Chapter 681 The Paratroopers Have Landed

Everyone was stunned by the sight of countless paratroopers landing.

Aren

t these fighter jets supposed to land temporarily in Churron? Why are people jumping out of them?

Exactly! The fighter jets haven

t arrived at the airport yet, so what are these paratroopers going to do after jumping out?

It seems that they're planning to land here!

What on Earth is going on?

Everyone outside the factory started to discuss among themselves as they did not know what was going on.

The Jessop family members inside the factory were also feeling afraid upon seeing this.

Mom! Look, paratroopers are suddenly leaping out of the fighter jets. You called Grandpa just now, didn't you? Aren't those jets supposed to land temporarily in Churron? Blake asked in confusion.

I don't know what's going on either. Maybe they're in the middle of a military drill, Lacey answered.

She was unsure about that too.

I think something is not right, darling. Why did the fighter jets just happen to pass by where we are? Why did paratroopers jump out of the jets? Did you not ask the right questions? Fergus asked.

Dad's right! If the soldiers come here and see what's going on here, they surely won't just stand there and watch! Blake said, worried.

Lacey nodded. She found that to be true, and that made her feel anxious at that moment. That was why she planned to call her father again so that she could get some clear answers.

Sherry, Cecilia, and Miranda were extremely surprised to see the paratroopers who appeared all of a sudden. If they could land safely, they would surely put a stop to this.

On a memorial hill in Southlake City, Jerry pocketed his phone as he stood beside the King. At this moment, his phone rang again. When he saw that it was his daughter who was calling again, he somewhat resignedly went away and took the call.

What now, Lacey?

Dad, some paratroopers are leaping out of the fighter jets and landing in Churron! Why is this happening? Lacey went straight to the point.

What? Paratroopers? Jerry asked, somewhat confused.

Yeah! Didn't

you tell me that these jets would land temporarily in Churron? Why would these paratroopers go the extra mile and jump out of their aircraft, then?

Who knows? Maybe they're in the middle of a military drill, Jerry said calmly.

It's too sudden for it to be part of a military drill. Is there another secret mission or something that you don't know about? Lacey asked.

I'm not the commander, so I don't know much either. These paratroopers are none of your business anyway, so why are you so panicked? Jerry suddenly realized that something was not right. He then asked the question.

What should I do if they want to do something to me? Lacey asked nervously.

How is this related to you? Jerry asked, bemused.

The soldiers are landing near where I am. I am at the abandoned factory on the northern side of the city, Lacey explained.

Why did you go there? Tell me! Are you keeping something from me? Jerry said sternly. He knew his daughter well, and there was something off with her to him. She must have stirred up some trouble.

No, I am not! Lacey denied her father's accusation immediately.

Why are you asking me again and again about the fighter jets, then? Don't you worry. Caspian is the Diatoranian God of War, and he won't send so many jets after you, Jerry said. He could guess that Lacey was worried, so he explained further.

Chapter 682 Caspian Is Here

Dad! How can Sherry be Caspian's mother? I've run an investigation on her before. To make a living, she sells vegetables she plants herself in the countryside areas of Churron.

With how poor and undignified she is, how can she be the God of War's mother?

Lacey appeared to be nonchalant even now.

ry said

Tell me what happened again, and don't miss a single detail, Jerry's hurriedly.

He had heard about Caspian's background, but he only knew a little about it.

What if Sherry was really Caspian's mother? Jerry could not bring himself to think about it. His daughter seemed to have caused big, big trouble..

Who in Diatoran dared to ruffle Caspian's feathers? Caspian's reputation intimidated everyone in the world, and even the King had to take a step back when it came to him.

Lacey noticed that something was not right with her father's tone, which made her nervous as well. She told Jerry everything once more.

At this moment, the paratroopers were already halfway to the ground and had opened their parachutes. Even Sylvia had leaped out of a fighter jet..

Caspian and Willow prepared to jump out as well. When they were close to Churrion, Caspian taught Willow how to parachute from a jet. Willow appeared to be brave at first, but she was extremely afraid when it was about time to jump.

Caspian, I'm still scared. What if an accident happens? Willow said fearfully.

