

Married At First Sight Chapter 3587 -3590

Married At First Sight Chapter 3587 – The old lady wears jewelry when she feels like it and doesn't when she doesn't. She has her own collection, and her mother-in-law has given her many pieces. She's not lacking in jewelry. She especially loves jade and has many precious jade pieces in her collection.

After marrying off three daughters-in-law, she gave some jewelry to them. When her nine granddaughters-in-law married into the family, she also gave them some. She kept a few pieces aside, hoping to one day pass them on to a great-granddaughter.

If she ever has a great-granddaughter, all the jewelry she saved will go to her as part of her dowry.

Yes, she's a very happy old lady.

"Mom, look who's here," Tania said cheerfully.

The old lady pretended to be upset and said, "If your husband doesn't give me back my ID card, it doesn't matter who's here. I won't be happy. I'm old and my son controls me. I can't do anything freely. Tonight, I'll climb up and scold my son."

Bianca was speechless.

She wanted to laugh, but could she?

Join our Telegram and WhatsApp for quick updates

She had heard the old lady sigh from the doorway and had naturally overheard the conversation between mother-in-law and daughter-in-law.

Grandma York was truly a lively character—playful like a child, yet also the most open-minded and considerate person.

With her leading the York family, there was no need to worry, even if the sky were falling.

She raised her children and grandchildren well. The daughters-in-law and granddaughters-in-law she brought into the family were all of excellent character.

God had blessed the York family, but it was also the virtue of their ancestors that brought harmony to the family.

Good men are born in the York family, and good women marry into it, thanks to their strong values.

The old lady is truly remarkable.

Bianca thought that although she had never met Grandma York before, Grandma York had chosen her. “Auntie, I want to laugh so badly, I can’t hold it in.”

Tania smiled, “Go ahead and laugh. Don’t hold back. Your Grandma York is just like that.”

Bianca giggled, “Grandma York is wonderful.”

She’s much better than her own grandmother. Her grandmother was strict and full of rules. She did favor her granddaughters a little, saying that girls belong to other families when they grow up and can only be free before marriage.

So, they weren’t very strict with them.

But they were very strict with their mother.

She should really introduce her grandmother to Grandma York. Maybe Grandma York could pass on her optimism, cheerfulness, and openness.

Hearing Bianca’s voice, the old lady turned her head. When she saw Bianca, she was very happy. She sat up from the sofa and waved to her, “Bianca, you’re here! Come and talk to Grandma. I’m bored to death and want to go out for some fresh air. Your uncle still hasn’t returned my ID card.”

Bianca walked over, smiling, and said, “Grandma York, it’s almost the New Year. Don’t go running around, or your grandchildren won’t find you when they come back.”

When her grandmother got old, she didn’t like to travel far; she preferred staying home and managing her daughter-in-law.

Bianca felt that her mother, in front of her grandmother, was like a concubine in front of the empress dowager—respectful and afraid of being scolded.

It wasn’t that their family’s ways were bad; her grandmother was just too serious.

She was nothing like Grandma York.

Bianca sat down next to the old lady.

The old lady asked if she had eaten breakfast.

“Yes, I had breakfast at the buffet restaurant on the first floor of your hotel. It was delicious, and I never get tired of it.”

There was so much delicious food that, even with a big appetite, Bianca couldn't try everything in one day.

Married At First Sight Chapter 3588

Married At First Sight Chapter 3588 – Bianca wasn't planning to stay in Wiltspoon for long. She originally intended to check out and leave today, but when Camryn called and invited her to hang out, she decided to extend her stay by two more days.

Her company was very busy, and her sisters were frustrated that she had been away so much recently.

The old lady understood the real reason Bianca left, so she didn't pressure her to return, but Bianca knew she couldn't stay much longer. There was a lot of work waiting for her.

The old lady smiled and said, "If the food is good, eat more and stay a few extra days."

"Grandma York, I'm busy with work. I only took time off to visit because my master was here. Now that my master has gone back, I have to return to work."

