Chapter 671 Madam Lynch's Whereabouts

"What? Fergus' wife is Jerry's daughter?" Laina was utterly shocked.

"That's right. The reason why the Jessop family rose to power in Churron is because of Lacey.

"Lacey relies on her father's high position in Diatoran and acts arrogantly in Churron. The Jessop family has done many unspeakable things, but they've all been covered up.

"As far as I know, Blake drank a lot of alcohol and drove in the opposite direction before colliding with Lord Caspian's mother. Not only did he hit her, he tried to shift the blame, too.

"When he couldn't extort money, he tried to take advantage of Sherry's daughter. If Tom hadn't arrived in time, Lord Caspian's mother and sister would be in danger!" Aria recounted the whole incident.

"How audacious! Blake dared to lay hands on Lord Caspian's mother. Does he have a death wish? The Jessop family is going to pay for this!" Laina's brows furrowed in anger.

"Captain, this matter is extremely urgent. Lord Caspian's mother may be in danger. You'd better report this to Lord Caspian immediately!" Aria urged anxiously.

"Alright! I'll report it now!" Laina said before hanging up the phone.

She was about to enter the memorial hill to find Caspian, but the guards stopped her just as she arrived at the entrance.

"Who are you? You can't go in!" the guard reprimanded upon seeing her casual attire.

"I'm Laina Barnes, the captain of Task Force Rose. I have urgent military intelligence to report to Lord Caspian! Let me in quickly!"

Laina's brows furrowed slightly. Time was of the essence, so she could only expose her identity.

"She has a gun! Everyone, be careful!" a guard shouted fearfully.

Immediately, many guards raised their guns at Laina.

No one could confirm Laina's identity. Before confirming her identity, they absolutely couldn't let her in.

If she dared to force her way in, the guards wouldn't hesitate to shoot.

"Why are you panicking? I've already said that I'm the captain of Task Force Rose. Shouldn't I be armed?" Laina remained calm as she stared at the guards.

Their duty was to protect the memorial hill, so they were cautious.

Hence, Laina wouldn't get angry over such matters.

"Why should we believe you?" the guard asked cautiously.

They couldn't just let her in based on her words alone. If Laina really intended harm, no one could bear the responsibility.

"Take a look at my ID, and you'll know!" Laina couldn't be bothered to explain further and took out her ID immediately.

The guards examined her ID carefully. It was indeed real, so they didn't dare to harm her.

Although the ID seemed authentic, they still couldn't confirm her identity. Everything could be forged these days, and they'd never seen the captain of Task Force Rose in person. There was always the possibility that she might be a fraud!

They would be held responsible if they let Laina in and something went wrong. "Captain Bernard, please wait patiently. I'll inform Lord Caspian now!" a guard said.

The guard didn't dare to decide on his own in such matters. It was better to let Lord Caspian give the orders.

"Hurry! This matter is extremely urgent. If you delay it, you'll all be responsible for the aftermath!" Laina also understood the guards' situation, but she really couldn't wait any longer.

One guard immediately ran into the memorial hill to report to Caspian.

They wouldn't have such strict precautions in place if it weren't for Balthazar and Caspian both being in the memorial hill.

"Reporting to Lord Caspian!

Chapter 672 The Jessop Family's Background

Caspian was greatly shocked upon hearing this. He didn't anticipate that the Jessops would be so cruel.

Willow was extremely surprised to hear Laina's words.

In that case,

it seemed that Miranda was also going to have her eyes gouged out. Could it be that both Miranda and Sherry had been captured?

But what was the purpose of this?

"What exactly is the background of the Jessop family?" Caspian asked angrily.

"The head of the Jessop family is called Fergus Jessop. He's the richest man in Churron. His wife is named Lacey Andrews, who is the daughter of a Diatorian high-ranking official, Jerry Andrews," Laina stated.

Upon hearing her words, Caspian was extremely shocked. This matter was actually related to Jerry.

