

Love Me Or Leave Me Chapter 101

“You still won’t agree to a divorce? Rebecca asked incredulously, her voice trembling with disbelief.

As she spoke, Rebecca reached for the divorce agreement and stood up, ready to leave. What was the point of wasting time there with him if they weren’t going to divorce?

Debra stood up alongside Rebecca, preparing to leave as well.

“Rebecca, I came here to discuss the divorce! Theodore exclaimed anxiously, grabbing Rebecca’s arm.

Debra swiftly pulled out a self-defense baton and aimed a strike at Theodore’s grip on Rebecca’s arm.

Theodore’s face changed instantly, and he quickly withdrew his hand.

Glaring fiercely at Debra, Theodore then turned to Rebecca, pleading, “Let’s sit down and talk this through, can we?”

“Rebecca, there are many things between us that need clarification to avoid regrets in the future, don’t you think?” he continued urgently.

“And…”

“Even if you don’t think for my sake, think for the sake of our two children. Do you really want them to grow up without a father?” Theodore pressed.

When Rebecca heard Theodore mentioned their children, she scoffed coldly. Displeased, she turned to him and said, “Theodore, how dare you bring them up?”

Theodore’s anger flared at her words. “Rebecca, stop being so unreasonable! Yes, I suggested you have an abortion, but that was only when you were three months pregnant. The embryo was small then but now that they are born, things have changed!

“They are living, breathing beings now, and they’re my children. I should step up and be a good father to them, don’t you think so?” Theodore insisted.

Debra didn’t hesitate. With a swift motion, she kicked Theodore in the midsection.

Caught off guard, Theodore stumbled and lost his balance, crashing forward.

At that moment, a waiter arrived with their ordered drinks. The door swung open, and Theodore's head collided loudly with it.

Startled, the waiter accidentally spilled scalding coffee all over Theodore as he fell.

Theodore, in pain from both the impact and the hot coffee, trembled involuntarily and scrambled to the side.

Once he regained his composure, his face darkened with anger.

"Sir, are you alright?" the waiter asked nervously, trying to assist Theodore.

"Did you get a burn?" the waiter inquired anxiously, hastily wiping away the spilled coffee from Theodore's clothes.

Rebecca was taken aback by Debra's sudden action. She hadn't anticipated such a decisive move, which was literally a kick.

"Let's go," Debra said firmly, taking hold of Rebecca's hand and leading her out.

Reacting instinctively, Rebecca followed suit behind Debra.

"Wait," Theodore reached out again, catching Rebecca's hand unexpectedly.

But then Theodore remembered the impact of the baton earlier. In a reflexive moment, he quickly let go of Rebecca's hand, apprehensive about holding onto her again.

"I'll sign it" Theodore ground out through clenched teeth.

Today was supposed to be about discussing their divorce. He nodded to finalize things with Rebecca so he could marry Jenny. Otherwise, his father wouldn't support him.

If his father ended up handing over all the company shares to Gifford, Theodore couldn't handle the consequences.

Rebecca and Debra were taken aback by his resolve, both turning to look at Theodore in surprise.

Theodore appeared utterly disheveled in Rebecca's eyes – she had never seen him look so defeated. Just moments ago, he had been struck, kicked, and spilled with hot coffee...

A year ago, Rebecca might have felt sorry for him. But now she felt strangely indifferent. She almost believed that Theodore deserved it all. These were consequences he had to face.

They returned to the privacy of the room. The waiter discreetly exited and closed the door behind him.

Rebecca retrieved the divorce agreement and handed it to Theodore once more.

This time, Theodore didn't argue. He flipped through the document and scrutinized its contents carefully. With each passing moment, his brow furrowed deeper.

"Rebecca, I can't agree to you having sole custody of the children. I'm their father and I have every right to be a part of their lives. Theodore said, meeting Rebecca's gaze with calm determination.

