

Chapter 2257

Boooooom!

Instantly, the white Mercedes Benz G lost control like a released mad bull. It crashed right into the railing and the flowerbed on the side of the speedway, before flipping upside down.

Several men with dark sunglasses barely managed to crawl out from the car before it overturned. They suffered heavy injuries and bleeding heads, no longer in any condition to fight.

Boooooom!

Now that he had dealt with the white Mercedes Benz G, he stepped on the gas pedal and rammed right into the black one.

However, the enemy's impressive driving skills helped the car to dodge Harvey's Toyota Alphard the nick of time.

Harvey saw this, and immediately rolled down his window to throw a cup right at the car's windshield.

It broke into a thousand pieces, scattering shards of glass everywhere.

Wails of pain could be heard inside the black Mercedes Benz G, before it crashed unceremoniously on the side of the road.

The car quickly caught fire, ready to blow up at any moment.

More men with sunglasses stumbled out of the car in a hurry. But as they struggled to gain their footing, Harvey's car immediately crashed into them without mercy.

In an instant, all of them were sent flying.

While all this happened, Harvey grabbed a loaded firearm and walkie talkie.

Upon closer inspection, the bullets of the firearms seemed a little bigger compared to ordinary ones. The muzzle was a lot thicker than usual, too.

Mandy looked at the firearm with a frown.

“I’ve seen these in military magazines, Harvey. They’re armor-penetration firearms. A simple buckshot can blow up an entire tank.”

Harvey naturally knew about these firearms as well. However, he didn’t have the time to ask why his wife would even read military magazines.

At this moment, a voice echoed from the walkie talkie.

“Status report. Status report.”

The person was speaking English, but he had a considerably thick accent. Harvey quickly realized that this person probably originated from Hong Kong or Las Vegas.

“Your people look like they’re done for,” Harvey said calmly, turning on the walkie talkie to reply.

“I don’t care who you are. I’ll give you one day to return my mother-in-law to me unscathed.”

“If you don’t, then be prepared to die.”

The person on the other side froze, shocked. He never imagined that Harvey would have one of his walkie talkies.

Then, a gentle voice cut in.

“Good luck, bastard,” the voice said, just as calm as Harvey was.

Boooooom!

Harvey drove away, and after going about thirty feet of distance, a loud explosion could be heard from behind.

The two cars that were trailing Harvey so persistently had blown up, and the men who were inside the cars were nowhere to be found.

The gruesome sight turned Mandy's face ghastly pale.

"Aren't they supposed to be companions?! Why would they kill their own men?"

"They're all sacrificial pawns. They must've settled their affairs before coming for me," Harvey replied, glancing behind him.

"For them, no sacrifice is too big as long as they can get rid of me."

Harvey sighed. He had been too careless.

He shouldn't have brought Mandy here in the first place. Not to say that she was a burden to him, but...

With her around, his hands were a bit tied up.

Suddenly, the roar of loud engines broke the still air.

Three Toyota Land Cruisers suddenly appeared, ramming viciously past isolation belts on two different lanes before chasing Harvey's Toyota Alphard.

<https://t.me/HarveyYorkEnglish>

Chapter 2258

Harvey calmly took a picture of the cars and sent it out, and then stepped on the gas pedal.

“What are they trying to do, Harvey?”

“If they’re trying to kill us, doesn’t that mean Mother’s in deep trouble?”

Mandy was terribly anxious, fear written all over her face.

“Don’t worry,” Harvey said calmly, assuring her.

“As long as I’m not dead, she’ll be perfectly safe. She won’t lose even a single strand of hair.”

“They’ll probably use her as the final trump card against me.”

“If I die, she dies as well.”

“That’s why you shouldn’t think too much. Let’s deal with the problem behind us first.”

Harvey glanced at the rear view mirror after he spoke.

He could see a strong, muscular blonde man emerging from the car's sunroof, holding an RPG.

The man was aiming his RPG right at Harvey's car. Without any hesitation, he pulled the trigger.

“What the hell?!”

Harvey immediately stepped on the brakes, a horrible look on his face. He drifted the car sideways and dodged the shot.

Boom!

The shot exploded loudly, causing a huge crater on the road ahead. Flames erupting and fire burned everywhere, the sight so chaotic it seemed like the end of the world.