Stay on the jet, then. It ll land in Churrion Airport later, Caspian said. He was worried as well as Willow had had no parachuting experience. If an accident did happen, it would bring about irreversible consequences.

He had not wanted Willow to parachute from the jet, but she wanted to give it a try. Who knew that she would be scared at this moment?

I want to see Miranda and the others sooner, Willow said.

I know you feel anxious, but parachuting brings about high risk, Caspian said.

Or you can leap from the jet with me in your arms. ll feel more at ease, Willow. told him her idea.

+15 BONOS

No. These parachutes are specially made, and their weight capacity is limited, Caspian said no immediately.

He was the Diatoranian God of War. Of course, he would not take this risk. Although parachuting from a jet with his wife in his arms was very romantic, he would not take his life so lightly.

Fine, then. I ll go to you after the fighter jet has landed. Willow nodded. She dared not force it.

Just listen to me, Caspian said, pinching Willow s cheek.

Sure. Take care and be safe

Willow looked at Caspian lovingly.

Macy, who was about to jump out, was witness to Caspian and Willow s sappy exchange. She said impatiently, Are the two of you going to jump or not, Lord Caspian? I m not going to wait for you. I ll jump first.

If you can t wait, then jump, Caspian snapped exasperatedly.

Macy had gotten impatient long ago after all that waiting. She got ready and leaped.

Upon seeing how Macy had jumped out without any hesitation, Willow suddenly felt great admiration for her. Both of them were women, were they not? Why was she so different from the others?

The moment Macy leaped out of the jet, she exclaimed internally, Both of us are women, but why can Willow marry Lord Caspian while I m still single?

Willow, I won

t say more. I have to jump now, Caspian said. With that, he jumped out of the jet.

After Lacey told Jerry the gist of what You want me to plead to the King? How am I supposed to tell His Majesty that you ve done something so despicable? What if I lose my position because of what you ve done? Jerry snapped.

I know that I ve done something wrong, Dad. If you can save me from getting in danger, I ll listen to everything you say and never cause you trouble in the future, Lacey begged.

Fine. I ll try my best. Jerry sighed. He had no choice but to give it a try.

Okay, but you must be fast, or we ll be done for, Lacey said worriedly.

Got it. You can try to buy yourselves some time while I plead with the King, Jerry said.

Great. I ll wait for good news from your side, Dad. Lacey ended the call.

Jerry knew that this was a very urgent matter, and he had no choice but to shamelessly go to the King.

When Fergus saw that Lacey had ended the call, he asked anxiously, What s happening, darling? What are these paratroopers here for?

There s a high possibility they re Caspian s subordinates, Lacey said fearfully. There was no need for h to hide that from everyone else when they were already in this situation.

The Jessops were all shocked. Fergus and Blake were especially spooked. Both of them were shaking with fear.

If the paratroopers were indeed Caspian s men, they would surely die today as they had kidnapped Caspian s mother.

Kent and his assistant were afraid too. They were only accomplices, but Caspian would surely not let them off not when this was such a malicious act.

Sherry and Miranda were surprised and elated at the same time as they had thought that Caspian would not send any soldiers over. Looking at the Jessops, who looked resigned and defeated, Sherry believed that the paratroopers were Caspian s men.

If Caspian had already sent his army out, they would surely be rescued!

Sherry was definitely the most emotional at the notion of being saved. She wanted to see what her son looked like after he was all grown up.

+15 BONOS

Mom, the Diatoranian God of War has really sent his troops to save us. Is he really my brother? Cecilia said excitedly.

She was still in disbelief that she had such a powerful brother.

It's true, Sherry said with conviction. She kept on looking at those paratroopers, trying to look for Caspian among the throng.

That's amazing! I didn't expect to have such a powerful brother. No one will dare bully me in the future! Cecilia said proudly.

I'm not sure if he's willing to recognize me as his mother, though, Sherry said.

Miranda said, He'll surely do that, Sherry. Why would he command such a massive operation just to rescue you if he didn't want to?

Now, it was the Jessops' turn to panic. They could only hope that Lacey's father would save them.

Mom! The paratroopers are going to land soon. Think of a solution, quick! Blake said in alarm.

