441 Chapter 440

Reporters swarmed the South residence, quickly trending the news of how Ellis and the Davis family members were cornered there.

In the hospital.

Austin was leisurely sitting in the sofa, legs crossed, while Jackson was still in bed recuperating. Suddenly, Austin sprung to his feet, excitedly pointing at his phone.

“Did you arrange those reporters?”

Jackson was taken aback, “No.”

Why would he arrange for reporters?

His goal was revenge and to take down the Olsen family. It was enough that the incident trended and the Olsen family’s stock was falling. Why would he waste money on arranging for reporters?

Austin was confused. “If it wasn’t you, then who did?”

Few knew that Mary was staying at the South residence. Even Austin didn’t know she wasn’t living in the Olsen’s.

1/9

441 Chapter 440

After all, they were newlyweds. Who would have thought she would move out?

So someone must have arranged it!

Otherwise, how could the reporters have found her so accurately?

Jackson looked at him and said abruptly, "Do you still have the number that sent you the hospital report that day?"

Austin immediately took out his phone, scrolled through it, found the number, and dialed, only to receive the message, "Hello, the number you have dialed is not in service..."

Austin frowned. "It's a dead number; I'll get someone to look up the owner."

Jackson rolled his eyes.

Did he even need to check?

It was obviously an unregistered number!

Indeed, it didn't take long for Austin to get the information. It was an unregistered SIM card.

Austin laughed. "It seems someone hates Ellis more than we do! Having reporters interview him, that's a man's ultimate humiliation! If I were interviewed for being impotent, I'd rather be dead!"

11:27

2/9

441 Chapter 440

As soon as he said this, Jackson's face twitched involuntarily.

He subconsciously looked toward a certain part of himself that was now missing...

Compared to being infertile, his condition seemed even more serious, didn't it?

But he dared not get angry.

He had no choice. Austin was the favored legitimate son of the first branch, while he was just from the second. Ever since his uncle took charge of the Gill family, his father had told him never to fall out with the first branch.

Jackson clenched his fingers tightly.

Austin could speak without any consideration for his feelings. That last remark was particularly grating!

At this moment, Ellis's face was darkened.

11:27

3/9

441 Chapter 440

The usually unruly and defiant figure was now the picture of calm and collected, resembling the steady mien of a future Olsen family head.

He was always like this.

He might seem capricious and unreliable, but if that were truly the case, Uncle Olsen would not have chosen him.

Not feel humiliated?

How could he not?

It was just that they were able to keep their emotions from showing on their faces.

The reporters passed along even more unpleasant words.

"Mr. Ellis, is your infertility really caused by horseback riding? Could it actually be hereditary? After all, Uncle Olsen doesn't seem to have any children either..."

Ellis's eyes instantly became sharp as he looked toward the speaker. "Which newspaper are you from?"

11:27

441 Chapter 440

It's fine to ask me, but why involve my elder? Is the Olsen family's reputation something you can smear at will?"

He turned directly to his assistant who was always by his side. "Remember him, have the lawyers of the Olsen Group sue him for tarnishing my uncle's reputation!"

The reporter's face immediately turned pale, but he still straightened his neck and retorted, "Mr. Ellis, this is unreasonable of you. I'm just putting forth a conjecture. Besides, everyone knows that Uncle Olsen has never had children..."

The surrounding reporters nodded in agreement.

Mr. and Mrs. Olsen, standing to the side, both changed in expression, and even Ken furrowed his brows.

Ellis might just be the future heir of the Olsen family, but the stocks were already sliding.

Uncle Olsen was the Family Head, and if such news were to break, the stocks would definitely plummet even further!

Mr. and Mrs. Olsen were about to step forward to explain.

5.9

441 Chapter 440

Ellis just sneered. "Who says my uncle doesn't have children? Just a few days ago, our family had a reunion banquet where we acknowledged Uncle Olsen's long-lost daughter. Don't you know about this?"

After speaking, he turned to his secretary. "We made it very public without any secrecy. Are you not well-informed? Or is it that..."

Ellis's voice suddenly became stern. "You only report the negative news about our family, not a single piece of good news? As journalists, is this how you chase after rumors?"

The reporter was left speechless by his questioning.