Debra, impatient and direct as ever, interjected, "You've said enough. So, are you signing it? This is the only divorce agreement we're offering. Sign it if you're serious about it. If not, we can drag this out. We have all the time in the world, you know."

Theodore closed his eyes, took a deep breath, then turned to Debra with a cold smile. "If I'm not mistaken, wasn't it Charlie who exposed the Edwards family's illegitimate children scandal?"

"Is Charlie planning all this so he can marry Rebecca once we divorce?" Theodore mocked.

Debra frowned at his words, "Why do you talk so much nonsense?"

Theodore looked at Rebecca and continued, "If my sources are correct, Charlie's mother has been arranging blind dates for him these past few years. All candidates are ladies of prestigious families.

"Rebecca, do you really think you have what it takes to marry him and become the lady head of a wealthy family?" Theodore sneered

With that said, Theodore handed over the divorce agreement, picked up a pen, and swiftly signed it.

Driven by self-interest, he was willing to give up everything, including Rebecca and the two children he claimed to care about the most.

Chapter 101-

Debra was surprised that Theodore actually signed. She quickly look the signed document, checked it several times to ensure there were no issues, and then handed it to Rebecca.

Rebecca took the pen and signed her name on the document.

With the divorce agreement settled, the process at the Courthouse would be much simpler.

Debra checked the time on her phone. It was 4 PM now, and the Courthouse closed at 5:30 PM. They had an hour and a half, which was enough time to get everything sorted out today

“Why don’t we head to the Courthouse now? You can get the divorce license directly a month from now!” Debra exclaimed excitedly.

Rebecca looked at Debra and nodded with a smile. “Okay.”

Meanwhile, Theodore frowned irritably.

Nevertheless, they left the cafe together and headed to the Courthouse.

Inside the divorce office at the Courthouse, the hall was bustling with couples waiting to finalize their separations.

Debra, after a brief pause, pulled out her phone and started distributing money to the couples ahead of them in line, with each pair receiving 200 dollars. She politely asked if they could allow Rebecca and Theodore to move up in the queue.

The couples waiting, already resigned to their own marital endings, were taken aback by this unexpected gesture.” Nonetheless, they all agreed without any fuss.

Money falling from the sky wasn’t something to pass up, especially for just one spot. They were fine with being a bit delayed, after all, what was a little extra time in line?

Debra, however, was nervous. Only she knew how much effort had it taken to convince that scoundrel to agree to the divorce.

They had endured so much, and now, finally, he was the one pushing for it, even if it meant giving up custody of their children.

This needed to be done swiftly, and delaying the divorce any longer would be a shame to them.

Love Me Or Leave Me Chapter 102

Debra's move to buy their place in line with money further darkened Theodore's expression. Debra was truly impatient, get to finalize the divorce between him and Rebecca.

With the financial boost, Rebecca and Theodore jumped straight to the front of the queue without any delay, ready to proceed with their appointment.

The staff behind the counter wore neutral expressions. After routine inquiries, they produced the necessary documents for signing.

Rebecca and Theodore both signed the papers, effectively completing their divorce appointment.

After the mandatory one-month cooling-off period, they could return to collect their divorce license.

Debra's face was beaming with a radiant smile.

Seeing Debra so happy made Rebecca feel quite happy too, but occasionally, when she glanced at Theodore out of the corner of her eye, she couldn't help but feel a bit uncomfortable.

She knew why Theodore was in such a hurry to sign the divorce agreement—Jenny.

This man, in the end, was just like this. He wasn't worth her spending the rest of her life with him.

Debra also glanced at Theodore, and she was increasingly disapproving of him.

If Becky ever met her prince charming who was willing to cherish her for a lifetime, Debra would surely grow fonder of him over time.

As Debra thought, she held Rebecca's hand happily. "Let's go home."

Regardless, they had achieved today's goal.