Don't get yourself in a panic. Your grandpa is pleading with the King. We just need to buy some time while we wait for him to get back to us, Lacey said.

All these paratroopers look so fierce, darling. I think we won't be able to drag it out! Fergus was at a loss for what to do.

After they land, we'll strike up a conversation to buy some time. It'll be fine as long as they don't attack immediately, Lacey said after giving it some thought.

She did not have any good ideas in mind either.

We've

Mom! Almost all of our men are going to be killed! What should we do? Blake was pacing around in a panic.

I don't have any good solutions either! We have no choice but to wait for your grandpa to get back to us! Lacey said helplessly.

If this goes on, we'll probably be long dead before your father replies to us! Fergus said hurriedly.

I can't do anything about this either. Now it seems that the paratroopers are unstoppable. We don't have much time left! Lacey was absolutely terrified.

She had thought that this operation would be infallible, but they had ended stuck in such a horrible situation instead.

up

On the memorial hill in Southlake City, Jerry approached the King and ventured cautiously, Your Majesty, did Caspian lead his troops toward Churron for an operation?

He's not going to Churron but to attack Tigra. What are you asking this for? Balthazar said.

The higher ups had assumed that Caspian was leading his troops to Tigra under Balthazar s command, which ended up scaring the other country witless. Balthazar went with it and said that Caspian was heading toward Tigrā.

However, he knew very well that Caspian s true objective was to rescue his mother.

I got word that Caspian s troops have landed near an abandoned factory in Churron, though, Your Majesty, Jerry said.

Balthazar s face darkened. He asked, displeased, From where did you obtain this information, Jerry?

Balthazar knew that Caspian was heading toward an abandoned factory on the northern side of Churron to rescue his mother. But he had not told anyone else about this, so where did Jerry hear this from?

Noticing Balthazar s expression, Jerry said nervously, I heard this from my daughter, Your Majesty.

Caspian s operations are confidential. How would your daughter learn about +15 BONDS them? Balthazar asked.

She s near the factory, and she happened to witness this, so she told me about it,

Jerry said cautiously.

This is none of your business, so don t stick your nose into it, Balthazar said nonchalantly.

Yes, Your Majesty. I was worried that Lord Caspian was keeping something from you, so I wanted to inform you about it, Jerry said. It would be great if he could manage to smear Caspian s reputation somewhat.

Caspian has fought in countless battles, and he is very dependable. Your concern about this matter is not needed. Balthazar did not tell Jerry about the objective of Caspian's expedition.

What if Lord Caspian is abusing his power and massacring people here and there, Your Majesty? Jerry asked.

Hearing Jerry's words, Balthazar finally realized that something was not right. He asked, Are you implying something, Jerry? Tell me the truth.

What do you mean by asking that? Also, why would your daughter just happen to be there when the paratroopers landed?

My daughter married Fergus Jessop from Churron. The Jessops are preparing to construct new buildings, so they went to the countryside for an observation. They happened across those soldiers and were shocked, so my daughter gave me a call.

Jerry fabricated a lie. Of course, he would not tell Balthazar about Lacey's wrongdoings.

I know you have reservations toward Caspian, Jerry, but you don't need to try and cause him trouble all the time. As long as your daughter does her own thing, he won't give her any trouble, Balthazar said nonchalantly.

Jerry knew that the situation called for immediate action. If he was to waste more time here, Caspian would probably attack his daughter soon.

Helpless, he could only tell the truth in its entirety.

Chapter 685 Her Mighty Brother

In an abandoned factory on the northern side of Churron, Caspian landed safely as well. He folded up his parachute before walking to the factory. Everyone else followed behind him.

Most of the fighters had been killed, and only a couple dozen people were left. Avon and several medics quickly went over to Aria and the others to give them emergency treatment.

Laina was extremely saddened by the sight of the severe injuries suffered by Aria and the others.

Most of the J family

s fighters were either dead or injured, while the others had run away in all directions. When Lacey and her husband and son saw this, they knew that they were totally done for.

However, there was nowhere they could run away to as there were paratroopers everywhere. How were they supposed to escape this place? If they attempted it, they would surely be killed by Caspian's men.

Caspian headed directly toward the factory. Sherry saw him. He was surrounded by his men and appeared to be mighty and powerful.