However, the other reporters, after a slight pause, no longer dared to attack Uncle Olsen and continued to question Ellis.

"Then Mr. Ellis, is your infertility report real?"

Ellis looked at the person who spoke and said, "That is my privacy, don't I have the right to keep it confidential?"

After that, he chuckled.

However, the reporter was not ready to give up and continued to inquire, "If your infertility is true, then whose child is Miss Mary carrying? Could you please give us an explanation? Right now, everyone is paying attention to this matter."

6/9

441 Chapter 440

Ellis frowned and said, "I think what everyone should be more concerned about is the future development plans of the Olsen family, not my personal matters! The Olsen family will soon implement a series of measures, including the development of new energy, AI intelligence, as well as conducting in-depth research on autonomous driving. We have already achieved very good results. Additionally..."

Ellis looked toward a certain camera. "This month, we will launch a new electric car, and I myself drive that model. It comes in various colors, with excellent safety features. I hope everyone pays more attention to the products of the Olsen Group!"

This speech left the reporters stunned.

Wait, wasn't this a PR crisis? How come he was treating this like a press conference?!

But Ellis's move indeed halted the downward trend of the Olsen Group's stocks.

1127

779

<

441 Chapter 440

Keira, standing by his side, also raised her eyebrows.

With everyone's attention on this scandal, the interest was at its peak. Was Ellis... riding the wave of his own popularity for free?!

Uncle Olsen trained him to be his successor, and this man certainly lived up to the expectations!

Lewis commented, "This round of PR could be a case study in public relations, worth learning for all PR departments."

Keira, who usually focused on scientific research, also nodded in agreement upon hearing this.

Ellis's PR campaign was very powerful even if in the end it proved an Olsen family scandal, the higher the scandal's temperature, the more free advertising it brought to the Olsen Group.

Ellis won brilliantly.

The reporters, after being dumbfounded for a moment, snapped back to reality and promptly asked again.

"Mr. Ellis, we are still very interested to know, is your marriage to Miss Mary authentic? Is her child yours?"

11 27

89

442 Chapter 441

As soon as these words were uttered, everyone turned their gaze to Ellis."

The journalists immediately asked more questions.

"That's right, Mr. Ellis, we came here today for this matter, so stop advertising for your company!"

"Mr. Ellis, do you have azoospermia?"

"Is Miss Davis's child yours?"

The series of question after question made Ellis tighten his jaw, and he looked toward Mary.

It wasn't until a moment later that he spoke. "Azoospermia was the result of the examination, but I have been receiving treatment recently. As for the child... of course, it's mine. My wife and I have always been deeply in love; please don't believe the rumors out there."

After saying these words, he walked over to Mary and grabbed her arm.

Mary looked at him.

1512

1/8

After a moment, she pursed her lips and walked together with him toward the journalists.

Mary knew that this was something she, as the wife of Ellis, should do always maintain a glamorous image in public.

She had seen it all her life. Couples from wealthy families were like that.

No matter how severely husband and wife quarreled privately, they always appeared close and affectionate in public.

Uncle Ken was like that. Both he and his wife had affairs. At home, they quarreled to the point of drawing knives on each other.

But as soon as they heard journalists were coming for an interview, they could immediately transform into a loving couple.

These were their basic skills.

Wearing an appropriate smile, Mary joined Ellis in front of the journalists.

Ellis turned sideways, bent over, and patted her head. "My wife and I share a harmonious relationship, unlike what the rumors suggested. I hope everyone won't spread false information. Please don't focus too much on our personal lives. We should be focusing more on my company's strategies."

15:12

2/8

This statement made the journalists cast doubtful glances at him.

Someone put it bluntly. "Mr. Ellis, if you have azoospermia, how could the child possibly be yours?"

"Recently, we heard about a scandal in your circles involving Miss Davis. Are you two really that affectionate?"

Ellis replied indifferently. "We are. The scandal is a fabrication. I believe you've also heard the clarification from Mr. Austin Gill's clarification."

Seeing they couldn't get more out of Ellis, someone shifted the focus to Mary.

"Miss Davis, do you really love Mr. Ellis? Is your union with him an arranged marriage? We all know that there are some messy affairs within wealthy families... Your marriage to him was for the sake of the family, right?"

