

Chapter 1704 Does She Love Brandon

Upon hearing Zola's statement, Janet bowed to her and said, "I'm truly sorry, Mrs. Hamilton. It was indeed my fault that Mandy got poisoned. I sincerely apologize."

Observing Janet's sincere demeanor, Zola felt somewhat better.

Seated on the bed, Mandy touched her forehead and glanced at her mother with a helpless look. "Mom, I'm a bit hungry. Could you get me some food, please?"

Zola felt immense sympathy for Mandy. Upon hearing her express hunger, she grabbed her bag and left to purchase some food for her.

After she departed, Mandy gazed at Janet with a melancholic expression and said, "I'm truly sorry. My mother is always like that. She struggles to express herself clearly sometimes. Please don't take it to heart. She's just overly concerned about me."

Shaking her head, Janet walked over to the bedside and took a seat. "I won't hold it against her. It's understandable for her to be upset."

After uttering those words, she scanned Mandy's face closely. When she saw that Mandy looked much better, a sense of relief washed over her.

"How's your recovery coming along?" Janet inquired with a frown.

With a smile, Mandy replied, "I'm already well. If my mother hadn't been overly anxious and insisted on me staying in the hospital for two more days, I'd be resting at home right now."

Observing Mandy brimming with energy, Janet heaved a sigh of relief.

Mandy, however, noticed that the driver was carrying a suitcase.

Wearing a mischievous look on her face, she asked with a smile, "Why are you here with your suitcase? Did you run away from home?"

"No, I just miss my parents, so I want to go home and spend a few days with them," Janet replied awkwardly.

She couldn't disclose the specifics of her disagreement with Brandon to Mandy.

In order to steer clear of Mandy's inquiry, she quickly changed the topic, saying, "The poison in the water you drank was from Nightingale. She intended for me to drink it, but you did so accidentally instead. Nevertheless, don't fret. She has left the villa now."

Mandy raised her eyebrows and asked casually, "Did Nightingale just leave?"

Janet nodded. Indeed, she had seen Nightingale leave, but was unaware of the other details.

"I don't think Brandon will let it slide easily

After all, you were the intended target for Nightingale's poisoning from the start, and I just happened to be the unfortunate one affected," Mandy deduced in a serious tone.

As she spoke, she stared at Janet with great interest, eager to learn more about it.

Clearly, Mandy harbored a strong curiosity about why Nightingale poisoned Janet and why Janet ran away from home at this time.

"Is Nightingale in love with Brandon? Is that why she wanted to kill you?" Mandy inquired while pondering the possibilities.

Observing Mandy's expression, Janet placed a hand on her own forehead and said frankly, "I have no idea why Nightingale tried to poison me." ①

After thinking for a moment, she continued, "However, I can sense that she doesn't have any romantic feelings for Brandon. She used to be a partner of Brandon, and also his most trusted person. She stayed with me because he hired her to be my bodyguard."