Although it had been more than twenty years since Sherry had last seen him, she recognized him at first glance. Perhaps this was because of the connection between mother and son related to each other by blood.

Caspian was no longer a baby in her arms but instead had become the whose reputation traveled the seas. Also, he came with his troops to rescue her when she was in grave danger.

Diatoranian God of War

Upon seeing this, Sherry felt like she was in a dream.

Caspian also felt emotional upon seeing everyone in the factory. He noticed Sherry too. Although this was the first time they had met, he could sense that Sherry was his biological mother.

Caspian

s thoughts had always been preoccupied with the identity of his parents. He h ad succeeded in finding his biological father and could be reunited with his mother now. This made him feel unspeakable emotions.

Looking at the wrinkles on Sherry's face, it was obvious that she had suffered after leaving the Massey family.

Miranda was emotional upon seeing Caspian. The moment she saw him, she finally felt relieved as she knew that he could resolve everything.

Cecilia, on the other hand, had only heard of Caspian's name and had never met him before. When she saw him come over, surrounded by a group of people, she could be certain that this was the famous Diatranian God of War. He was Caspian Lynch, who was also her brother!

Mom, is that mighty looking man Caspian, my brother? Cecilia said excitedly.

Yes, he is! Sherry nodded, her eyes rimmed with moisture. She noticed his resemblance with a younger Logan.

He's so cool! Cecilia said, delighted.

The Jessops were surprised to see Caspian come over. At this moment, they finally believed that Sherry was Caspian's mother.

Mom, Caspian's here! We're done for! Blake wailed.

D Don

Don't panic. We still have a chance. Your grandpa has his ways, and he can surely save us. Perhaps he's already convinced the King. Lacey was so nervous that she struggled with saying a coherent sentence.

At this moment, she was more terrified than everyone else.

When will Jerry get back to us, darling? If we wait for a second longer, we'll die!

Fergus was panicked as well.

When His Majesty learns about this, he ll let us go thanks to our relationship with my father, so don t worry, Lacey said, putting up a pretense of calmness.

Chapter 686 Sentenced to Death on the Spot

When Sherry saw Caspian, she was so overwhelmed with emotion that she c ould not speak.

Caspian looked at the woman across from him. Her face was wrinkled, and sh e looked quite old. The sight made Caspian s heart ache. He knelt in front of her and called softly, Mom!

He was the Diatoranian God of War, but his mother still had to suffer for so long. She only left the Massey family because he had gone missing.

This made Caspian feel sad. Luckily, they were reunited once more.

The people present were stunned upon seeing Caspian kneel in front of Sherr y despite being the Diatoranian God of War. He had never knelt, not even in front of the King!

The Jessops were also stunned. Caspian, who was such an important figure, was really Sherry
s son. They had planned to gouge her eyeballs out earlier! They were really c ourting their own deaths!

Sherry had initially been worried that Caspian would not call her his mother as he had just been a baby when they were separated from each other. Howeve r, Caspian knelt down in front of her, and she was touched by the sight.

Please stand up, Caspian. Sherry grasped Caspian s arm.

Mom! I'm sorry that you've been through so much. I've finally found you after so long! I'll make sure that you won't need to worry about your future ever again!

Caspian said emphatically.

Sherry looked quite worse for wear at the moment, but she would forever be Caspian's mother.

you went

You're not to blame. I left the Massey family in a fit of rage after missing, and I've been looking for you as well. I only started to notice you after you gained a reputation far and wide, Sherry said, eyes brimming with tears.

The members of Phoenix Vanguard were so touched by this scene to the extent of shedding tears.

Meanwhile, the Jessops were filled with terror at the sight of Caspian showing such respect for his mother. They had assumed that Sherry was nothing but a farmer, but she had suddenly become Caspian's mother.

How did you know that I was still alive and in Churron? Sherry asked in bemusement.

I had my subordinates investigate what happened in the past, and with that, I learned about you, Caspian said.

At this moment, Miranda called out. She was already in tears. Caspian, please save Tom now, quick! He's already passed out after losing so much blood.

Stunned, Caspian quickly asked, Where is he?