Hearing that Ellis frowned about to speak but Marv said, "I married him because it was an arranged marriage."

3/4

The journalists were instantly stunned.

Everyone turned their astonished gazes toward Mary.

Ellis's expression darkened as well.

But just when everyone was excited, thinking they had caught hold of the couple's weakness, they heard Mary speak again, "But it's also because I love him."

Everyone was taken aback.

Ellis was flabbergasted as well.

Everyone turned their gaze to Mary and saw a smile on her face.

For some reason, that smile seemed a bit sad. She slowly looked down at the journalists below, then back at Ellis, and said slowly, "I fell in love with him when I was 18 years old.

"I remember it was a summer when I recklessly offended someone I shouldn't have provoked. That day after school, a group of them cornered me in an alley, intending to beat me, when Ellis stepped in."

16:12

4/8

Back then, Ellis had a lollipop in his mouth and was leaning lazily against a wall with a game console in his hand. He looked over at that gang of thugs and said in a measured tone, "You're so noisy. All of you should shut up."

Then, after a casual glance at them, he coolly added, "Don't force me to beat you up."

He leaned against the wall, and the setting sun in the distance cast a warm glow over him with its red beams.

Even now, Mary still remembered Ellis's appearance that day vividly.

Mary said earnestly, "From that day on, that daring and willful boy, who seemed like a little devil in the eye of others, took residence in my heart.

"I know everyone has some misunderstandings about him, thinking he's the unapproachable Mr. Ellis of the Olsen family, but to me, he has always been that courageous young man.

"All these years, Ellis hasn't really changed."

Mary didn't look at Ellis, but her words made him hesitate

15.12

5/8

Ellis stared at Mary, struggling to remember the incident she was talking about;

he didn't even remember having such a past.

When he was young, he was indeed a troublemaker and would speak up against injustice.

The way Mary was speaking at the moment gave him an odd illusion.

He felt that Mary loved him.

This illusion suddenly filled him with excitement.

Because of this illusion, he even felt he could tolerate her having another man's child...

Ellis was deep in thought when he heard the reporters start to speak. "Miss Davis, you don't have to fabricate any love stories here. We all know what's going on with you and Mr. Ellis; it's just a shotgun wedding, right? However, Mr. Ellis's medical report shows that he has been diagnosed with azoospermia, so Miss Davis, is the child really Mr. Ellis's?"

Upon hearing this, Mary looked again at Ellis.

She suddenly smirked. "It's his."

Ellis clenched his jaw and didn't say a word.

15:12)

B/B The reporters immediately started to challenge her.

"How could it be his?"

"The doctor's diagnosis clearly states that he has azoospermia. Miss Davis, are you lying without even looking at the report?"

"Miss Davis, there are rumors that you've been involved with many men. Is that true?"

"Mr. Ellis, can you tolerate her? Or are you planning to accept this child for the sake of the Olsen family's reputation? Do you really intend to raise another man's child?"

Ellis's expression darkened as he listened, and he was about to say something when he heard Mary intervene. "I have a way to prove the child is Mr. El

Ellis was taken aback, suddenly getting a bad feeling

And sure enough, she said, "I never knew why spouses had to prove who the real father is but now, with everyone doubting and questioning, I am willing to do a public DNA test!"

As soon as these words came out, the scene instantly

15.12

7/8

442 Chapter 441

erupted into commotion.

Wayne blurted out without thinking. "Mary, have you gone mad?! How can you do a DNA test under these circumstances?"

After those words were shouted, the reporters immediately seized upon them.

"May I ask why she can't have one?"

"Is it because the child isn't Ellis's?"

Mary looked at them with a cold laugh and then turned to Ellis. "Let's go to the hospital now."

443 Chapter 442

All the reporters on the scene seemed to have caught wind of some juicy gossip.

The Davis family had personally claimed that it was not suitable for Mary to undergo a paternity test. Members of both families had gathered here, and it was clear there was a matter at hand!

The journalists immediately crowded in, not looking at Mary but turning their attention toward Wayne.

"Mr. Davis, why can't they do the paternity test? What is the condition Miss Davis is in?"

"Is Mr. Ellis not the father?"

Seeing this, Wayne attempted to say something, but Ken instantly glared at him, frightening him into silence.