The Carter family's car had been waiting outside the Courthouse, ready for Rebecca and her mother, Debra. They climbed in and settled into their seats as the vehicle swiftly pulled away from the curb.

Theodore watched silently as the car gradually disappeared from view, His hand, absentmindedly slipping into his pocket. clenched slightly as he contemplated the turn of events.

In Theodore's mind, there was no possibility that Charlie would marry Rebecca

He was convinced that once he resolved the issues surrounding the Edwards family, he could eventually win Rebecca back.

He believed that in time, she would come to realize who truly deserved her love and trust.

With that in mind, he got into his car and ordered his driver to leave the place.

Meanwhile, inside the Carter family's car, Debra was beaming with joy. Unable to contain her excitement, she eagerly pulled out her phone and shared the news in their family group chat.

Debra: [I have some good news!]

Debra: [Theodore signed the divorce agreement!]

Chapter 102

Debra: [I just accompanied Becky and Theodore to the Courthouse to arrange the divorce, and all procedures were successfully completed]

As soon as the good news was sent out, the family immediately replied.

Patrick: [Good job!]

Charlie: Congratulations, congratulations, congratulations Wiping Becky the best in getting your divorce license sooner!!

Bryce: [Great!]

Adrian: [Congratulations, Becky J

Rebecca also glanced at her phone, observing the flurry of messages in the group chat. Even through the screen, she could feel the genuine happiness and support from her family.

Rebecca turned to her mother, and their eyes met in shared radiant smiles. In that moment, Rebecca's heart lightened considerably, and a smile spread across her face.

“Thank you. Mom Rebecca said sincerely.

Debra looked at her, feeling an unexpected pang of sadness. Smiling, she tucked a stray strand of hair behind Rebecca’s ear and sighed. “Becky, I should be the one apologizing to you. If I had been more vigilant back then, that scoundrel wouldn’t have taken advantage of you, and you wouldn’t have suffered for so many years.”

As Debra spoke, her eyes suddenly welled up with tears. She didn’t want to cry, quickly turning away from Rebecca to dab at her eyes with a tissue.

Rebecca reached out immediately and hugged Debra tightly.

“It’s okay. Mom. It’s not your fault. We’re finally all together as a family.” Rebecca comforted her gently.

They arrived home quickly, but Rebecca hadn’t expected the warm welcome waiting for her. Patrick, Bryce, Charlie, and even Paul were there, each holding a bouquet of flowers for her

Each of them approached Rebecca with their flowers in hand.

“Becky, congratulations! You’re finally getting divorced,” Patrick said first, handing Rebecca his bouquet with a smile and heartfelt wishes.

“Congratulations, Becky. Wishing you freedom and a brighter future ahead!” Adrian added, offering his bouquet with a

“Becky, I wish you a better and happier life ahead,” Bryce said sincerely as he handed over his flowers.

Charlie bounded forward next, presenting Rebecca with an enormous bouquet, complete with confetti poppers set off by an assistant nearby!

“Becky, congratulations! I wish you and the two little ones all the happiness and joy in the world. Let that jerk rot in regrets for his actions! Charlie shouted happily.

Rebecca found herself overwhelmed with flowers in her arms, and Debra quickly stepped in to help carry the bouquets she had received earlier.

With a bit of space now, Rebecca finally had a hand free to accept Charlie’s enormous bouquet. It was truly massive and incredibly beautiful, filling her with joy.

Lastly, Paul approached, offering his flowers to Rebecca with gentle warmth. “Becky, I wish you all the best in the future, he said tenderly.

With another free hand, Rebecca accepted Paul’s flowers, then turned to express her heartfelt thanks. “Thank you, Paul, thank you, Dad, thank you, Adrian, thank you, Bryce, and thank you, Charlie. Thank you all for your care and blessings. We’ll all be better from now on.”

“And there’s not just flowers; there’s cake too! Th–da! Look in the dining room, Becky. We’ve got a huge cake ready for you to wish you all the happiness in the world!”