"This is outrageous! The daughter of that bastard dares to do such despicable things!" Caspian couldn't suppress the anger in his heart anymore.

“That’s right. According to our investigation, Lacey commits all sorts of atrocities in Churron and even extorts the common folks because of her father’s position.

“The reason why the Jessop family became the number one family in Churron is because of Lacey.”

Laina told all the information she knew.

Then, she explained the whole story to Caspian.

After hearing it, Caspian felt extremely furious.

“Wait. When did I have a sister?” Caspian asked with some confusion.

He couldn’t understand it/The previous intel didn’t mention that a daughter existed in the family.

Could it be that Sherry remarried after she left the Lynch family?

But that also made sense, as living alone as a woman was too difficult.

“We don’t know about the specifics, but this girl shouldn’t be Madam Lynch’s biological daughter,” Laina answered.

“Laina! Listen to my orders. You must eliminate the Jessop family!” Caspian said angrily.

The Jessops’ deeds were simply too despicable!

“Understood! Lord Caspian, should we take action now?” Laina asked.

“I’ll ask His Majesty for permission to take the fighter jets to Churron.

Meanwhile, ask Task Force

Rose to stall time for a while. We’ll start our operation. after we arrive!” Caspian said.

“Lord Caspian, there’s only Aria and three or four subordinates in Churron. I’m afraid they can’t prolong for much longer,” she stated.

“Even if they can’t stall time, they must. Immediately issue my order to Aria. Show them the manner of our special forces. We need to display the proper bearing of soldiers in the face of so many ordinary people!” he said firmly.

“Understood!”

Laina dared not waste time, and she immediately made a phone call to Aria.

After receiving the order, Aria was very shocked. There were several hundred people from the Jessop family guarding outside the abandoned factory.

But since Lord Caspian himself had ordered it, she dared not disobey.

Being able to carry out such a mission was a great honor for her.

Following that, Caspian consulted Balthazar and explained the situation.

Balthazar immediately agreed to Caspian’s request for a fighter jet to Churron.

and allowed him to take the

Many high-ranking officials were puzzled to see Caspian’s agitated appearance.

They felt even more puzzled that he was leaving Southlake City by a fighter jet.

They wondered if a war was happening within Diatoran again.

Although everyone was puzzled, no one dared to ask more questions.

Caspian was the Diatoranian God of War. Except for Balthazar, nobody dared to ask him anything.

Caspian took Laina and Willow to board a military vehicle. Then, they headed to Southlake City Airport, where the fighter jet was on standby.

Jerry was very curious about Caspian’s sudden departure, but he didn’t dare to

It was Willow's first time riding a military fighter jet, and she suddenly felt very proud.

The feeling of sitting on a fighter jet was different from that of an ordinary plane! The rally at the memorial hill was broadcast live, which was done on purpose to intimidate those enemy countries.

Astronia, Vadesia, Estrya, and Filren all knew about the rally.

The kings of these enemy countries all called for emergency meetings, fearing that Diatoran would go to war.

Estrya was extremely worried because they were the closest to Diatoran, separated only by a sea.

If Diatoran were to start a war, they would definitely attack Estrya first.

After discussions among the four countries, they decided not to take any action for the time being.

They would wait and see what actions Diatoran would take before deciding.

"Everyone, Diatoran has held a mobilization rally, and they seem to be preparing for world conquest.

"Should we launch a preemptive strike against them? Do you think Diatoran will attack us first? After all, we've had some friction with them before!" the King of Tigrā asked nervously in the meeting hall.

Although Tigrā didn't directly attack Diatoran, they were the closest to Diatoran, and there had been arguments between the two nations.

When the King of Tigrā knew about Diatoran's intention to conquer the world, he instantly panicked.

"Your Highness, I think it's possible!
If Diatoran wants to attack Filren, they must pass through our territory.

"It's very likely for Diatoran to attack us, so we must be prepared. Our strength is incomparable to Diatoran's. Hence, we must be cautious," a high-ranking official said.