Ken then smiled and stepped in front of the reporters, stating plainly, "The child is certainly Mr. Ellis's. There is no doubt about that. There's no need for everyone to react to gossip."

1/8

443 Chapter 442

"Then why did Mr. Wayne reject the suggestion?"

Ken frowned, "Because... Because..."

"Because of what?"

As Ken was racking his brains for a reason, a deep voice suddenly rang out. "Because May is just three months pregnant, and there's a high risk involved with amniocentesis at this stage!"

Ellis walked over to Mary's side and took her hand once more, his face showing tender concern as he looked at her, but his eyes were void of warmth. "Mary, I know you don't want others to doubt me, but for the baby's safety, we don't need to take this risk."

After Ellis finished speaking, he tightened his grip on Mary's hand, his gaze conveying a dangerous message - it was clear he was warning her not to disgrace herself.

Mary forced a smile.

She tried to free her hand from Ellis's grip, her eyes showing determination. "Ellis, I think people can't wait until I'm safe to have the paternity test. If we don't proceed to clear your name, you may live under mirrors and alandora"

C

443 Chapter 442

She took a step back and looked at the reporters again. "I'd like to ask the journalists to accompany me to the hospital now."

Ellis clenched his fists tightly, staring at her.

After a moment, he gave a bitter smile. "Since you've made up your mind, let's do it. Let's go to the hospital right now!"

Having said that, he stepped aside, gesturing toward the nearby car.

Mary nodded and turned to walk in that direction.

At that moment, another reporter spoke up.

"Mr. Ellis, you're not going to your hospital, are you?"

"If it's your hospital, then the child will be declared yours regardless, and we all know what that means. Even if a paternity test is conducted, it wouldn't mean anything..."

"Exactly, in your own hospital, any kind of proof can be forged!"

Ellis indeed had that intention just now.

15:12

378

443 Chapter 442

But now that the reporters had pointed it out, there was no time for him to find another hospital to help create a fake report.

He frowned, about to speak, when Mary cut in. "Don't worry. We won't go to our hospital. We'll go to a public hospital for the test to avoid any tampering. I believe the closest suitable hospital to us is the First Maternity and Child Health Hospital. Let's go there!"

The First Maternity and Child Health Hospital is a public hospital in Clance, and although the people from the five major families all have power and influence, they couldn't arrange anything in such a short time.

The journalists immediately nodded.

Ellis had indeed driven the Olsen Group's new today, a motorhome that could seat many people. After Mary and Ellis got in, Mr. Olsen and Mrs. Olsen immediately followed them and also boarded the vehicle.

Keira and Lewis exchanged a glance.

The motorhome was too crowded; they'd better drive there on their own.

418

443 Chapter 442

As for the Davis family, they got into their own cars, and together with the reporters, the whole entourage made their way to the First Maternity and Child Health Hospital.

Inside the Olsen family's car.

Mrs. Olsen was frowning at Ellis. "Ellis, what exactly is going on here? Is the child really yours?"

Ellis didn't speak.

Mrs. Olsen seemed to understand something and turned to Mary. "Mary, what's going on with you? If the child isn't Ellis's, making such a fuss about going to the First Maternity and Child Health Hospital will put the Olsen family in a difficult spot."

Mr. Olsen immediately said, "It's probably too late to make any arrangements now because there are so many journalists and media watching. They certainly have people waiting at the hospital, and if we do anything, they'll discover it. What should we do now?"

Ellis pursed his lips and also looked at Mary.

He scoffed. "What exactly are you doing? Mary, my patience with you is limited!!"

15:13

443 Chapter 442

Mary looked down without meeting his gaze and turned toward Mr. and Mrs. Olsen. "I have a perfect solution."

After that, she took two divorce agreements out of her bag and placed them on the coffee table.

She addressed Mr. and Mrs. Olsen. "Have Ellis sign his name here. Once the test result is out, if the child isn't his, then we can announce publicly using this document that he and I have already divorced. In this way, it would only prove my misconduct, and the Olsen Group wouldn't be involved."

These words stunned Mrs. Olsen.

She looked at Mary in astonishment, suddenly unable to comprehend what this young woman was really up

She couldn't help but turn to Ellis again. "That azoospermia report, is it true? How many hospitals did you check with?"

