

Chapter 0080

I am actually nervous going up to the top floor. It's like being invited to the inner circle. We arrive at the top floor and the elevator opens to a small sitting room. We step out and directly across from us is a gorgeous fireplace that is surrounded by floor to ceiling bookshelves. Two oversized armchairs sit facing the fireplace. It is so inviting, I want to just plop down and get lost in a book. The room is bright white with dark wood beams across the ceiling and a dark wood floor covered in a very comfy looking area rug. It's such a contrast to the lower floors, which are more neutral. The walls and furniture are pure white, the floor is darkwood to match the beams. Little accents of forest greens and navy blue are around the room, but subtly done. I am totally blown away with just the entry, I have totally forgotten why we are here.

"I thought you might like the sitting room." Luna Ava gave a small laugh as she placed her hand on my shoulder. "If you ever need an escape, my library downstairs is the same, you can always come over." She gives my shoulder a squeeze before letting go and walking ahead of us.

The sitting room is separated from a small living room and kitchen to the left of the little sitting area, by a short white cabinet that houses books on the sitting room side and closed storage on the other. A large white L shaped couch faced another fireplace that has a large framed abstract picture over the mantle. Just beyond that a small kitchen filled the end of the long rectangular room. The clean white theme extended here too. White cabinets with a light gray countertop, with an island in the center matching the rest of the kitchen.

“The bathroom is just through there,” she points to the right where you can see a massive King sized bed with fluffy white comforter that makes it look like a cloud that I would really like to lay on. Just beyond that double doors open to the bathroom. I will grab you both some clothes and put some snacks out. I’m sure you could use an energy boost after putting those boys in their places.” She laughs as she points us through the open concept area.

“Oh sh*t! I think this bathroom is as big as my whole room at home!” Sierra laughs as we walk in and just starts stripping in front of me.

“What are you doing?!” I all but shout at her turning around.

“What? We have the same parts and the Luna and I have both seen your scars. Stop being shy, this will go faster and there are four shower heads in this shower fit for 20. We can both shower on either side and get done more quickly, I am hungry and I want to hang out by that fireplace. When are we ever going to be in the alpha suite again?” She lifts an eyebrow at me as she steps to the far side of the shower.

“Fine. This is really weird though.”

“You forget I use the stalls for obvious reasons. This communal thing is weird.” I say stepping to the other side, keeping my back to her and showering faster than I ever have before. This is really uncomfortable, even with Sierra.

“You won’t think it’s weird when it’s you and your mates.” She giggles. 5

“What? I have barely seen a guy naked, being around Warrior Nickolas today was awkward enough. I am not even thinking about any of that right now. And what do you mean ‘mates’?”

She just steps around me and heads out of the bathroom, towel tied around her body, pretending
