Chapter 4 Everything Has Changed

Then, Leones, Darius, and Gloria started the car and left.

The bald man and his group had just recovered from the shock just now.

“Boss, why do we let them go?”

The followers helped the baldy up, hesitating whether to continue chasing the car.

“Let them go. Can you defeat that guy if we don’t?”

The baldy covered his swollen cheek and was terrified.

This was the first time he was beaten so miserably.

What was worse, that guy even had the Dragon’s Order.

“Go! We have to go back quickly.”

The baldy realized the seriousness of the problem.

He must tell Blackdrake about the Dragon’s Order as soon as possible.

The reappearance of the Dragon’s Order would definitely change the whole situation of the entire underworld.

“Hero, you are so awesome!”

In the car.

Darius held the steering wheel with one hand and gave Leones a thumbs-up with the other.

Leones defeated Blackdrake’s subordinate with one punch. He was so strong.

Darius respected Leones very much though they just met each other for the first time.

“Mr. Bloom, thank you very much for helping us.” Gloria was also very grateful.

If they hadn’t been lucky enough to meet Leones, they would have lost both the money and the thing.

Faced with the thanks of the two, Leones didn’t even speak.

But Leones was curious about something.

“What exactly do they want?”

Gloria took out a wooden carving from her backpack.

“A week ago, I saw this wooden carving at an auction and wanted to buy it as a birthday gift for my grandfather. But I haven’t won Blackdrake, the lord of the underworld.”

“But a few days ago, Blackdrake suddenly contacted me again, saying that he was willing to sell it to me at the original price, and we must come to his place to trade.”

“I didn’t dare to come alone, so I invited Mr. Timon to come with me together. But I never expected that I would still be tricked by Blackdrake.”

Darius slapped the steering wheel angrily and said, “Blackdrake doesn’t even respect the law. If I had known this, I would have brought some bodyguards from my family. And he wouldn’t have dared to do that in the city.”

Leones glanced at the wooden carving and found that although it was indeed a treasure, it seemed that someone had cast a spell on it to hide a mystery.

“This wooden carving is evil. You’d better not keep it, or it will harm others or yourself.” Leones kindly reminded.

What?

Evil?

When the two heard it, they couldn’t believe it.

“It was introduced at the auction that the wooden carving would bring people good luck,” Gloria explained with a smile.

Seeing that they didn’t believe it, Leones stopped talking.

Leones’ silence made the two think that Leones was joking just now. Although Leones was good at fighting, he might not understand so many things like carvings.

But they didn’t know that one of Leones’ masters in prison was an expert in antiques and carvings. The master was sentenced to life imprisonment for stealing the treasures in the emperor’s tomb and selling them.

From him, Leones learned how to judge antiques and carvings.

Leones could see the weirdness of this wooden carving at a glance.

“Anyway, thank you so much, Mr. Bloom,” Gloria said with a smile, “I just don’t know how to pay you back.”

“You don’t have to thank me.”

Leones didn't intend to help at first. It was those people who asked him to get out of the car.

"But my help is not free," Leones said calmly, "I helped you twice just now, and you have to pay me more."

"Well..." Suddenly, there was silence in the car.

Darius and Gloria looked at each other and didn't expect Leones to be so straightforward.

"Haha! You are a straightforward man." Darius smiled.

"Well, Mr. Bloom, you are you want?"

right. We should pay you back." Gloria then asked, "How much money

Money, for both of them, was not a problem.

Leones thought about it. He was new here and penniless. So he told them a number casually.

"I want two million dollars."

Without hesitation, Gloria took out a card from her bag.

"There is one million dollars in this card. I will give you the rest the next time we meet."

Leones had extraordinary fighting skills and was mysterious, so Gloria became very curious about him and wanted to take this opportunity to get to know him.

And the one million dollars in the bank card was originally prepared for fear that Blackdrake would ask for more money.

However, Blackdrake had played a trick, so Gloria used the money to reward Leones.

Of course, she did not pay in one lump sum because she wanted to make a chance to meet Leones again next time.

Soon, Darius drove to the villa area of Dragon Manor in Sherland.

“Hero, do you live here?” Darius stopped the car.

Leones looked out the window and at the familiar villa.

Five years had passed, and everything had changed.

Once upon a time, this was indeed his home.

But now, it was no longer.

Looking at Leones’ back, Gloria suddenly remembered a piece of news. “Ah! I remember it!”

As she said that, Gloria quickly took out her mobile phone and found a piece of news in the morning.

Leones, the eldest son of the Bloom family in Sherland, was released from prison today.

The Bloom family states that he has been expelled and no longer has any relationship with the family.

“It turns out that he is... the eldest son of the Bloom family who has just been released from prison.” Gloria came back to her senses.

At this time, in a luxurious villa of Dragon Manor.

A graceful and luxurious middle-aged woman was watching a piece of news with great interest.

News from our station! A vehicle that fell off a cliff was found near Mountain Armario.

“Lenny and his men did a good job.” Ashley nodded in satisfaction. “I must reward them generously when they come back.”

This person was Ashley, the new wife of Leones’ father.

“Hey, my elder brother is so lucky. He doesn’t die in that kind of place for five years. But this time, I’m afraid he won’t be so lucky again.”

On the side, a teenager was playing with his mobile phone with his head down, but he had a satisfied smile on his face because no one could compete with him for the status and property of the Bloom family anymore.

This person was Leones’ half-brother, Timothy Bloom.

But at this moment, the TV screen turned to focus on the tragic situation inside the car.

The reporter continued to broadcast. There were seven dead people in the car, all of whom were killed.

“What?” Ashley rushed forward, staring at the pictures of the deceased. “How can this be?”

Those familiar faces, as well as the miserable death, shocked her.

She never expected that the people who died were all her thugs.

“Uncle Lenny and his men are all dead!” Timothy also dropped his phone in shock. “What about Leones?”

Boom!

At this time, the door of the villa was kicked open.

A gust of wind swept over.

Outside the door, a group of servants couldn't stop Leones, so they could only persuade him, "Mr. Bloom, calm down. If you want something, let's talk about it when your father comes back..."

Leones?

Hearing the name, both Ashley and Timothy turned their heads in shock and couldn't believe it. Seeing Leones standing at the door of the villa so suddenly, they couldn't help shivering. "It's you!" Ashley's eyes widened in horror. "You're still alive!"