Ellis said slowly, "Three."

These words took Mrs. Olsen aback.

Mr. Olsen then angrily said, "Then why didn't you say it earlier? Last time, when you made Mary have an abortion, you were quite tight-lipped! How could our family possibly raise someone else's child? Since you've been diagnosed with azoospermia, then sign this divorce agreement!"

Ellis clenched his jaw and then said, "I didn't bring a pen."

He always carried a fountain pen in his pocket for signing documents; this excuse was pathetically unacceptable.

Mr. Olsen scoffed, right about to speak....

"I have one."

Mary took out a pen from her bag and handed it to Ellis. She gazed at the divorce agreement in front of her and said slowly, "I've already signed my name. Just need to sign yours."

Those words made Ellis's eyes suddenly turn red with anger as he looked at Mary, his voice shaking imperceptibly. "You want to divorce me that badly?!"

Mary was taken aback and remained silent.

Mr. Olsen, however, said, "Ellis, sign it! For the Ellis stared at the agreement in front of him and, after a long while, finally picked them up and signed his name.

444 Chapter 443

After Ellis had signed his name, he stared at the agreement.

While he hesitated, one of the copies had already been taken by Mary.

With her gaze lowered, Mary carefully placed the divorce agreement into her bag, then turned to look out the window.

Seeing Ellis's distracted appearance, Mrs. Olsen couldn't help but sigh silently.

The Olsens had a reputation for being emotional, something she had known for a long time.

Sam remained unmarried because he was always thinking about Jodie South.

Even her husband was wholeheartedly devoted to her. Ellis's behavior clearly showed that he has feelings for Mary.

He had even gone to the extent of acknowledging the child for Mary's sake.

Only it was a pity....

1/8

444 Chapter 443

Ultimately, the two of them weren't meant to be.

In all other matters; concessions could be made, but the child had caused such a commotion. If it were simply acknowledged...

Mr. Olsen also frowned, unable to refrain from chastising Mary. "Mary, haven't we been good to you? How could you do such a thing? Ellis, why didn't you let her uncle beat her to death back then? Instead, you were forced into agreeing to this marriage! Have you lost your mind?"

Mary kept her head down, saying nothing.

Ellis also frowned and remained silent.

For a moment, no one spoke.

Nobody noticed that Ellis's hand was tightly clenched into a fist, and his whole body was exuding a chilling coldness!

The car soon arrived at the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Olsen got out of the car, about to say something, when they saw Ellis suddenly close the door and shout at the driver. "Get out!"

The driver was taken aback and involuntarily got out of the car.

15:13

2/8

444 Chapter 443

Ellis then locked the doors, making it impossible to open from the outside.

His eyes turned bloodshot as he looked at Mary.

Mary stared at him. "What are you doing?"

Ellis's voice was muffled. "Is this paternity test necessary?"

Mary was taken aback.

Ellis let out a cold laugh. "What? Before, when the child didn't have a father, you thought of me as the perfect sucker. Now you're so eager to shake me off. Is it because the child's father has come back? Or do you get back in touch with him?"

Mary said, "I didn't... Mmph!"

Ellis swallowed the rest of her words.

A surge of uncontrollable desire filled Ellis's chest. He was so angry that he felt he was going to erupt right there and then!

Mary struggled to push him away, "Ellis, let go of me, you..."

15.13

378

444 Chapter 443

But Ellis didn't care at all and bit her lips hard!

He kissed her fiercely....

It was as if he wanted to devour her!

Outside, Mr. and Mrs. Olsen looked inside, trying to see what was going on, but the car windows were tinted with special film. From the inside, one could see out, but from the outside, one couldn't make out what was happening.

Mrs. Olsen knocked on the window. "Ellis, what are you doing?"

Ellis didn't respond to her and was insistently in control of Mary, frantically wanting to possess Mary pushed Ellis away. "Ellis, let me go! You're There are reporters everywhere.

Let go of me!"

But Ellis just stared at her and sneered coldly, "Do want to leave me for that bastard? Mary, do you thi would let you get away so easily?"

Mary panicked. "Ellis, we just signed the divorce agreement!"

"So what?!"