“What can we do? We can’t compare to great countries like Vadesia and Astronia. We’re simply not Diatoran’s match,” the king said anxiously.

+15 BONOS

“Your Majesty, Diatoran’s ability to repel the joint forces of the other four countries is enough to demonstrate their military strength! Moreover, Caspian even killed Robert and Viktor.

“We should seek peace quickly. Maybe Diatoran won’t attack us if we show our weakness,” the official said.

“Will it work? What if they don’t buy it?” the King asked.

“Your Majesty, don’t worry. Even if war breaks out, we still have room to maneuver. After all, our country is surrounded by mountains on three sides. Diatoran can’t take us down that easily,” a general said.

“Our military strength is not on the same level as Diatoran. Once war breaks out, we will undoubtedly be defeated,” the king said.

His greatest concern now was Diatoran’s sudden attack.

“Your Majesty! Something big has happened!” an intelligence officer urgently said as he rushed in.

“What happened? Spit it out!” The king suddenly felt uneasy.

“The Diatoranian God of War had taken off on a fighter jet from Southlake City. He’s escorted by four fighter jets! They’re now heading in our direction!” the intelligence officer reported.

Upon hearing this, the King of Tigra’s face was filled with despair. In his eyes, this was Caspian leading his troops to attack them.

“Your Majesty! Are you alright?”

Suddenly, the king was so scared that he went limp and fell off his chair. Everyone exclaimed and rushed to help him up.

“Your Majesty, are you alright?” a high-ranking official asked.

“Why did Diatoran not play by the rules and choose to deploy their troops. immediately!”

The king had thought that Diatoran would need some time before going on to war, but who knew they would really come to attack Tigrā?

Was this the tragic fate of a weak country?

Losers would always be defeated. The “King of Tigrā, we had some conflict before, and I heard that Tigrā has close ties Vadesia and Astronia. So, why the sudden surrender?” Balthazar asked.

With

“King of Diatoran, are you making fun of me? You’ve already had the Diatoranian God of War on his way. Of course we have to show goodwill quickly!

“We hope that Diatoran can immediately retreat. We have no relationship with Vadesia and will only engage in trade with Diatoran. If you need any assistance in the future, feel free to ask,” the King of Tigrā said cautiously.

After hearing his words, Balthazar understood what was going on.

It turned out that the King of Tigrā was showing goodwill because of Caspian. Unexpectedly, Caspian’s action of flying a fighter jet to rescue his mother had scared the other side into confusion.

This would be.

ridiculous if word were to get out.

At this moment, Balthazar felt like Caspian’s actions were quite coincidental.

Although Caspian mobilized the fighter jet to rescue his mother—which was an abuse of power and authority in the eyes of others—his actions also frightened the neighboring countries.

“It’s too late now. The Diatoranian God of War has already taken action. It’s not easy to ask him to retreat. Besides, you previously sent spies to infiltrate Southlake City. I absolutely cannot accept your request!” Balthazar said firmly.

Upon hearing this, the King of Tigra became anxious. “King of Diatoran, we will obey each of Diatoran’s orders. Please ask the God of War to return.”

“If you want to show some goodwill, you should at least have some sincerity. Otherwise, I can’t guarantee what will happen when the Diatoranian God of War reaches the borders,” Balthazar said.

“I understand. I am willing to reduce the trade taxes between us and compensate Diatoran with a large sum of money,” the King of Tigra said nervously.

“Very well. Since you’re so sincere, I’ll have the God of War’s aircraft land in Churron first and then return directly,” Balthazar said deliberately.

He knew that Caspian’s plane would definitely land in Churron.

“Thank you, King of Diatoran!” The King of Tigra was relieved.

With that, Balthazar hung up the phone.

The high-ranking officials present all praised him one after another.

“Your Majesty is mighty and domineering! The other party was scared out of their wits!”

“Since Tigra is showing goodwill toward us, other countries will certainly be cautious as well. Maybe in a few days, Vadesia and Astronia will surrender to us!” The high-ranking officials present were discussing animatedly.

