

Married At First Sight Chapter 3624

Married At First Sight Chapter 3624 – After the call, Mr. Dunn quickly returned to his residence.

Fortunately, he owned two houses—one near the Farrell family mansion, similar to Pedro’s, and another near the Farrell Group, only a short drive away.

Living close made it easy for Clarissa to reach him whenever needed.

Because he was Clarissa’s most loyal aide for decades, she treated him well. Both of his homes were villas with yards.

Most of the work he did for Clarissa was secretive.

To prevent any leaks, Mr. Dunn lived alone and didn’t hire any staff. He handled all the cleaning and maintenance himself.

Aside from Clarissa, no one was allowed into his private villa.

Those who helped him lived nearby, ready to assist or protect him.

Even though he was skilled in combat, he still needed protection.

Mr. Dunn’s hunting rifle was hidden in an underground secret room in his villa.

The entrance to the secret room was disguised as a wall and could only be accessed by activating a switch. It looked like a regular wall, so even if someone broke in, they wouldn’t find the rifle.

Besides, no one could break into his house in the first place.

Mr. Dunn returned home, opened the secret room, and moved the rifle to another hidden underground room beneath a rockery in the yard, where it was even more concealed.

After securing the rifle, Mr. Dunn calmly drove to the Farrell Group.

Since he was out when Clarissa called, he took his time getting to the company.

Upon arriving at the Farrell Group, both he and Clarissa were taken away by the police.

The company’s employees watched as the two were escorted out, realizing the police were investigating the hidden guns.

Recalling the recent conflict between Clarissa and the people from Wiltspoon, most of the Farrell Group believed the police’s suspicion was likely true.

Once Clarissa and Mr. Dunn were taken away, the company buzzed with gossip.

“Will we need a new CEO?”

“I heard President Farrell eliminated her sisters to take over the company and her family.”

“If she goes to jail, will Vice President Farrell take over? She hasn’t been here long, but she’s done well recently. I’d prefer her over that Liberty Hunt we know nothing about.”

The Farrell family drama had spread throughout Jensburg.

On the surface, everyone pretended it didn’t concern them, but behind the scenes, they talked about it.

Some employees even placed bets on whether Kathryn or Liberty would take control.

Kathryn was the daughter and chosen successor of the current Matriarch, while Liberty was the heir of the previous Matriarch.

Both were backed by powerful elders, making the competition fierce.

Hadn’t their Farrell Group been trying to steal Liberty’s business?

But Liberty also took some of their business.

“Don’t you all have work to do? Do you still want to keep your jobs?”

Marco and his brothers returned to the company and saw many employees gathered in discussions.

When they heard what everyone was talking about, their faces darkened, and they shouted at the crowd.

In the Farrell Group, Marco and his brothers still held authority.

Their scolding sent everyone scurrying back to their workstations.