Charlie playfully dragged Rebecca into the dining room, bursting with excitement to show her the enormous and beautifully decorated cake inside.

The entire restaurant was adorned so splendidly that anyone unaware might think it was someone’s birthday at home, making the atmosphere exceptionally festive.

“Thank you, I love it,” Rebecca exclaimed joyfully.

Debra walked over, gently embracing Rebecca and planting a soft kiss on her forehead.

Not only did Rebecca love the setting, but Lily and Kev were clearly delighted by the festive ambiance as well, especially the balloons scattered throughout the space,

Rebecca smiled as she picked up two balloons, handing one to Lily and the other to Kev to play with.

The rest of the time, the whole family enjoyed themselves immensely, devouring an entire birthday cake together.

The next day, a helicopter arrived to whisk them away as they packed up to return to their hometown for the Christmas celebration.

This wasn’t Lily and Kev’s first helicopter ride back home, but last time, they were just newborns and not yet sensitive to the outside world.

Now, at over eight months old, the babies had grown significantly and were at an age full of curiosity about everything.

Lily and Kev sat in their specially designed baby seats, eagerly looking around, touching everything they saw and peering outside the window curiously.

Whatever caught their eye, their tiny hands would reach out instinctively to touch it.

Their little feet kicked playfully under the baby seats, which was an utterly adorable sight to behold.

Love Me Or Leave Me Chapter 103

This was Rebecca's first time returning to her hometown of Alaga City for Christmas. As the helicopter descended, Dave and the estate manager, Cooper, were already there with a group of people, waiting nearby.

As they disembarked one by one, Cooper swiftly organized helpers to fetch their luggage as the whole family entered the house with excitement.

Cooper had already instructed Grace to prepare some hot chocolate, which was promptly served to warm them up after the chilly journey.

"Becky, are you feeling tired? Would you like to go to your room for a rest?" Debra asked, standing up and showing concern for Rebecca Patrick quickly agreed. "Yeah, Becky and the kids should take a break in their rooms. It's been a long day in that helicopter; you must be worn out.

"And the rest of you should head to your rooms too. Take a break and stop staring at Becky. She's back for good now; there will be plenty of chances to catch up," Patrick added, turning to his son.

Rebecca couldn't help but chuckle at Patrick's remark, glancing easily at her three brothers.

Since arriving home yesterday and finding everyone gathered there, Rebecca noticed her brothers and Paul frequently glancing in her direction. Their gazes lasted for a few minutes, sometimes just a few seconds, before quickly turning away. The sensation of being watched sent shivers down her spine, making her nervous.

From yesterday until today, she found herself unintentionally on edge.

It was only when Patrick suddenly pointed it out that she couldn't hold back and burst into laughter, uncontrollably.

Her laughter was infectious, and soon everyone joined in, unable to contain their amusement.

Debra joined in, playfully scolding. "You troublemakers!"

"Don't mind them, Becky. They're just thrilled to see you. Give it a few days," Debra reassured her with a smile.

Blushing slightly, Rebecca nodded in agreement.

“Let’s go upstairs and leave them be,” Debra suggested, taking Rebecca’s hand and guiding her away.

Rebecca cast a quick glance back at her brothers, particularly Adrian, before disappearing upstairs.

She had been in touch with Charlie for a while now, so they were quite familiar. After Bryce transferred to work in Maeloria, she saw him occasionally, so there wasn’t much curiosity there. The exception was Adrian; due to work commitments, he couldn’t come to Maeloria. Besides their initial meeting at the hospital, they hadn’t seen each other since, and now she was quite curious about him.

Adrian was tall, probably around six feet, with handsome and well-defined features. He exuded a commanding presence, perhaps a demeanor acquired from his long stint as a lawyer. Adrian noticed her gaze and his lips curved into a gentle smile.

Rebecca couldn’t help but smile back before regaining her senses and quickly followed Debra upstairs.