They thought that Caspian’s departure just now was due to a secret order from Balthazar.

However, only Balthazar knew that he hadn’t made any arrangements at all, and everything was just a coincidence.

“Your Majesty’s command is extraordinary. Our aircraft had just taken off, and the other countries had begun to show goodwill toward us!”

“His Majesty is wise and skillful. Lord Caspian will never compare to him.” Jerry didn’t forget to flatter Balthazar.

“Stop flattering me. Lord Caspian played an important role in getting Tigras to surrender,” Balthazar said.

He didn’t want to take all the credit.

To him, fame and fortune were all extraneous.

The sudden goodwill gesture from Tigras attracted the attention of many.

At Churron, Tom was the first to be carried into the factory.

Sherry and the other two women struggled, but they were eventually dragged inside.

They saw some strange equipment and several doctors and immediately felt scared.

It was apparent that the Jessop family truly intended to dig out their eyeballs.

“Hahaha! Everyone’s here!” Blake <

The situation was urgent, and Sherry could only gamble by revealing Caspian’s identity.

As long as she could intimidate the other party, her goal was achieved.

If the other party knew she had a son who was a War God, they definitely wouldn’t dare to act.

Upon hearing Sherry’s words, everyone’s expression froze.

“There are five War Gods in Diatoran. Who is your son?” Lacey asked cautiously.

“I’ll tell you the truth. I’m the mother of the Diatoranian God of War, Caspian!” Sherry said firmly.

In fact, she wasn't sure, but she was left with no choice.

Upon hearing this, Cecilia and Miranda were stunned.

Cecilia never imagined that her foster mother had such a powerful son.

Miranda was even more surprised to learn that Caspian's biological mother was right in front of her.

She now hoped even more that Caspian would appear to save them.

But what if Willow hadn't seen the texts?

"That's hilarious! You might as well say your son is the king himself! That would be more intimidating!" Blake laughed out loud.

"Hahaha! If your son is really Caspian, I will write my name backward!" Fergus said disdainfully.

"Are you insane? Look at yourself. How could you be the mother of the Diatoranian God of War?" Lacey also laughed.

Nobody believed Sherry's words.

They all thought she was bluffing.

Cecilia and Miranda also expressed some doubt.

They felt that Sherry was making things up to save herself.

"Whether you believe it or not, my son is really Caspian! If he knows that you dare to lay a finger on me, he will wipe out the entire Jessop family!" Sherry said.

+15 BONOS

She silently prayed that she was able to frighten them.

"Do you think saying that will make me afraid of you? Let me tell you. My father is a high-ranking official in Diatoran. He's a prominent figure to the king!" Lacey said proudly.

“What’s a high-ranking official when compared to the Diatoranian God of War?” Sherry said.

“Are you delusional? Do you really think you’re the mother of the God of War?” Lacey laughed.

“Caspian has been fighting everywhere, defeating the enemies of four countries and even killing the two champions, Robert and Viktor. This woman must be trying to scare us by saying her son is Caspian!” Fergus said disdainfully.

Of course they refused to believe that Sherry was the mother of the Diatoranian God of War.

“She thinks that just because Lord Caspian shares her surname, he must be her son! It’s simply absurd!” Blake said disdainfully.

The Jessop family didn’t believe Sherry’s words at all.

Cecilia and Miranda also began to doubt her.

If Caspian really was Sherry’s son, why had she never mentioned this before?

Looking at the faces of the Jessop family members, Sherry also felt somewhat embarrassed.

She wasn’t very sure, to begin with.

What if they just happened to share the same name? No matter how eloquently she spoke, the Jessop family simply wouldn’t buy it.

“What are you all standing around for? Inject them with anesthesia immediately!” Lacey said.

Kent was becoming extremely patient.

“Don’t you dare! Caspian is really my son. If you lay a hand on me, Caspian will surely wipe out the Jessop family from Churron!” Sherry shouted hoarsely.

