

Chapter 1924 Is Clyde The Stalker

As soon as Clyde left, Janet texted Brandon about Clyde's visit and her growing suspicion after noticing that he had the same camera as the stalker a few days prior.

However, when she checked the photos, she found nothing unusual in them.

It was true that she had come across Clyde a few times in the past, but she had never seen him since she came back after disappearing. Was Clyde the one who hired someone to secretly take pictures of her?

Janet didn't think it necessary for Clyde to do so. She was familiar with him, and the two of them would work together on some occasions. If he wanted to see her, he could simply come to the studio with an excuse of work.

After reading Janet's message, Brandon promptly ran a background check on Clyde and the mother and daughter, and checked their recent whereabouts. However, he found nothing unusual.

The mother was indeed Clyde's cousin, and they seemed to be really close. Also, Clyde was busy preparing for a photography exhibition and barely stayed in Barnes these days.

Moreover, the day Brandon and Janet noticed the stalker, Clyde wasn't in town.

Receiving these updates, Janet was relieved. However, it was short-lived as it meant the stalker could still be around, watching and snapping photos of her in secret. Until that person was caught, she wouldn't feel completely rest assured.

Just then, Janet received a text message from Clyde's cousin, saying her daughter liked the dresses Tasha had designed and ordered new sets of dresses.

Like the last time, Clyde's cousin would come to the studio with her daughter and do a photo shoot of the dresses she had purchased with Clyde as the photographer. Janet didn't object despite her initial suspicion because it was good promotion for the studio and a great boost to Tasha's confidence as a designer.

One day, the girl came to the studio with her mother again. As soon as they took the dress and left, Lexi entered Janet's office.

Watching Lexi enter her office and lock the door stealthily, Janet shook her head and chuckled. "There's no need for that, Lexi. It's only the two of us here."

But Lexi looked serious. Walking over to Janet's desk, she said in a low voice, "Just now, I caught a glimpse of the pictures Clyde was deleting on his camera. I didn't see them clearly, but I was sure they weren't photos of his niece because the person in those photos was an adult in a white shirt."

Finishing her words, Lexi looked at Janet's attire: high rise trousers and a white shirt.

Janet's expression hardened. The information brought back the memory of that uncaught stalker.

Lexi thought Janet's hardened expression meant she didn't believe her, so she added, "I swear, Janet. I saw it with my own eyes when I accidentally glanced at his camera screen. He saved all the shots he took today except those photos."

Patting Lexi on the shoulder, Janet smiled and said, "I believe you, but we can't confront Clyde unless we have solid evidence."

Lexi nodded in understanding and said, "Clyde is clever. He delete the photos where the CCTV camera couldn't capture his camera screen."

With that, Janet checked the CCTV videos and found Lexi's words were accurate.

Though subtle, Clyde strategically positioned himself within blind spots of the CCTV cameras. He could be seen fiddling with his camera many times, but the camera screen and buttons weren't captured in the CCTV.