Mandy watched with widened eyes, shocked beyond belief.

She had experienced her share of conflict and met a lot of dangerous people, but this was her first time seeing such a hellish battlefield.

She didn't expect the enemy to use such a big weapon without any hesitation!

If the car was shot, both she and Harvey would be left without a body!

Harvey was displaying a scornful expression, his lips a deep frown. For him as well, this was his first time experiencing how different Las Vegas was compared to other places.

If people could use such heavy firearms like this, the underworld here must've been powerful.

He wanted to toy with the enemy with his driving skills, but after thinking about it, he decided against it.

Against such a powerful firearm, he would be the one suffering if he kept playing around.

The Land Cruisers sped up immediately, and the blonde man loaded his firearm again as his car closed in on Harvey.

Another loud explosion followed, and once again, a crater was formed on the road. Harvey barely dodged the shot.

“You damn bastard! I’ll kill you!”

The blonde man threw a barrage of insults, cursing at Harvey, after seeing that he missed two shots. More men emerged from the other two Land Cruisers’ sunroofs, also carrying heavy firearms.

They rained down their shots at Harvey, but he dodged everything with a calm disposition, as if he was just enjoying a pleasant drive.

Nine grenades were followed. As they hit the ground in loud explosions, large holes were formed.

The men shouted angry insults again, then threw aside their heavy firearms and brought out their rifles.

Harvey glanced at the rear view mirror once more, grinning coldly.

He turned the wheel and spun the car around, then drove straight towards the enemy without a second's hesitation.

Bang, bang, bang!

The moment their cars passed by each other, Harvey pulled the trigger of his firearm with his left hand.

Boom!

Three bullets were fired, landing right on the tanks of the three Land Cruisers with great precision. All cars blew up at the same time, engulfed in flames that burned everything.

Harvey did not stop there. He circled the place, making sure that nobody was left alive in the explosion, before driving away.

<https://t.me/HarveyYorkEnglish>

Chapter 2259

The Arcburn villa district inside Las Vegas faced the sea, while mountains filled the background. The Victoria Harbor could be seen all the way from here. It was truly a district for the wealthy.

Luxurious villas filled the area, with any single one costing over ten million dollars. Ordinary people had no right to show up here.

It was also tightly guarded, equipped with the best security in all of Las Vegas.

Harvey was inside a mountain range villa, looking at Victoria Harbor from the balcony absentmindedly, preoccupied.

Mandy came out after her shower. She approached Harvey and covered him with a blanket.

“It’ll get windy at night. Let’s head inside,” she whispered quietly.

Harvey shook his head and put the blanket on Mandy instead.

“I’m not that cold. You need to be careful, though. Try not to get a cold,” Harvey replied.

“After all, you’re not coming here for only your mother, right?”

Mandy’s eyes flickered slightly at his question.

“That’s right. There’s another reason I’m here, and that’s to audit accounts.”

“When Lucas was still in position as the Jean family’s prince, he opened a legal casino in Hong Kong.”

“Of course, us outsiders can’t be the only ones holding shares in a place like Las Vegas. So, Lucas partnered with the King of Gambling’s fourth son.”

“But after Lucas died, the money sent to the ninth branch’s account didn’t even reach one percent of the usual amount.”

“I sent people here to investigate before, but they never came back.”

“This time, I need to meet the King of Gambling’s fourth son himself, face-to-face.”

Harvey looked at Mandy with a complicated expression, perplexed. He realized that he wasn’t able to figure out what’s on her mind anymore.

Maybe this was the price to pay for maturity.

Mandy realized that she had slipped up as well. She stood in the dark with Harvey, silent, embarrassed by her blunder.

After a long while, Harvey took a deep breath and said, “It’s good that you have your own business in Las Vegas.”

“Let’s split up tomorrow. You can deal with the casino...”

“And I’ll be in charge of rescuing Mom.”

“But, be very careful when you see the King of Gambling’s fourth son.”

“Despite Las Vegas being such a huge place, there’s only one top rated family here, and that’s the Hamilton family.”

“After so many years, the Hamiltons have perfected their business to a tee.”

“Jax Hamilton, the King of Gambling’s fourth son, also known as Prince Hamilton...”

“His looks are decent, but they don’t portray his actual character.”