Once in her room, she sighed in relief without the occasional stress from her brothers.

Billy and Key were asleep, cradled by the nanny who took them back to the nursery and settled them into their small cribs for rest

Rebecca and Debra peeked in to check on the children, silently leaving once they saw they were sound asleep. They left the nanny to continue caring for them.

Debra followed Rebecca back to her room, who stopped at the door.

“Becky, rest well. We’re all here at home; come find us if you need anything, Debra said tenderly.

“Okay. Thanks, Mom, Rebecca replied gratefully.

Debra nodded in reassurance, gently closing the door behind Debra to ensure she wouldn’t be disturbed.

With the door shut, Rebecca found herself alone in her room, finally letting out a quiet sigh of relief.

Despite her family's warmth, the solitude was a welcome change relaxing and comforting.

After unwinding, she felt the onset of tiredness and fatigue as she hadn't taken a nap today at all,

Rebecca kicked off her shoes, slipped out of her coat, and carefully climbed into bed.

Despite having slept in her own bed only twice, it felt incredibly comfortable and reassuring, like home.

Rebecca quickly fell asleep again.

When she woke up once more, the sky outside was completely dark, a deep, dense blackness.

Feeling a bit groggy, she reached for her phone to check the time and was surprised to see it was already past ten at night.

Dinner...

Rebecca hesitated, then made up her mind and got up.

The second floor was quiet while the living room lights were on, and her parents were in their casual home clothes, watching TV.

Upon hearing movement from upstairs, both Patrick and Debra turned their heads towards the staircase, visibly happy to see Rebecca.

Debra stood up just as Rebecca descended the stairs.

Debra approached, smiling, "You're awake?"

"Are you hungry?" she asked.

"We kept some food for you in the kitchen," Debra said, then called out to Grace, "Grace, please warm up Becky's dinner and bring it out for her."

Grace looked at Rebecca happily, too. She hastened her steps, eager to bring Rebecca her dinner.

Grace had been with the Carter family for over thirty years, hired on a high salary after Debra married Patrick because the latter enjoyed her cooking

She had watched over the three boys as they grew up, and the family's optimism and happiness were infectious. Working for them had made her more cheerful over time, and she enjoyed her life every day. So, without realizing it, she had grown -closer to the family.

However, everything changed after Rebecca had an accident. The Carter family's happiness had been shattered for years, and the atmosphere in the house had been dead ever since.

However, now it seemed fortune had smiled upon them as Rebecca had miraculously returned, bringing back the happiness and joy that once defined the Carter family. Grace genuinely shared in the joy of Patrick and Debra

In no time, Grace brought-out the freshly warmed meal.

Rebecca hadn't expected them to keep her food for her despite the late hours.

It seemed this was typical for her- no matter the time, her meal would always be saved for her. Rebecca thought to herself as she picked up her utensils and dug in.

Just then, there was movement upstairs once more.

Rebecca instinctively looked up towards the staircase and saw Bryce.

He appeared to have just woken up as well and was descending the stairs.

Shortly after, Bryce joined them in the dining room. Grace also set out a meal for Bryce, and they dined together.

After Rebecca finished eating, she stood to clear her dishes.

Grace promptly approached her, insisting on taking the dishes herself as she urged Rebecca to wash her hands and then take a rest.

Love Me Or Leave Me Chapter 104

After a night's rest at home. Rebecca set off the next day with her parents and brothers, taking the two babies on a whirlwind tour of Alagua City.

Every day in Alagua City meant indulging in the delicious local cuisine, with different dishes changing so often that they never got bored.

On paths adorned with blooming blossoms, Lily and Kev were placed on the ground. The two little ones wobbled. precariously but managed a few tentative steps forward.

Everyone retrieved their phones as they joyfully captured the babies' first attempts at walking.

This Christmas, they stocked up on fireworks and firecrackers. When Christmas Eve arrived, the night sky erupted in an array of dazzling fireworks, big and small.

