Avery's pov

My pulse raced as fear seized every fiber of my being, a cold sweat tracing down my spine in alarm. With wide eyes, and my heart in my throat I make haste to the door.

But as expected Kyan's arms reach out and he jerks me back until my back slammed against the closet door hard. A shocked painful scream tore from my throat as the pain shoot up my spine.

"You're trying to run away before the fun starts?" He taunted. gripping my arm until I hissed in pain.

"Release me!" I cried out loud, hoping someone could hear and come over and stop Kyan from whatever he was thinking of doing. Kyan was not only much bigger than me but was stronger. fighting him off would be a struggle.

He chuckle dryly "No one will come to help V." he mocked. "They probably think I'm f*cking your brains out since everyone now knows how easy you are."

As his shadow loomed over me like a huge tree that branched out. fear clutched me even more and my heart sank into my stomach. The look in his eyes, the emotionless glaze. A sob shook in my throat and I fought him off. trying to take my nails across his arms.

"Let me go Kyan!" I yelled in fear. gasping and falling just at the edge. of the bed when he backhand me across my face. The sting burned my skin. but the impact of my face smacking the floor was more painful.

My ears rang and my vision blurred I could have sworn I heard Xade's voice through the phone, yelling but am not sure if I was just imagining it or not.

A scream tore from my throat when his fingers wrap around my hair to force me to my feet. pushing his hand on my mouth to muffle the sounds of fear that roared out of my mouth.

As the taste of his bitter palm touch my lips. I opened my mouth and bit him, reaching behind me to remove his fingers from my tresses. He hissed, cursing me as my teeth sank into the flesh of his palm.

Freeing me. I don't waste time as I whirl around and bolted for the door. screaming help. But as my fingers brush against the cold metal. my head is jerked back once more.

You f*cking bi*ch!" Kyan hissed, pulling me in his arms. I turn around and kneed him between his legs. He let out an coph sound. retching out a cough.

As he doubled over in pain I seized the opportunity and race to the door, determined to get out and never come back here again.

But as victory and freedom gleamed in front of me, the dark branches from the tree entwined with my clothes and with a harsh tug. I am forced back. just breaths away from the door handle.

I cried for help, tears now running down my cheeks until I can taste them on my tongue. My cries don't seem to reach anyone or maybe they just didn't care. Am I really not able to escape this b*stard?

My feet gave way under me when he pulls me back harshly, this time I land on the bed, just beside the phone. I can hear his voice clearly now, hear the panic, the rage. Xade.

"Xade." I sobbed. feeling st*pid to have walked right into a trap.

"I'm coming baby." Xade voice broke out from the phone. "Hold on. I'll be there. Don't give up lighting."

Kyan laughed cruelly "Awe you two are so sweet." He taunted, just as he gripped my ankles and tug me harshly "Perfect couple."

I wrestled, crying out for someone to help while he tried to crawl on top of me. But even with all that fighting. I am no match for someone with his strength."Did you give Xade this much trouble? You like it rough?"

I yelled when he grabbed my chin and squeezed hard, causing my bottom teeth to ache in pain. I try to bring my knee up again, but this time he is smart to press his hips on my thigh to prevent my knee from making contact with his family jewels.

"Kyan stop!" I shrieked as his hands wrestle to touch me in places I didn't want his nasty fingers to grasp I cried when he squeezed my breasts hard and groaned on top of me.

Tears soaked the sheets under me, the heavy weight of him plastering me down to the bed in defeat. However the voice of Xade coming from the phone made me not want to give up. SEARCH THE website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

I scratch at his face, gasping under his palm when he press it roughly over my mouth to stifle my cries of help. Choking, I tried to move under him and grab his hair. He hissed, moving from one of my fingers that sought for his eyeballs.

"You bit*h!" He hissed. "Stay f*cking still godda*mit!" He snarled, pressing me down further into the bed until my hips hurt by the sheer force of his weight.