15.13

4/8

Ellis's large hand was pressed on Mary's abdomen. He applied a slight force, and Mary's pupils contracted. "Ellis, what are you doing?!"

"Since you're leaving me because of this child, then... let the child disappear!"

After saying that, Ellis began to press down harder!

This action made Mary's eyes widen in terror, and she begged for mercy. "Ellis, let go of me! This child is yours!"

"Three test reports all said azoospermia, and you're still lying now?"

Ellis glared at her. "Do you know when I went to th hospitals for the tests, I felt like a joke! Mary, I beli your damned lies!"

He asked furiously through clenched teeth, "Don't you love me? Didn't you tell the reporters that story with genuine affection? So, for my sake, why don't you get rid of this baby?!"

Mary cried. "Ellis, you bastard!!"

Ellis sneered. "Yes, I'm a bastard! I admit it, Mary. I'm telling you, I want you, so you can't keep this child!

SIR Today, I won't show mercy anymore!"

Feeling the increased pressure of his hand, Mary cried out in pain. "Ellis, no, this child is yours... I'm telling the truth!"

"You don't need to try to fool me... I know you're waiting for Keera and Lewis to come to your rescue, but it's useless. They can't get here in time..." Suddenly, Ellis pressed her legs down with his body and took out a white pill from his pocket. "I've asked the doctors. After taking this, you won't feel any pain, and the child will come out quickly. Mary, without this child, we will have no more complications. If you like children, we can adopt one later. If you really wan have children, then we can help you choose a qua one from a sperm bank..."

"But not this bastard!"

After leaving those words, Ellis opened Mary's mouth and fed the pill into her!

Mary tried desperately to spit out the pill, but Ellis covered her mouth with his palm, and the pill slipped straight down her throat, leaving her no chance to spit it out!

678

In pain and despair, she looked at the frantic Ellis and beat fiercely against him with her hands while a wailing plea escaped her muffled mouth...

But it was all to no avail.

Ellis had made up his mind and wouldn't give up!

It seemed forever before Mary finally swallowed the pill...

Only then did Ellis let go of her mouth.

The moment he released her, Mary immediately pushed him away and started to gag.

But it was no use...

All was in vain...

Mary's tears flowed uncontrollably, and her face full of despair!

She glared at Ellis with anger and resentment!

Her whole body was trembling, and she vaguely felt a heavy, painful sensation in her lower abdomen...

Mary cried out loud, "Ellis, you will regret this!"

"I won't."

15:15

718

444 Chapter 445

Ellis looked at her firmly. "I'd rather have you hate me for a lifetime than let you go!"

Clutching her fists tightly, Mary said, "Can we do the paternity test now?"

445 Chapter 444

Ellis was startled by the words.

He had not expected that at a time like this, Mary would still insist on a paternity test... Was she determined to force him into a divorce?

He let out a scoff.

Mary, on the verge of collapse, screamed, "Ellis, I want you to see the results!

See with your own eyes, the child you just killed was your own!"

"Mary... there's no need to provoke me anymore. I know you're doing this just to force me to divorce you but I won't do it."

Suddenly, Ellis reached out and gently stroked her head.

Mary was almost driven to the edge by his gesture and cried out, "Ellis, you bastard, bastard!"

She slumped into the seat, close to despair.

With both hands on her abdomen, she felt the pain emanating from inside and was overwhelmed by suffering.

15:13

Just then, the sound of furious banging came from outside.

Ellis turned his head and saw Keira trying to open the door, seemingly enraged. She was pounding on the glass.

Unfortunately, the car's windows were too sturdy to be smashed open.

Ellis had no intention of getting out there; he pushed himself up from the seat with his hands and leaped into the driver's seat.

Just as he was about to start the car and leave, another vehicle suddenly blocked his way, cutting off his escape route.

Ellis frowned as he saw the front car window roll do to reveal Lewis Horton's face.

Ellis sighed softly.

Turning his head again, he saw Keira standing outside the window, signaling him to let Mary go.

Ellis lowered his gaze and after a moment and opened the door.

The moment the door was unlocked. Keira nulled onen the rear door and looked straight at Mary. "Mary, are you okay?"

Mary's face was covered in tears. With her hands on her belly, she cried to Keira. The child, the child is gone... Keera, my child is gone!"

