the prisoners around shut their mouths.

Only Leones smiled and said to the old man, “Don’t worry, Mr. Landon. I won’t come back again.” The old man, Ashton Landon, sat leaning against the wall and drank alone without saying anything else.

For these people who were sentenced to life imprisonment, the greatest reward for them was that Leones would never come back again.

Then Leones faced the rest of the crowd, took a step back, and bowed respectfully to everyone.

“Goodbye, my Masters.”

As soon as he said that, there was dead silence on the scene.

Even Ashton, who was sitting in the corner, couldn’t help feeling sad. His hand shook, and the wine spilled all over the floor.

Chapter 1 Return

Everyone looked at Leones in disbelief, because this was the first time he called them Master in five years.

In the face of these vicious criminals, Leones was afraid, hated, and even tried to resist them, but he had never called them master.

But now, in Leones' heart, there was only gratitude.

In any case, it was these people who taught him so many things and made him reborn.

He would have died tragically in prison in the past five years without their mercy just as his stepmother wished.

Leones was originally a righteous and grateful man. When he was leaving, he still regarded the one hundred and eight people there as his masters.

"I have to go."

Leones waved his hand, picked up the simple luggage, and left the prison without looking back. Looking at Leones' back, Ashton took another sip of wine, looked up to the sky, and said with a smile. "Go and be the wind that can't be caught. You will leave here and go back to the world. Nobody can restrain you anymore."

The long night was coming, but there would always be fire with Leones.

Outside the prison.

A black MPV was parked.

When Leones came out, the car door opened, and six or seven men in suits and leather shoes got out one after another.

"Mr. Bloom."

“Mrs. Ashley Bloom asked us to take you home.”

The men bowed to Leones one after another, opened the back door, and invited him to get in the car.

“Mr. Bloom...” Leones murmured and repeated the name. It had been a long time since someone called him that last time.

Leones used to be the son of the Bloom family, born with a silver spoon and living a carefree life.

However, the wealthy family was ruthless.

He lost his mother when he was young. Nobody else cared about him. As his father married a new wife and built a new family, Leones, the eldest son, became dispensable.

After he became an adult, he was forced to get involved in the competition of the family heir.

In the end, he was sent to prison by his stepmother for a crime he had never done and was locked

Five years was enough for a powerless boy to die tragically in prison a hundred times.
Originally, Leones had already accepted his fate and even tried to commit suicide on the first night after being imprisoned. He was unwilling to be humiliated.

However, there was always a way out.

Those villains in the prison who made the outside world fearful did not attack Leones. In stead, after some discussion, they decided to teach what they had learned all their lives to Leones.

It was not that they were kind people, but that it was very difficult for them to get out since they were imprisoned in this prison.

They just didn't want their skills to be lost here.

Originally, they wanted to find a jailer to be their student, but the guards here had to be transferred every six months. After all, the work pressure here was too high, and nobody could stay for too long.

Coincidentally, at this time, Leones was sent there.

To these prisoners, Leones was just a boy who knew nothing and would only be imprisoned for five years. He was the best choice to be their student, and they believed that the student would learn everything and become stronger than them.

Medicine, martial arts, cheating in gambling, machinery, economy, war...

From then on, Leones, who was supposed to go to university, received inhuman special training from those prisoners in the prison.

In past five years, Leones had been completely reborn. He was no longer the carefree boy he used to be but a student of evil trained by many vicious criminals.

"Mr. Bloom, please get in the car."

The man's voice in front of Leones interrupted his brief thoughts.

"Okay."

Leones picked up his luggage and was about to get in the car.

Whir!

Suddenly, there was a sound of something flying.

It was coming to Leones very quickly.

Leones waved his hand subconsciously.

Then he caught a huge pebble.

“Who is it?”

The people sent to pick up Leones also became nervous all of a sudden and quickly dispersed to take precautions.

Leones followed the direction in which the stone came and turned his head to look.

Not far away, there was an off-road vehicle parked with two slender figures standing in front of the vehicle.

One of them, who failed to hit Leones with the stone, took her gun and rushed toward Leones.

“Leones! Your murderer! Why are you still alive? Bastard, you must die!”