“Inject the anesthesia immediately and shut her up! I’m curious whether the Diatoranian God of War will really come to save her. What a joke to think he will come and wipe us out!” Lacey snapped.

Who would dare to oppose the Jessop family in Churron?

“We didn’t expect that Lord Caspian would turn out to be your son, so we didn’t mention it.” Miranda also felt very surprised.

Sherry turned out to be Caspian’s biological mother.

Lacey couldn’t stand it anymore.

“Quit the act. Do you really think you know Lord Caspian? Take a good look at yourselves!” Lacey said impatiently.

“Don’t listen to their nonsense. They’re doomed today. Inject them with anesthesia immediately and then proceed with the surgery!” Fergus said fervently.

To avoid any more unexpected events, it was better to proceed with the surgery quickly.

“Yes! Hurry up and start. They don’t know Caspian at all. Once you inject them with anesthesia, just gouge out their eyeballs!” Blake said urgently.

He was feeling a bit uncomfortable with only one eye able to see.

No one believed the words of Miranda and Sherry. They both seemed to be acting.

After all, Miranda was just an ordinary woman. How could she possibly be related to the Diatoranian God of War?

Besides, Sherry was a farmer. How could she possibly be Lord Caspian’s biological mother?

This sounded too unbelievable.

“Why haven’t you taken action yet? Inject them with anesthesia immediately!” Kent said to his assistants.

The two assistants picked up a few syringes of anesthesia again, but they had been distracted by Sherry and Miranda.

It was only when they heard Kent's words that they snapped out of it.

"Alright! We'll do it now!" one assistant replied.

Just as the two assistants were about to act, an SUV roared in.

Aria was driving the vehicle. She was a member of Task Force Rose.

After receiving the order, she rushed all the way here and finally arrived.

+15 BONOS

At this time, there were about five to six hundred people near the abandoned factory.

Aria only had four subordinates.

Celian was with his men guarding outside when they suddenly saw an SUV rushing in.

"Stop!"

"What are you doing?"

"Stop the car immediately! Otherwise, we'll shoot!"

The men from the Jessop family and Celian's subordinates panicked as they shouted loudly.

They raised their guns and aimed at the SUV.

However, Aria had no intention of stopping.

The Task Force Rose members sitting in the passenger seat and the back seat had already raised their guns. They rolled down the window.

They began firing outside.

A burst of rapid gunfire ensued.

Aria focused on driving while the people in the back seat fired back.

They needed to buy enough time for Caspian to arrive.

Hence, Aria and the others deployed their combat plan early by launching a fierce attack from the beginning.

These people deserved to die for harming Lord Caspian's mother.

Celian's men were caught completely off guard and fell to the ground.

The sudden sound of gunfire outside startled everyone inside the factory.

The two assistants who were about to inject Sherry with anesthesia were shaken.

The anesthesia in their hands fell to the ground again.

"What's going on? Why is there such intense gunfire outside?" Lacey asked somewhat puzzled.

"If I'm right, it must be Caspian and his troops!" Miranda said excitedly.

She had already sought help from Willow, and Willow must've seen her message and asked Caspian to come save them.

+15 BONOS

Upon hearing Miranda's words, everyone looked at each other, startled. Could it be true that Caspian had arrived with his troops?

Lacey, Fergus, and Blake rushed to the door to see what was happening outside.

All they saw was an SUV rampaging outside, heading straight toward the factory.

There were several beautiful women in leather jackets sitting inside the car.

They were holding

Aria didn't know the situation inside the factory now, but her mission was to hold the other side back until Caspian arrived.

The five people in the car had to delay the time no matter what.

Aria drove the SUV and shuttled back and forth among the crowd like a beast.

Celian's subordinates were sent flying all over the place.

Seeing this scene, Celian was burning with anxiety. His bullets weren't working, and wasting time like this was not a solution.

"Get in the car and stop them!" he shouted.