The old lady took her hand and said, "I'll call your family and tell them to let you stay in Wiltspoon a few more days. How does that sound?"

Bianca replied, "Grandma York, I'll visit again during the New Year holiday. I really can't stay any longer now. Today, Camryn kept insisting I come and spend time with her."

It felt like Grandma York knew who Bianca really was.

Join our Telegram and WhatsApp for quick updates

Bianca thought back to her behavior at Wildridge Manor, making sure she hadn't accidentally revealed her true identity. Only the master had mentioned that her family also runs a company.

"Alright, young people are busy. It's a deal then—you'll visit during the New Year holiday. I'll have New Year gifts and a big red envelope ready for you."

"Thank you, Grandma York." Bianca smiled and thanked her.

"You came to see Camryn, so you should go over to her place. She should be up by now."

When the old lady heard that Camryn had invited Bianca and noticed Bianca said Camryn was persistent, she guessed that Camryn was helping someone, but she didn't say anything.

She was curious to see when her clueless grandson, Evan, would realize that Bianca was actually Abby and Fox.

Bianca could disguise herself and always put on a new face, but the old lady could easily recognize her, no matter how well she hid. Still, she chose not to reveal anything, letting Bianca continue her act. The old lady thought to herself that when the time came for Evan to chase after Bianca, crying, she would laugh at him.

“Okay, I’ll say goodbye to you first, and then I’ll head over to Camryn’s.”

Bianca remained seated, not in a rush to leave. After chatting with the old lady for a while, she quietly asked, “Grandma York, Evan isn’t home, right?”

“I don’t know. They go wherever they want; they won’t tell me unless it’s New Year or another holiday. Then they’ll definitely come back to keep this old lady company.”

The old lady actually knew but didn’t say anything. She didn’t even ask Bianca why she was asking about Evan.

She just wasn’t curious.

After a moment, Bianca said, “Grandma York, I’ll go see Camryn now.”

The old lady responded kindly, “Go ahead.”

She didn’t follow along.

After Bianca left, the old lady called her friends down the mountain and asked, “Is everyone there?”

After getting a reply, the old lady put down the phone, got up, and left.

If she couldn’t go to Jensburg, she’d go play cards.

She’d only come back if her son called her back. Otherwise, she might lose all the cash she had on her.

Her friends often found themselves losing their cash to her. The old lady was lucky and often won.

Married At First Sight Chapter 3589 – When Bianca reached the door of the small courtyard, she saw Camryn coming out.

“Bianca!” Camryn greeted her with a smile. “I heard you arrived a while ago but hadn’t seen you. I figured you must have gone to your aunt’s place, so I was just about to look for you.”

Bianca replied, “Grandma York is home, so I stopped by to greet her. We chatted for a bit before I came here.”

She then walked up, linked arms with Camryn, and asked, “Is Evan home?”

“Why? Are you looking for him?” Camryn asked, puzzled.

“No, he always gives me dirty looks when Grandma York isn’t around. I don’t want to bump into him and have him assume I’m following Grandma’s orders. Who cares about him? I have plenty of fellow apprentices to choose from, and they wouldn’t dare refuse me.”

Camryn’s expression darkened. “Evan behaves like that? You’re an honored guest in our family, yet he says one thing to my face and another behind my back. All Grandma asked was for him to see you off a few times, and he’s already overthinking things.”

“Exactly. Who cares about him? Bianca, you’re young, beautiful, and admired by everyone. Wherever you go, flowers bloom. There’s no need to worry about marriage, right? You’re just not ready yet.”

Join our Telegram and WhatsApp for quick updates

Camryn echoed Bianca’s frustrations and criticized Evan.

Meanwhile, Evan, who was hiding near a window, overheard everything. He thought to himself, “So Camryn has wanted to scold me for a while now?”

He pondered how he might have upset Camryn. Fortunately, the courtyards in each villa weren’t large, so he could hear their conversation clearly.