"Or I'll force you to." He warned, eyes glistening with promise to hurt me. I swallowed my cry, helplessly thrashing about so he'd release me. But as I look into his cold eyes, I realize that he had every intention to hurt me today. He'd not let me go. And that frightened me.

Avery's pov

His heat surrounded me, scorching me in a way that made me feel as if I was being burnt alive. As if I was an ant under a magnifying glass under the scorching sun. His scent filled my space, choking me until I couldn't breathe..

His cold eyes. He pinned me with hatred I had never known he could give. The boy I once knew, he was no longer in the mirrors of his soul. A beast had taken over and rode his bones and flesh.

"Don't you like it when I'm on top of you, Avery?" He tsked, pressing his palm more onto my mouth. My teeth ache by the "ce, and my cries muffle even more. The pain was excruciating.

The metallic taste of my blood filled my mouth and I know that he must've damaged my lips or gums with the amount of pressure he applied to my mouth. Tears rolled down my eyes and he sneered.

"Had me waiting for months! Months! Only to give it up for your d*mn best friend." He sneered, pressing his hips closer on my thigh.

"You wasted my time Avery!" He spat. His other hand skin down my sides and make me shiver in disgust. But in his sick head he thought that shiver meant something else.

He laughed. "Your girl shivered in pleasure Xade. I guess she does like it à little rough." Search The website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

“I’ll f*cking bury you when I get there.” Xade snarled, sounding more animal than man, which made a shiver race down my spine by how intimidating he sounded just now.

Kyan laughed, however I saw something shift in his eyes, glazing. Fear. Uncertainty.

“You won’t get there in time a*shole. Let me have a little taste at least, I had her first anyway.” Kyan mocked, and move his hand to the phone. He presses something and Xade’s voice stops.

My gut twisted. No.

“Let’s not have him disturb us babe,” Kyan’s eyes flashed once more, losing the uncertainty he had spotted a while ago.

I cried, his face turning blurry because of the tears my eyes. voice was the only thing keeping me from giving up. Hearing him made me believe that I had a chance.

But now. Now I’m all alone with this b*stard on top of me. His breath reeking of desperation and hatred. The fear in my stomach curled into an uncomfortable ball and I seek for freedom.

Vomit rose in my throat when his disgusting lips land on my neck, and his groan reach my ears. As I try to print myself into the bed to avoid him, his weight only added to my destruction.

I whimpered because he was right. I was pathetic. The signs that something bad would happen when I step foot into that room was clear as day....yet I still entered.

The room spins, filts and darkens as shadows around me creep in. Fright hold me in its ugly clutch as Kyan laughed even louder, enjoying that I was helpless under him.

“Where’s your precious Xade now? Hmm, he’s nowhere.” Ilis voice is harsh against my car. “It should have been me.” He gripped my hip and squeezed. “It should have been me.”

My fingers wrap around the steering wheel hard, the skin tight over my knuckles as they turn bone white from my harsh grip.

I have always hated parting with her, but it has since become worse. As I look at her disappearing figure as I drive off, I contemplate if to go back and swoop her in my arms once more and kiss her. SEAR*ch the website to access chapters of novels early and in the highest quality.

But I knew if I did that, there was no way I’d be able to leave again. So with a tight jaw, I drove away. Her scent fills the car, fills fills my being and it is enough to case the beast inside me that wants to go to her.

I slowed down beside a popular five star restaurant eyeing for some time now. I’ve asked her a couple times to dine nere with me but she refused seeing as it’s really expensive. Hopefully she’ll agree now that we’re officially dating.

I'd like to spend all my money on her every single dime. She was worth so much to me. I have the intention to be the best boyfriend my girl has ever had even if it may be for a short time. So planning our first date down to the last detail was the best thing to do. It had to be perfect, as perfect as her.

I strode in the restaurant, walking over to the manager's office since I had already set an appointment to speak to him to go over the details for tonight.

I rented out the entire restaurant for what I had planned, so it should only be the two of us. My body buzz with excitement just thinking about the way her pretty eyes will glow with the decor that is suppose to brighten up the area.