This was the only idea he had right now.

Fortunately, there were many vehicles near the factory.

Celian and his men started driving toward Aria's SUV one after another.

When Aria saw the sudden change in tactics, she wasn't panicked as she had great confidence in her driving skills.

Under her continuous drifting, Celian's subordinates ended up colliding with each other.

The extremely high speed left them dumbfounded.

When Lacey and Fergus saw this, they felt uneasy.

"Who are these people?" Lacey asked.

"I don't know. But looking at their skills, they don't seem like ordinary people!" Fergus said.

"Could they be Caspian's subordinates?" Blake asked with fear.

At this moment, Miranda shouted loudly, "Yes, they're Caspian's subordinates! You're all doomed!"

In fact, Miranda didn't know who the people in the car were, but she wanted to intimidate the Jessop family.

Hearing her words, the Jessop family members were all somewhat panicked.

If Sherry and the others really knew Caspian, then they might really be in trouble.

Sherry was now full of anticipation. She really wanted to know if Caspian had sent someone to rescue her.

The planned transplant surgery could only be temporarily suspended now.

Listening to the intense gunfire outside, Kent and his assistants had no mind to prepare for surgery.

Aria drove the SUV and knocked down many cars. The chassis of the SUV was heavier than an ordinary car.

However, the opponents' vehicles kept increasing and were densely packed. Even with Aria's excellent skills, it was unlikely to evade perfectly.

But once surrounded, it would be very difficult to break out.

With no choice, Aria stepped hard on the accelerator.

She rammed into a Buick in front of her.

A loud noise resounded as the Buick was sent flying.

The entire driver's seat was crushed, and the driver died on the spot.

At this moment, Aria's SUV was unstoppable like a tank.

She continued to maneuver with her amazing driving skills among the approaching vehicles.

She had no choice but to continue delaying time.

"Keep firing outside! No matter what, we have to wait for Lord Caspian to arrive!" Aria shouted loudly.

The four members in the car rolled down the windows and picked up their SMGS to fire outside.

Meanwhile, Aria drove the SUV through the crowd.

Bullets were flying everywhere as the other four began to shoot wildly.

Many drivers were hit, and they lost control of the car and collided with one another.

Screams were heard outside the factory.

The Jessop family members were completely stunned to see this scene.

“Who are the people in the car? How can they be so powerful?” Lacey gritted her teeth.

“We’ve never offended such powerful figures before, right? Why would they bother us?” Fergus asked puzzledly.

Chapter 678 Chain Explosions.

The sudden explosion of the SUV caught Aria off guard.

However, the chain reactions helped Task Force Rose.

Fragments of the vehicles flew everywhere.

The people inside the factory were scared and quickly hid in the corners.

The explosion resulted in over a hundred casualties, with both the Jessop family and Celian’s men suffering losses.

Aria and her team quickly found cover during the explosion, so no one was hurt.

The explosion had ended, but the smoke hadn't cleared yet. The five of them rushed out again. They raised their SMGS and started shooting at the panicked crowd.

Celian's men were too busy escaping and had no chance to fight back.

The explosion just now caused many to panic, and they only wanted to escape. Hence, they didn't notice Aria and the rest.

They became live targets.

"How useless! Fight back quickly! Why are you running away!" Celian cursed angrily from a distance.

His subordinates only knew how to run away.

Upon hearing Celian's shout, the panicked men quickly calmed down and began to fiercely counter-attack Aria and her team.

Originally, there were over 500 people outside the factory. After the explosion, there were only over 300 left.

Not everyone among these 300 had guns as most only had steel pipes and knives.

There were only fifty to sixty people with guns.

Aria and her team naturally wouldn't foolishly stand still and shoot. They kept changing positions, using the surrounding area to find cover and shoot.

In such a situation with a large numerical disadvantage, they had to engage in guerilla warfare.

Aria's mission was to delay time until Caspian arrived. She didn't need to kill these enemies herself.

