

Married At First Sight

Chapter 3593

Married At First Sight Chapter 3593 – Bianca didn't suspect that Camryn was lying to her. After all, Camryn was just her sister-in-law, and her brother-in-law wasn't a child anymore. How could a sister-in-law possibly keep track of her brother-in-law's movements at all times?

Evan might not return until the middle of the night, so it was understandable that Camryn didn't know his whereabouts.

"I came back very late last night, so I didn't go out today and stayed home to rest," Evan said as he descended the stairs, walking straight toward them.

"Miss Bianca," Evan nodded politely to her.

Bianca nodded in response to his greeting.

Evan's gaze shifted back to Camryn. "Sister-in-law, are you going to fly a kite?"

"Yes, I casually mentioned it this morning, and your brother sent me two kites. While there's still some wind, Bianca and I are going out to fly them. Evan, there's food in the kitchen. If you're hungry, help yourself. It should still be warm."

After speaking, Camryn took Bianca's hand and led her out.

Evan followed them naturally.

Bianca turned her head and asked him, "Fourth Young Master York, are you going to fly a kite with us?"

Evan replied, "It's stuffy inside, and it's windy outside. Let's go out and get some fresh air. Why? Is my joining you going to affect your kite flying, Miss Bianca?"

Bianca quickly said, "No, not at all. Fourth Young Master York, this is your home. You're free to go wherever you like."

Evan said nothing more.

The two women chatted about cosmetics, skincare, and other topics women often enjoy, occasionally touching on business matters. When it came to business, Camryn did most of the talking while Bianca listened, only offering her input occasionally.

Evan followed them silently, and Bianca made sure not to express too many opinions, cautious that Evan might become more suspicious of her.

When they arrived at the large lawn, they found several children of the household staff already flying kites there. Camryn wasn't the only one who had the idea to fly kites on a windy day.

Seeing that Camryn, the second young lady of the house, was also flying a kite, the children eagerly ran over to admire her and Bianca's kites, complimenting their beauty.

The old lady and her friends were still playing cards, occasionally glancing at the activity on the lawn. Though they couldn't see clearly, they knew a group of children was flying kites.

Evan simply watched.

Camryn, who rarely flew kites, struggled at first, failing several times.

Meanwhile, Bianca's kite took off effortlessly.

Noticing Camryn's struggles, Bianca smiled and handed her own kite string to Camryn, then helped her get her kite airborne.

With Bianca's help, Camryn's kite soared high.

There were many kites in the sky, and soon, two children's kites became entangled. The children, anxious, tugged at the strings, causing one kite to break and fall to the ground, while the other became lodged in a tree.

The children rushed over to the tree, with some attempting to climb it.

"Be careful, the tree is high. You don't want to fall," Bianca cautioned them. "Let me help you get it down."

Camryn added, "Please be careful."

"Don't worry, I have experience. This has happened to me before," Bianca reassured her. She handed Camryn the kite string and began to climb the tree.

Those who practice martial arts are different—Bianca scaled the tree like a monkey, reaching the kite in just a few moves.

Evan watched her closely.

Married At First Sight Chapter 3594 – After retrieving the kite from the tree, Bianca slid down to a lower branch and, seeing that she wasn't far from the ground, jumped down gracefully.

The way she jumped reminded Evan of a fox leaping down from the wall of his private villa.

Evan frowned, pursing his lips.

Even so, he couldn't conclude that Bianca and the mysterious figure were the same person. If he had jumped from a tree, he would have done it in a similar way. Still, it was enough to arouse his suspicions.

“Sister, you're amazing!” a few children cheered, clapping their hands in admiration.

Bianca smiled brightly. She handed the kite back to the child and said with a grin, “Sister is an expert at climbing trees.”

Growing up in the deep mountains with her master, surrounded by forests, Bianca and her siblings had all climbed trees as children. After all, there were mountains and trees everywhere. Climbing often enough makes you a master.

Even Dr. Carden climbed trees as swiftly as a monkey.

Evan looked at Bianca, noticing her bright smile, and suddenly found her very attractive.

She was naturally beautiful, but she usually dressed plainly. If she dressed up, she would be stunning, impossible to look away from.

She had an aura of mystery, like a fox, that intrigued him. Perhaps he could really pursue her.

Bianca might not be the fox, but it was possible that the fox was someone he knew.

After all, the five masters all had apprentices. Except for the genius doctor, who had only one apprentice, the others had several, with Silver Fox having the most.

Bianca met Evan's inquisitive gaze and her smile faded slightly. She casually retrieved the kite string from Camryn and walked away with the children, acting as their leader.

Was Evan really suspicious of her?

Had she revealed any flaws?

Camryn had just been discussing business with her, and Bianca had refrained from sharing too much, afraid that Evan might guess her true identity.

But as for being Fox, Bianca was confident that she wouldn't be suspected.

When Evan had investigated Fox's identity, he had tried many times without success. He didn't even know her real name.

Oh, he knew her real name, but he never expected that she and Fox were the same person.

His grandmother liked her and had even given him her photo, urging him to pursue her as a wife. He did court her, and she had begun to feel something for him, but then he pulled back, saying that after months of getting to know her, he still couldn't fall in love.

At least he had been honest, not keeping her on the hook and dragging things out.

Abby still respected Evan for that. He didn't like Abby.

Bianca didn't necessarily like him either, as he only seemed to have eyes for Fox.

Even though it was all about him, Bianca found the situation a bit amusing and couldn't help but wonder if she should feel jealous—jealous of herself?

If Evan ever found out, she would simply admit it.