In truth, Harvey wanted to convince Mandy not to come in contact with the Hamilton family simply for the matter of a single casino.

But after thinking through, he felt that she would be in a lot more danger if she stayed with him. And so, he could only give her a few warnings at best.

That said, Mandy was still the head of the ninth branch in the Jean family.

Unless the Hamiltons were ready to fight one of the top ten families in Country H, they wouldn't dare to do anything that crossed the line.

Harvey suddenly recalled another thing. Before he left for Las Vegas, he took five billion yen worth of chips that he had once handed to Rachel.

Since he was already in Las Vegas, he might as well exchange those chips for actual money. The amount wouldn't be much, but it was better than nothing.

The morning the following day, many guards from the ninth branch showed up outside the mountain range villa.

Mandy was made aware of the security issues after what she had experienced the night before. Hence, she took the initiative to dispatch a large number of guards here ahead of time.

Harvey looked at the guards, and sighed. He soon finished his breakfast and walked out of the villa alone.

<https://t.me/HarveyYorkEnglish>

Chapter 2260

Harvey called a local cab and pointed the driver to his desired location. Then, he took out his phone.

In just two days' time, he had already figured out the entire process regarding Lilian's kidnapping through his sources.

Lilian had a few bodyguards accompanying her, both in public and in secret.

Three days ago, they suddenly lost Lilian after she entered a public restroom in a mall.

She mysteriously vanished after heading inside. When the bodyguards couldn't find her, they informed Mandy of Lilian's strange disappearance.

Mandy took action instantly and sent a large group of people to search the entire mall.

Unfortunately, it was to no avail.

But after studying the footage of the restroom's entrance, Harvey came to an educated guess.

Not long after Lilian headed inside the restroom, a cleaner walked out, wheeling a cleaning cart.

Harvey suspected that Lilian received a blow on the head and promptly passed out, and was then shoved inside the cart before she was taken away.

He verified the cleaner's identity and discovered that said person only started working a few weeks ago. After Lilian was declared missing, the cleaner disappeared without a trace.

Harvey tried investigating the cleaner further, but all leads faced a dead end.

Safe to say, whoever did this must've planned everything out for a long time, even going as far as to figure out Lilian's habits. That was probably why the plan had worked so flawlessly.

Something so thoroughly-planned naturally wouldn't leave much of a trail, if any.

The only evidence Harvey had so far was a picture taken after Lilian's kidnapping.

After making multiple analyses for the past two days, Harvey was certain that Lilian was held hostage in the newly built Sky Casino-Palace.

The Sky Casino-Palace was established in a new district within Las Vegas that cost one hundred and fifty million dollars. Every recreational facility imaginable could be found inside Sky Casino-Palace.

Anyone could play to their heart's content in this place. In fact, it wouldn't be a problem to stay here for a few years.

But there was one thing to keep in mind, and that was to have enough money before entering.

In such a place, those with money are kings. On the contrary, those without money had no right to even scrounge for scraps.

After an hour, Harvey arrived at the Sky Casino-Palace. He got out of the cab and rode the Ferris wheel that led into the casino.

It was still daytime, but Sky Casino-Palace felt like night.

Extravagant lights shimmered all over the place, blinding him. Anyone who stepped in here would be easily captivated.

The casino was a place of endless fun and enjoyment, filled with everything that the world had to offer.

Harvey wasn't that surprised. He soon found himself a map, and went straight for the guest room at the center of Sky Casino-Palace.

He saw a lot of recreational facilities along the way, with many beautiful female staff welcoming guests at casino entrances.

As long as people owned a casino license, they would be able to set up casino stands within Las Vegas. A place like this was well-known for such a thing.

Many people were constantly going in and out of the casinos. Some were completely drained, while some looked exhilarated, drunk with excitement.

Some even rushed to the garbage can on the side to throw up, having been inside for too long.

Harvey shook his head and hurried his pace.

However, he was stopped when someone tapped his shoulder.

Harvey subconsciously clasped the hand on his shoulder and gripped it fiercely. Contrary to his expectations, the hand felt smooth and tender. Shocked, Harvey found himself frozen in place.

“That hurts, my savior...”

Harvey spun around. Behind him stood an enchanting figure whose beautiful face showed pain.

It was Teresa Thompson from Wolsing's Thompson family!

<https://t.me/HarveyYorkEnglish>