Married At First Sight Chapter 3575 – Serenity followed Sonny and Titus to their room, watched them climb into bed, and tucked them in with a quilt. She turned on a small light, switched off the main one, and said, “Sleep well. Don’t get up to play, and don’t stay up talking all night. If I hear you talking, we’ll cancel tomorrow’s trip to the children’s park.”

Though the boys were only three or four years old, they chatted like adults when together, able to talk about anything for hours.

Serenity thought that when these two grew up, their sharp tongues would fool many.

Sonny and Titus exchanged glances and replied in unison, “We’ll go to sleep and won’t talk.”

They liked chatting, but going out to play tomorrow sounded better.

Serenity leaned in and kissed them goodnight, whispering, “Good night, have sweet dreams.”

She gently touched her nephew’s head.

Instead of leaving right away, Serenity sat outside the room until the boys were fast asleep, then she returned to her own room.

She found new WhatsApp messages on her phone, including two from Zachary.

One was a photo of Zachary at his desk with his computer on, showing that he was indeed on a business trip and busy with work.

The second message read: “Wife, I miss you. I’ll come back to pick you and Sonny up when I’m done.”

Serenity stared at the photo for a long time before replying: “Go to bed early and don’t overwork yourself. I’m going to sleep too. Your son kept kicking me just now, as if protesting and telling me to rest.”

Zachary quickly replied, telling her to go to bed immediately, followed by a hug emoji.

Serenity lay on her side in bed, feeling uncomfortable lying on her back because of her growing belly.

She didn’t reply to Zachary again, worried he would keep messaging and make it hard for her to sleep.

She wondered when Audrey and the others would head to Jensburg. Lilian had said it would be in the next two days.

Lilian was in Wiltspoon, assessing Grandpa Jimenez's health before heading to Jensburg.

Serenity silently prayed that everyone she cared about would be safe and unharmed.

Soon, she fell asleep.

In her dream, she saw her parents with two strangers. Her subconscious told her the strangers were her grandparents, the former heads of the Farrell family.

She longed to embrace her mother, but despite her mother's gentle smile and voice, she couldn't reach her. Her parents seemed to be speaking to her, but she couldn't hear them, and they couldn't hear her.

After what felt like a long time, her parents followed her grandparents away.

Serenity chased them, but just as she was about to catch up, her father turned and said, "Seren, don't follow us. You can't come where we're going. Go back."

He then pushed her away.

Serenity suddenly woke up.

It was still dark, though it was already five in the morning.

In winter, five in the morning was still pitch black, unlike summer when it was light by half past five.

Serenity stared at the ceiling, replaying the dream in her mind. She closed her eyes again, silently pleading, "Dad, Mom, I want to see you again. Please come into my dreams again."