Caspian had heard about Tom's dangerous state before embarking on the journey to Churron, but he had forgotten about it when he saw his mother.

He's there! Miranda pointed at Tom. Sherry looked in that direction and saw Tom lying there with a pale face. He seemed to be barely hanging onto consciousness. He looked like he would die at any moment.

Caspian, Tom is in this state now because he saved us. You must try to save him, Sherry said.

Don't worry. I brought the best medic in the army with me, so Tom will surely be fine, Caspian replied.

He turned to the soldiers behind him and said, Have Avon come here immediately!

Yes, sir! An armored soldier ran out immediately to summon him.

Avon was treating Aria when the soldier came over, telling him, Mr. Long, Lord Caspian has asked you to go over there. We have someone who's seriously injured. and in danger of dying!

Sure. I'll head over immediately, Avon said.

He arranged for other medics to continue treating Aria and the o

Take them all down and execute them by firing squad! Caspian did not bother exchanging unnecessary words with Lacey. He need not ask the King for permission to execute unimportant people such as them. So what if Lacey was Jerry's daughter? He could still kill her!

The Jessops were terrified after hearing Caspian's order. Lacey said fearfully, You can't do anything to me, Caspian. Wait for 15 more minutes and the King's order will be conveyed to you.

Do you really think the King will spare you without regard for what you've done?

Caspian asked.

His Majesty will surely be lenient to me for my father's sake. If His Majesty hasn't issued any order after 15 minutes, you're free to do anything you want to me. Lacey was trying her best to buy more time as she was confident that her father would think of ways to save her..

It seems that you refuse to believe that you're doomed. I'll give you 15 more minutes, then, Caspian said nonchalantly. He knew that Balthazar would not spare someone like Lacey.

The Jessops were relieved to hear that Caspian was willing to give them 15 more minutes.

Back on the memorial hill, Jerry was still begging Balthazar for mercy. Your Majesty, my daughter did the wrong thing because she wasn't herself. Please, give her a chance to turn over a new leaf.

I won't do that. Lord Caspian has already informed me about what your daughter has done. In order to save your grandson, she had the underground forces in Churron intervene. She also wanted to gouge out someone else's eyeballs.

Talking about this alone is enough to make someone hate her, and it's only one of the wicked deeds your daughter has done. Who knows what other cruel things she has been up to?

A person like this shouldn't be spared as she'll only cause more harm! Balthazar said coldly./

Please, Your Majesty, listen to me. She must be feeling abject regret by now. As long as you're willing to give her a chance to be a whole new person, I'll discipline her strictly, Jerry said anxiously.

You saw what happened to Henry Stewart recently, didn't you? He also said that he regretted everything, and the Stewarts also begged for mercy, but Caspian remained unmoved.

They're both adults and thus should pay the price for their actions. If everyone is provided with a chance after committing a crime, what's the point of the Diatoranian law? Balthazar stated indifferently.

Jerry was rendered speechless by the King's words. He did not know what to say in response.

You failed to educate her as a father. Although she's already a middle aged woman, she remains cruel and ruthless. You're a factor in this as well, and you should bear responsibility.

I'm willing to be punished in her place, Your Majesty, Jerry said.

Are you willing to give up your life for her, then?
life for then? Balthazar said coldly.

Jerry shuddered. He took two steps back and said fearfully, Please! Your Majesty. I don't want to die yet.

spare me,

Jerry wanted to save his daughter, that was true. But he did not want to lose his life just like that.

Don't say that you're willing to be punished in your daughter's place, then. Her imminent death is set in stone, Balthazar replied icily.

Can you please spare her, Your Majesty? I've given my all to assist you, Your Majesty. You can sentence her to prison, but please, don't kill her, Jerry begged.

No. We're the symbol of Diatoran's power. If I abuse the law just because you're a

Chapter 688 In Serious Denial

I request to make a call to my father so that I can ask him how things are on his end. Lacey was still trying despite her imminent execution. She had to hear a clear answer or she would not be able to die in peace.

Untie her, Caspian ordered. Lacey was the kind of person who insisted on being in denial until the truth stared her in the face. Caspian must make sure she conceded from the bottom of her heart. She would know later what true despair meant.

Two armored soldiers untied Lacey, who quickly took her phone out and called Jerry.