Since Caspian hadn't arrived yet, she dared not be careless. She led her few subordinates and began to seek cover.

At this moment, Tom looked extremely weak due to excessive bleeding.

"Tom, are you okay?" Miranda shouted.

“Tom, you mustn’t fall asleep. You have to hang on!” Sherry shouted loudly.

“Tom, you have to be fine!” Cecilia was also frightened.

At this moment, Miranda suddenly remembered that Kent was a doctor, so she said, “Dr. Vega, can you save Tom? Stop his bleeding or he’ll bleed to death!”

“Why would I save him? He’ll die sooner or later anyway!” Kent said disdainfully. He wouldn’t save someone unrelated to him.

“Isn’t it a doctor’s duty to save lives?” Miranda asked.

“I’m not the kind of doctor you think. I live only for my own benefit!” Kent said.

“Please, just help Tom stop the bleeding!” Miranda pleaded.

After spending some time together, Miranda developed some fondness for Tom. She couldn’t bear to see him bleed to death like this.

“Shut up. What are you yelling for? Tom will die sooner or later. Why bother saving him now?” Lacey said viciously.

“Lord Caspian’s troops will be here soon. It’s not too late to turn back now. As long as you can save Tom, I’ll plead with Caspian later and give you a way out,” Miranda said.

She firmly believed that the people in the SUV outside were Caspian’s subordinates.

“Who do you think you are to know Caspian? Besides, he’s with the King in Southlake City. How could he appear here? Stop talking nonsense,” Lacey said impatiently.

Outside the factory, the situation for Aria and the others became even more dangerous.

Fortunately, these people had not been trained before.

Aria and her team had undergone rigorous training and had participated in many battles. Each of them was a skilled fighter.

However, just as Aria and the others <

Aria and her four teammates continued to attack.

As they swung their knives, blood spurt everywhere.

As members of the special forces, they had more than enough skills to deal with these ordinary thugs.

The five heroic women became the center of attention among the crowd.

Their task was to delay time and await the arrival of Caspian!

“Who are you?” Lacey shouted at Aria and the others fighting in the crowd.

Lacey still hadn’t figured out who was trying to stop them.

“We’re members of Task Force Rose!” Aria shouted loudly.

To intimidate the Jessop family, she directly revealed their identity.

They were there to save Caspian’s mother anyway, so it didn’t matter even if their identities were exposed.

However, Celian’s subordinates had never heard of Task Force Rose, so they continued to attack Aria and the others.

Fergus and Blake didn’t know who they were either.

However, Lacey had heard rumors about Task Force Rose.

They were the most mysterious special forces organization in Diatoran. They were named Task Force Rose because all its members were female.

Lacey was stunned as she wondered why Task Force Rose would target them

Sherry was the former daughter-in-law of Dhord City's Massey family, so she had heard about Task Force Rose as well.

Hence, she was puzzled to know that Aria and the others were from that organization.

Why would Task Force Rose appear here? Could it be that they were sent by Caspian to rescue her?

At the thought of this, Sherry suddenly understood why Aria and the others were so skilled. They were all elite soldiers selected from thousands and had undergone intensive training. So, it was a piece of cake for them to deal with these ordinary people.

+15 BONOS

"Mom, what's Task Force Rose?" Blake asked in confusion.

"They're a mysterious special forces organization in the country. They're undercover in Diatoran to obtain important information and complete impossible extreme tasks!" Lacey said.

"Could they be Caspian's subordinates?" Blake exclaimed in surprise.

Lacey didn't know how to answer. After all, the information she knew was limited.

"Why did you come here?" Lacey asked Aria.

Aria and the others were still fighting and dealing with several attackers.

Aria stared at Lacey fiercely and said, "We're here under the command of Lord Caspian to rescue his mother!"

The Jessop family was stunned to hear her words. Could Sherry really be Caspian's mother?

Even Sherry was overjoyed. She was right! The Diatoranian God of War, Caspian, was her long-lost son!