Bianca seemed as calm as ever. Though she dressed simply, she wasn’t short on money. If Camryn hadn’t known that Bianca was one of Senior Silver Fox’s apprentices, she might’ve mistaken her for someone from the countryside.

“Camryn, are your in-laws home? If they are, I should go in and greet them first.”

“No, they’re out. I was bored being home alone, so I invited you over to hang out.”

Camryn led Bianca into the courtyard.

Bianca casually glanced around but didn’t see Evan’s car parked nearby. His usual car wasn’t in the open-air parking lot either. Of course, he could’ve used another vehicle.

Among the nine young York masters, all but the youngest—who wasn’t old enough to drive—had several cars each, almost like a car show in their garage.

It's said men love cars, and the York brothers embody this perfectly.

The York family also has plenty of parking spaces.

Bianca's rental car was in the open-air lot, but she couldn't be sure if Evan was home.

Remembering what Grandma York had said about the young men rarely returning to the villa except on holidays, she guessed Evan probably wasn't home.

Bianca felt relieved.

As long as Evan wasn't around, no one would notice if she made any slip-ups.

The two women entered the house and sat down. Camryn asked a servant to bring Bianca a glass of warm water.

"Why didn't you go to the flower shop today?" Bianca asked.

Married At First Sight Chapter 3590 – "I want to take a break," Camryn said. "The doctor advised me not to overwork because my health is a bit weaker than others. I need to take care of myself, avoid overexertion, and not stay up late. I don't usually feel tired at the flower shop, but my sister often comes by and causes trouble, which is really annoying. Callum told me to rest at home since there are people taking care of the shop. When I'm not there, my sister just stops by, looks around, and then leaves."

Bianca replied, "You're too soft-hearted. If it were me, I'd make sure she never came back. Just because she bullied you in the past doesn't mean you should worry about sisterhood."

Camryn responded, "I don't care about sisterhood either. She just likes to show off, and I ignore her. I don't need to force her away. As long as I'm happy, it drives her crazy. She used to look down on me, but now I'm in control. She can only be angry."

Camryn had married the man Carrie wanted. Everything Carrie once had was now in Camryn's hands, which was the best revenge.

As long as Carrie didn't act out, Camryn wouldn't either. As the second lady of the York family, she still maintained some self-discipline.

Bianca said, "Next time she bothers you, let me know. I'll scare her in the middle of the night."

Camryn joked, "Are you going to dress up as a ghost? Carrie is terrified of ghosts."

Bianca's idea was to scare Carrie enough to make her stop, not by pretending to be a ghost. But she could easily do it with her disguise skills. She was just worried Carrie might be too scared, which could cause real trouble. Bianca preferred appearing as a woman in red.

Join our Telegram and WhatsApp for quick updates

“I’m just kidding,” Camryn said. “You don’t need to dress up as a ghost. When I was blind, Carrie couldn’t get the better of me. Now that I can see and run the Newman family, she’s powerless. I’ve known her for over 20 years and know exactly how to make her angry. I don’t even need Callum to step in.”

Callum rarely got involved in their conflicts.

“Well, you have a husband to back you up,” Bianca teased, a hint of envy in her voice.

Just then, a servant walked in with two kites. “Second Young Madam, you mentioned it was windy today and that you’d like to fly a kite, so the Second Young Master bought these and had them sent over.”

Camryn, feeling embarrassed, explained to Bianca, “This morning, I casually mentioned that it was windy and that kites would fly high today, so Callum sent these over.”

“There are plenty of kites at home—Rowan and Sonny have several—there’s no need to buy more.”

Bianca smiled and said, “You just mentioned it casually, but the Second Young Master took it seriously and sent them right away. He’s so attentive that people can’t help but feel envious.”

Camryn blushed at Bianca’s teasing. She took the kites from the servant, who added, “The Second Young Master knew you invited Miss Bianca over today, so he bought two kites so you’d have a companion to play with.”