Upon seeing how Jerry was rooted to the spot, Balthazar urged him, Why are you holding your phone but not making any calls? Have you thought it through? I

Will make a call to Lord Caspian and make my stance clear, Your Majesty. Jerry knew that he could not save his daughter at this point.

He might as well ensure he still had his job.

Stop dilly dallying, then. We will leave this place after you make the call. The Tigran diplomats have arrived in Dhord City, so we have to rush back there, Balthazar said.

Yes, Your Majesty! Jerry nodded. His hands were still shaking. What could he do, though? He was powerless to save his own daughter.

Right when Jerry was about to call his daughter, she called him. He took the call when he saw the familiar phone number. He asked sternly, What's up?

He was actually pretending to be calm.

How is the thing I told you about going, Dad? Is the King willing to release me? Lacey said anxiously on the other side of the phone.

I've already told His Majesty about this, Jerry said.

What did he say? Is he about to spare me because of my relation to you? Lacey asked.

Jerry did not know how he should break the news to Lacey. She would probably pass out if he were to tell her the truth outright.

Where
s Lord Caspian? Hand the phone to him. Jerry did not give Lacey a direct answer.

+15 BONDS

Hearing how calm Jerry sounded, Lacey made the assumption that the King had agreed to spare her. She said excitedly as she handed the phone to Caspian, My father wants to talk to you, Lord Caspian. .

Caspian was surprised to hear that. He and Jerry had always been at odds. What could Jerry say to him? Had he really convinced the King to spare Lacey?

He suddenly felt regretful. He should have executed them before reporting to the King.

What does he have to say to me? There s nothing we can say to each other, is there? Caspian was reluctant to speak to Jerry.

Lacey said gleefully, His Majesty has surely agreed to spare me. Quick, answer the phone.

The Jessops were all overjoyed upon hearing that.

Fergus said, Scared, Lord Caspian? Too chicken to talk to my father in law?

Blake added, Yeah, Grandpa s probably about to convey His Majesty s orders to you. Do you have what it takes to go against his command?

On the other side of the phone, Jerry was rendered speechless by their words . Why were they so stupid even when they were about to be executed?

I have nothing to fear. I believe in His Majesty. He ll never spare you! Caspian said firmly.

If the King wanted him to release the Jessops, Caspian would kill them anyway. As a general, he had the right to not listen to the King's orders. Even if he killed the Jessops, what could the King do to him?

Chapter 689 The Jessops Were Executed

I feel helpless too. You should've obeyed the law and been more disciplined, Jerry said before ending the call.

He was filled with helplessness at the thought that he could only watch his daughter die.

Dad! Dad! You can't abandon me! Lacey was still shrieking into the phone.

Caspian wrinkled his brows when he heard her screams. He waved his hand in the air and said to everyone, Execute them all!

Got it, Lord! The armored soldiers moved immediately, ready to take the Jessops and the doctors down to execute them.

We didn't do anything, Lord Caspian! You can't kill us! Isn't your mother still alive and well right now? Fergus wailed with all his might.

If I had been a bit late, my mother would've been dead long ago! Caspian said coldly.

This is not related to us at all, Lord Caspian! We were just paid by the Jessop family, and we didn't touch your mother either! Our crimes don't warrant a death sentence! Kent was also trying hard to get out of this situation as he felt wronged.

Cut the crap. A doctor without morals like you has probably done many harmful things. Why should I let a person like you live? Caspian remarked icily. He had no desire to talk to doctors like this at all.

Please spare me, Lord Caspian. I haven't lived for long enough. I don't want to die! Blake was shaking from head to toe.

Now you regret it? It's too late. After this cold comment, Caspian stopped talking to these people.

Lacey knew that Caspian was set on killing them and that begging him to spare them would be futile. She suddenly thought of Sherry, Caspian's mother. Caspian was a good son, so he would naturally listen to his mother.

If she could touch Sherry's heart, the family would have a way out.

I did something to offend you because I didn't know who you were, Ms. Sherry. I hope that you can forgive us, Lacey said to Sherry.

I won't meddle in my son's business, Sherry said.

Lacey continued to beg her, Please, have Caspian spare us!