A few minutes going over every detail, Xander pushes into my head. 'that red jacket, can I have it?'

I rolled my eyes inwardly, leaning my finger on my temple as I try to listen to both my brother and the manager. 'No. Don't take my s*it.'

'Come on man, you know red suits me better than you. And you barely wear the d*mn thing! It needs to be seen on a hot body. AKA mine.'

My jaw sets. 'Don't you have to hurry up home before dad gets there?'

Dad mind linked Xander earlier in the morning to run an errand for him in the pack since he was out of town. Xander not wanting dad to know he was here with me agreed, so he has to leave soon to get there before dad finds out he lied and also find out about what happened here between Kyan and me.

'Glad to know you're going to miss me little brother' I sarcastically 'but yes that's why I'm asking you for that red jacket

I am about to respond to him when my phone starts buzzing. I held up my finger to the manager when a name flashes on my phone. It's Kyan. He should be out of the hospital by now, and seeking revenge.

I bet he's calling to tell me off. Even though I paid his hospital bills and Xander gave him extra cash to keep shut about what happened, I didn't think he'd just let this go easily.

I frowned, indecisive if to answer him or not.

'So can I take the red jacket or not? Xander whined in my head, reminding me that he was still there.

'Shut up Xander.' I snapped. 'That Kyan a*shole is calling-

I held up my finger to the manager once more, my jaw ticking in irritation. I must look kind of weird just staring at my phone while it

'At this rate you'll run my pockets dry kid,' Xander cursed. 'Answer the d*mn phone and I'll take care of whatever he wants.'

With a groan and hiss, I swipe my thumb over the answer button before it ended. Holding my finger up for the impatient manager, I lift the phone to my ear, growling out "What!"

However my bones stiffen and a cold sweat draped down my eyebrows and spine when I hear her scared shaky voice. Avery.

Defeat. Helplessness. Pain.

Those emotions run through me like a tidal wave, tugging on my last restraints to not give up. The earlier words of Xade promising to come pushed through, however the snagging of my breath from Kyan's fingers around my neck made it impossible to grasp those words as my last hope.

I try to scratch at his hand that swathe around my neck like steel, but it doesn't do much since I am losing all the little strength I had. The fear of how all this would turn out but into my flesh like little restless ants.

All I could do was have the tears of defeat roll down the corners of my eyes.

As the shadows of darkness creep closer to me, my breathing begin to slow with his eyes being the last in my vision. Kyan. A monster.

The noise around, which had only had been my struggle sounds and his grunts of anger and hisses, became deafening as darkness wrapped around me. However before I could fully go into my consciousness, a loud banging noise pierced through my eardrums followed by a very bone-chilling animal snarl.

It was the last thing I manage to hear before a wave of darkness consumed me fully.

Hearing her panicked voice blinded me. I'm driving fast through the streets, not caring that I was being reckless. I had to get to her. I had to.

The fear of not getting there in time. The chilling horror of not knowing what exactly Kyan was doing to her. F*ck! I slammed my hand on the steering wheel, my claws digging into the cover.

My gums ached as my canines push out. If someone were to really look inside the vehicle they'd see me shifting before their eyes. Thankfully with the speed I was going they'd not be able to really grasp what was going on.

My heart thrust against my ribs, my beast trembling to be free of my human flesh to hunt and to hurt the a*shole who dared to touch our mate.

Kyan.

I'll make sure this time around he won't be breathing when I'm done with him.

A snarl left my lips, my beast so close to the surface, my human soul withering away to the back. I try to ground myself, not wanting to expose myself to the humans.

I stepped on the gas, barreling through the streets. I get honks, curses flinging at me from every direction, but I don't care as my main focus and priority was to get to V before the sick b*ta*d does anything to her.

It's a good thing I was a bit closer. If was back at my penthouse I'm not sure I'd get here sooner.

