

Chapter 2050 Janet's Introduction Of The Design...

Soon after, guided by the host, Draco and Janet stepped onto the stage to accept their award and participate in an interview.

Since the dress that amazed the entire audience was worn by the model from W Marks, the host conducted a special interview with Draco.

"Mr. Wesley, your design is absolutely breathtaking. Every line and detail exudes strength and beauty," the host exclaimed, barely containing her excitement. "With so many talented designers here today, it's clear that your vision stands out as the finest."

The audience, resonating with the host's praise, responded with enthusiastic applause.

Draco responded with a modest smile, "I deeply appreciate the affection everyone has shown, but I must clarify that the success of this design isn't only mine."

He then turned towards Janet, attributing real credit to her. "Initially, I envisioned a striking phoenix-themed dress, but it was Janet who truly transformed that vision into reality."

This revelation sparked a flurry of whispers among the audience.

The host, quick to follow up, turned to Janet. "Is this true?"

With a modest nod and a gracious smile, Janet confirmed, "Yes, it was Draco who provided me with this wonderful opportunity to contribute to the final design."

"And could you share with us the inspiration behind your design?" the host inquired eagerly.

Janet, holding the microphone with a gentle grip, replied in a soft voice, "Draco's original full-body dress was beautiful, yet it lacked some visual interest. So, I reimagined it into a detachable version."

Draco nodded his approval.

Expanding on her approach, Janet added, "For instance, when I designed a dress for Mrs. Lawrence previously, I experimented with a similar concept. By altering where the accessory attaches, one can seamlessly switch styles."

"Could you give an example?" the host inquired, eyes full of curiosity.

Janet's smile remained warm as she explained, "For those ladies who prefer not to show their legs, attaching the accessory at the dress's hem creates an elegant and reserved look. Conversely, for those who enjoy highlighting their figure, positioning the accessory on the shoulder can enhance the outfit's glamour."

The audience responded with enthusiastic applause as Janet concluded her talk.

The coordinated speeches of the two drew many fans, and this fashion show broadcast simultaneously sparked intense online discussions.

Rising rapidly on the trending topics, "Janet's innovative design dazzles the audience" hit the top spot.

Online users praised the versatility of Janet's designs. Mrs. Lawrence herself shared these comments, publicly endorsing them.

Chapter 2050 Janet's Introduction O 🎁 +120 Points at most

"I can vouch for Janet's distinctive style, which I adore. Furthermore, I am excited to announce Lawrence Group's ongoing partnership with Rowena Studio!" the post read.

The award ceremony concluded on a cheerful note, and Janet, along with Draco, made their way backstage.

Janet felt exhausted after enduring a prolonged interview and found it challenging to maintain her balance. Observing her struggle, Draco extended his hand to assist her.

However, before he could reach her, Brandon, who had already arrived backstage, was quick to support Janet.

When Janet looked up and recognized Brandon, she expressed her surprise. "You're here? I thought you'd be late."

"How could I miss out on the design you personally prepared?" Brandon caressed Janet's face tenderly, congratulating her. "Well done, Janet, the brilliant designer."

"Thank you," Janet responded softly.

While Janet and Brandon exchanged these warm words, Draco retracted his hand regretfully, stepping back.