+15 BONOS

Your efforts will be futile no matter how long you speak. You've committed heinous deeds, so I won't plead with him on your behalf, Sherry said coldly.

Despair overcame Lacey at this moment. The soldiers dragged the Jessops and the doctors out. They had them kneel on the ground before aiming their guns at the criminals' heads.

Mom, I haven't married yet! I don't want to die! Save me! Blake was so scared he lost control of his bowels.

I'm going to be executed too. How am I supposed to save you? We're in this state because you caused trouble! Lacey snapped. She was angry because she knew that her death was inescapable.

She had tried everything she could, and even her father had abandoned her. She was completely at her wit's end.

You can't put all the blame on me, Mom! You were the one who proposed the idea of gouging her eyeballs out! Blake wailed.

How dare you talk back, you brat? Lacey cursed.

Blake regretted everything. His family would be killed now because he injured someone in a car crash.

Corpses were piled up high outside the factory. Blake took a look, and he almost passed out. He would not have made things difficult for Sherry and the others if he had known that they would end up in this state.

Who would have known that the woman his car had collided with

Chapter 690 Kill Them All

Moving to Southlake City sounds nice, Caspian, but I still have to go to school. How can we deal with that? Cecilia asked worriedly.

Don't worry, Cecilia. Leave everything to me. I'll transfer you to Southlake High. My old homeroom teacher, Ms. Wildman, is still teaching there. I'll have her tutor you.

She has taught at the school for a long time, and she's better than your teachers in Churron for sure, Caspian said.

That's great. I need not worry, then, Cecilia said.

Only then did Caspian notice the many injuries on Cecilia's and Sherry's skin. He asked, What happened to you? Why did you get hurt?

Blake Jessop's lackeys beat us up, Cecilia answered.

Did they come here with Blake today? Caspian asked.

I don't think so. I didn't see them today.

Suddenly, Caspian's face darkened, and he looked quite murderous. Upon noticing that, Sherry asked worriedly, What's with you, Caspian? You aren't planning to kill more people, are you?

You need not concern yourself with this, Mother. I'll have a doctor conduct a comprehensive health inspection for you two later, Caspian said.

I'm fine. These injuries didn't break the skin, so there's no need to trouble your medics, Sherry said.

Tom had wanted them to go to the hospital the previous night, but Sherry had found it pointless. Their injuries were not serious. The skin just looked somewhat found it pointless. Their injuries were not so bruised.

No, you must listen to me, Caspian said firmly.

Noticing that Caspian's words brooked no refusal, Sherry could only nod.

Stay here. I'll go out for a while, Caspian said before leaving the place.

- were.

He walked over to where Aria and the Aria had ended up seriously injured to save Caspian's mother. As the Diatoranian God of War, of course,

Caspian must visit her and express his thanks.

Aria happened to regain consciousness at this moment. She saw Caspian

Caspian!

Gave her a start. She called emotionally, Lord

She was even about to stand up and salute in respect, but she could not due to her serious injuries. Meanwhile, her four comrades were staring at Caspian, their gazes burning.

They had not met Caspian ever since joining Task Force Rose, but the man was currently in front of them.

Of course, the sight of him excited them to no end. Everyone in Diatoran idolized Caspian.

Don't move around, Aria. You're heavily injured, so there's no need for the salute, Caspian said hurriedly.

Thank you, Lord Caspian! Aria nodded and lay down. The other members of Team Rose nodded in respect to Caspian as well.

Oh, you've woken up. You gave me a shock, you know. Laina exhaled in relief when she saw that Aria was awake.

You're here too, Captain Laina! Aria smiled joyfully. Her gaze had been focused on Caspian, so she did not notice Laina at all.

I heard that you were heavily surrounded, so I came here as well, Laina said. Got it. Is Lord Caspian's mother safe now? Aria asked hurriedly.

They're all safe and sound, all thanks to your efforts in buying time. Caspian nodded.

That's great. I thought I failed in my mission, Aria said.

You've done well. The five of you managed to drag it out for so long despite the disadvantage in numbers. You've exceeded what was expected of you, Caspian said.

He then turned to Laina. They ve fought valiantly, so you must reward them handsomely and promote them after we re turn.