As I skid to a stop beside the dorm building, I reach for my hoodie in the backseat and throw it over me in haste. Since my beast was challenging me to take the reins, my body was not all human.

The hoodie should be able to hide some of the visible signs. Flinging the door open, I don't bother to even close it as I rush inside the building, pushing my hands in the pocket of my hoodie to block the sight of my claws coming out.

'Don't do anything to brash! I'm on my way! Xaden warned in my head just as I burst through the doors of the building. Someone lets out a surprised sound but I don't turn to face them to see who.

'He's hurting her, we're far gone from not doing anything. I'm going to make the f*cker pay!' I snapped, blocking him off from communicating with me as I rush up the d*mn stairs with abnormal speed, but I don't care at the moment as my focus is on getting to Avery as quick as I

My beast is clawing at my insides and the pain is not more powerful than the pain of knowing that I may not have had time to stop whatever that b*stard is doing to her. I focus on my senses, trying to hear them. Trying to hear anything.

My beast nearly submerge when we cannot pick up her voice but instead, we can hear her faint heartbeat. Not thinking clear, I snarled, not caring when I used my unnatural speed and got to the room in seconds. I burst through the door and the sight before me made me lose any control I had of my beast and in seconds he rupture through my human flesh.

The savage rage and need to kill the m*therf*cker was too great to care about my exposure to the human world. As my beast lunges for him, his terrified shocked eyes bulge and his fingers loosen on my mate's neck as he crawls off of her.

There are many voices behind me, all sounding terrified and panicked. At the moment, so blinded by blood lust, I don't care that I am exposed and later on I would be in grand trouble with the council and my father.

All I can think about is having Kyan's dead body under me.

"How did a wolf' even get in here!?" Another voiced out their confusion. "It's so huge, it doesn't look normal."

"That's Xade!" Kyan yelled, sobbing and wailing as my wolf let go of his ankles to tear through his upper thigh.

What the hell does he mean that's Xade?! That's clearly an animal!" Someone said confused."

"Stop just standing there and get this animal off me!" Kyan wailed in pain when my teeth sink into the bone of his knee, snapping it and making sure he'd not ever be able to walk again. Or perhaps I'll just finish him off here.

Kyan pleaded, his voice bouncing off the walls, but it went on deaf ears as my wolf hungrily tore through his skin until I felt something hard hit my back. The splinter of wood that fell beside me made me realize that someone smacked the small wooden chair desk on my back.

I let go of Kyan's flesh and bones to see who and saw one of the guys still holding the leg of the chair in his hand, his eyes wide with terror when I turn to stare at him. He backs away, his hands up in surrender, the wooden leg falling to the floor with a loud thud.

And then he and the others scramble away while screaming and yelling that they'll call the cops and animal control to take care of it 'me'. "Don't leave me!" Kyan wailed, bringing my beast's attention back to him.

I snarled, staring down at my masterpiece. Both his legs are torn, torn, blood oozing out. If he didn't get medical attention soon, he'd bleed out.

Fear clung to him like a second skin, his eyes bulging as my wolf snapped its jaws. "Wait!" He cried, lifting his hand as a way to 'protect himself. "I'm sorry. I just wanted to scare her. I promise I wouldn't

His eyes plead for me to not kill him but my beast is hungry for his flesh and blood, his pain. "Please man." his voice trembles and it's funny how he sounds completely opposite to how he had on the phone.

Now he's the one helpless, crying...begging.

"Please man," he wailed, snot running down his nostrils to the top of his lip. "Or whatever you are. Please, I swear on my life I wasn't going to go far with her."

His cries and lies don't register, however, a stir and a faint voice made my beast freeze. "Xade," she called out to me, her fingers twitching as she wakes up.

"Go." Xander has clenches as he takes a peek behind him down the hall. No one was near, everyone was scared of me. From what I can pick up, all heartbeats were downstairs.

When I made no move to leave he snapped angrily. "Go now Xade! Right the f*ck now before they come!" He emphasized on they and I knew exactly who they were. The council.