Cecilia and Miranda saw hope. Caspian had sent someone to rescue them!

“Mom! They’re really Caspian’s subordinates!” Blake said anxiously.

“What’s there to panic about? Maybe they’re all impostors. This woman could n’t possibly be Caspian’s mother!” Lacey said.

“They said they’re members of Task Force Rose. And their skills are so toto i mpressive. How could they be fake?” Blake was still worried.

“Isn’t Tom skillful as well? But he’s not a member of any special forces team. These people might be his friends who came to rescue him.”

“They’re now at a disadvantage, so they just casually claimed to be from a powerful organization to intimidate us. Special forces wouldn’t casually reveal their identities.

“They have to be undercover. Once their identities are exposed, they won’t be able to continue to go undercover.

“In other words, they just want to use Caspian’s name to intimidate us. After al l, Caspian has been very famous lately after defeating several countries!”

Lacey quickly explained to dispel Blake’s worries.

She would never believe a farmer like Sherry would be Caspian’s mother.

“Hahaha! How could Lord Caspian have the time to bother with you people?! The more you say that, the more I want to kill them!” Lacey said arrogantly.

Such a thing sounded like a fantasy.

At this point, Aria and the others had already lost their strength to continue fighting.

However, they didn't fall down but just stood in place.

"When Lord Caspian arrives, he'll definitely kill all of you!" Aria said fiercely, her eyes flashing with coldness.

Celian's subordinates were intimidated by Aria's powerful force.

But they didn't believe her words. How could such a prominent figure like Caspian come to a small place like Churron?

"Fight back! Kill all of them!" Lacey saw that her men were hesitating and became angry.

The subordinates didn't dare to defy her wishes. They raised their weapons before charging toward Aria and the others.

"Lord Caspian, Captain Laina, we did our best!" Aria said before closing her eyes.

The other four also waited for the final slaughter. They had no more strength to fight back.

It was just a pity that they hadn't managed to hold on until Caspian appeared.

Sherry and the others saw that Aria and her team had lost their strength, but those thugs still continued to attack.

Sherry and Cecilia couldn't bear to watch any longer.

Just as Aria and the others were about to be killed, there was suddenly a deafening roar in the sky!

The thunderous sound caught everyone's attention.

They all involuntarily looked up at the sky.

They saw five military green fighter jets appearing in the sky.

The jets were majestic, causing everyone to freeze in place.

The thugs who were about to attack Aria froze in place as they were stunned by the com in the sky.

Lacey, Fergus, and Blake were also shocked to see the sudden appearance of the fighter jets.

Sherry, Cecilia, and Miranda were overjoyed when they saw the fighter jets. They all thought that maybe Caspian had sent troops to rescue them.

When Aria and the others saw this, they were relieved. They were very certain that this was Caspian's troops!

They had fulfilled their mission and managed to hold on until Caspian appeared! "Mom, what's going on with those five fighter jets?" Blake asked nervously. "Maybe there's a war in Diatoran, and these jets are going there to offer support, Lacey explained.

"But didn't they say that Diatoran has repelled all enemy forces? How could there still be a war?" Blake asked.

"Who knows? Those neighboring countries always like to cause trouble for Diatoran. Maybe there's a conflict at the border," she said casually.

However, to be on the safe side, Lacey immediately called her father to find out the truth.

She absolutely couldn't imagine that these five fighter jets were here to deal with her!

At this time, the memorial ceremony in Southlake City had already ended.

Jerry saw that his daughter had called him.

He walked to a corner and answered the phone.

"Lacey, why did you suddenly call me? What's the matter?" Jerry asked.

"Dad, I just wanted to ask how you are. It's been a while since I last called," Lacey said.

“I’m busy with important matters now. If there’s nothing else, call me later,” he said.

It wasn’t appropriate to answer a call casually on an occasion like this. If the King saw it, he would be in trouble.

“Dad! I do have something to ask you. I just saw several fighter jets appear in Churron. Is Diatoran at war again?”