Keira reached out to her. "Don't be afraid. We're going to the hospital now. Come with me!"

Mary hurriedly exited the car and was helped into the hospital by Keira.

The reporters swarmed behind them, asking Ellis, "Mr. Ellis, what just happened? You and Miss Davis didn't come out of the car. Were you arguing?"

Ellis merely lowered his eyes slightly and said indifferently, "My wife suddenly felt unwell, and the child... is gone."

This statement caused an uproar among the reporters.

The child was gone?

Just now?

It all seemed like a clumsy cover-up!

The crowd, as if they had caught on to a piece of news, immediately raised their microphones and pressed forward. "Mr. Ellis, what exactly happened to this child?"

"Did you intentionally induce an abortion?"

"This child isn't actually yours, is it?"

Ellis's eyes flickered to the doorway, where he saw Keira supporting Mary into the hospital gate. An icy chill surfaced in his eyes, and he turned to the speaker.

"It's illegal to fabricate stories without evidence! If you continue to slander my wife's innocence, the legal department of the Olsen Group will serve you with a cease and desist letter!"

The reporters were taken aback.

Ellis then addressed them, enunciating every word. "My wife and I are deeply in love, and I am also very saddened by the loss of our child. But I believe that my wife and I will face it together. Now, if you'll excuse me, I need to see my wife!"

After saying these words, he strode into the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Olsen exchanged a glance and immediately followed him inside.

The Davis family arrived a little later. Just as they got out of the car, they heard the "bad news" and were stunned in place.

Mr. Davis's face first stiffened, but then he brightened with joy. "The child is gone, it's a good thing, a good thing! Now no one can say the child isn't Mr. Ellis's..."

Mrs. Davis showed a rare hint of concern.

They hurried into the hospital.

This hospital was the closest to the South residence. Ellis hurriedly caught up to Mary and Keira, who were in front of him.

They went into the gynecology department, and Ma lay down on the bed, curling up in pain as if it was unbearable.

Seeing this, a flicker of distress crossed Ellis's eyes.

If he could, he would take the pain for her.

But there was no way....

Ellis stepped forward, about to speak, when Mary suddenly erupted. She pushed him away fiercely. "Get away from me! I don't want to see you!"

Ellis took a step back. "Mary, don't be anxious. You're weak now, and you need to take good care of yourself, I..."

"Ellis, I want to have a paternity test!" Mary was still shouting out these words.

"Even if this child is gone, I still want to do it!"

She looked at Ellis, her eyes filled with loathing.

Being looked at like that, Ellis felt extremely uncomfortable.

Before he could say anything, Mrs. Davis stepped forward. "Mary, let's not make a fuss... We won't do the paternity test anymore. The child is gone, it's now!"

Mary looked coldly at Mrs. Davis. "So, you never believed me from the beginning, right?"

Mrs. Davis was speechless.

less Mary's gaze then fell on Mr. Davis, and upon seeing his evasive eyes, she scoffed.

Mr. Davis immediately became angry. "What are you laughing at? If it weren't for your own immodesty, O could things have escalated to this point? You should be thankful that Q Mr. Ellis isn't pursuing the matter, so let it rest! Can't you understand and not drag our Davis family into this?!" "

These words were like knives and stabbed into Mary's heart one after another making her smile bitterly, feeling how pathetic her life was!

Her parent exploited her...

She clenched her fists tightly.

Ellis also slowly said, "Mary, the E reporters are all outside if we did it, it wouldn't stay hidden, be a good girl, don't make it so ugly!"

Mary knew they didn't believe her.

She could only place her last hope on Keira. She looked toward Keira, her eyes brimming with tears, "Keera, can you help me?"

Her child couldn't have disappeared so unjustly...

Otherwise, she would feel suffocated for the rest of her life!

Now she felt as if her chest was about to explode!!

Keira saw her on the verge of collapse and stepped forward decisively. "I can.

Mary, stay put. I'll take care of it."

Leaving those words behind, she strode to Ellis.

As Ellis opened his mouth to speak, Keira closed in and punched him in the abdomen.

Ellis winced in pain and doubled over.

Keira took the opportunity to pluck two strands of hair from his head and methodically placed them into the sample bag.