As fireworks echoed in the skies, Rebecca and Charlie each cradled a baby, shielding their cars and enjoying the spectacle together.

Lily and Key were initially startled but soon captivated by the breathtaking fireworks display.

However, their young age meant they couldn't watch for long. After just a minute outside, they were swiftly whisked indoors, their ears covered and protected until the fireworks concluded.

Now at nine months old, Lily and Kev could toddle a few steps on their little feet. They couldn't get enough of the fireworks and, unable to hear the commotion outside, eagerly grabbed the adults' hands, wanting to join in the fun outdoors.

Charlie simply scooped up Kev and headed outside.

Adrian approached, glanced at Rebecca, then bent down and lifted Lily high above his head, setting her on his shoulders for a ride.

Rebecca jumped in surprise, instinctively reaching out to steady Lily

Adrian proved to be remarkably strong as Lily quickly settled securely on his shoulders, her tiny hands gripping his head, "Becky, let them watch the kids for a bit. You should rest," Patrick suggested.

After looking after the children for a while, Becky was understandably tired, and Patrick felt for his daughter.

Rebecca chuckled and agreed, "Okay."

The Christmas Eve feast was lavish, and Rebecca enjoyed every bite. From childhood to adulthood, this was perhaps her most joyous Christmas celebration yet.

The next day, they gathered under the Christmas tree in the morning and exchanged gifts with each other. Lily and Key received many gifts, with each one larger than the last.

Even Rebecca found herself showered with gifts, supposedly everything she had rightfully earned from her youth to adulthood, all given to her at once.

Rebecca blushed as she hesitated to accept the gifts, but despite her reluctance, everyone insisted and shoved the gifts into her arms, making her gifts pile into a small mountain on their own.

However, in contrast with the joyous atmosphere there, things felt somewhat awkward at Edwards Villa.

Everyone kept asking about Rebecca and the two children, and were particularly set on knowing where Lily and Kev were.

Naturally, everyone assumed that even though Theodore and Rebecca had divorced, Theodore had custody over the kids. So, not seeing the kids at the Edwards family's during Christmas was quite puzzling to them.

No one dared to bring it up, which was just as well. Whenever the children were mentioned, except for Michael, the atmosphere turned sour for the whole family.

Sam and Melissa were adamant about wanting grandchildren. In this case, they were strongly against Michael forcing Theodore to divorce Rebecca and marry Jenny.

Helen couldn't get Michael's affair with those illegitimate children out of her mind. While others might accept the mistress, her husband had raised so many. During this time, she had become the laughingstock of high society. She was even nervous about meeting acquaintances when she went for her beauty treatments.

Despite all this, Helen couldn't confront Michael head-on or even mention the divorce directly. When they married years ago, they had signed a prenuptial agreement. If they divorced, she wouldn't get a penny from the Edwards family.

Her only hope lay in her son.

Theodore was the first in line to take over the Edwards Group. Only if her son succeeded could the entire Edwards family fortune become theirs in the future.

Theodore's expression turned even more grim as he had already realized that he loved Rebecca. If it hadn't been for his father's coercion, he would never have considered divorcing her. Those two children were undoubtedly his treasures, and they would still be a part of the Edwards family now if he hadn't done what he did.

However, Rebecca had stopped caring about the situation with the Edwards family

At this moment in Alagua City, the Carter family was gathered on the living room sofa, watching a show together. The show they were watching was Lovey Princess starring Rebecca in a historical romance role.

When Rebecca was filming, she took her role seriously. But now, sitting together in the living room watching the romance drama she starred in, Rebecca...felt embarrassed!

Sitting among everyone, Rebecca felt like his hands and feet were not his own and was so embarrassed that he didn't know what to do.

Eventually, she simply pretended to use the restroom and slipped away quietly.

Charlie caught sight of his sister sneaking off, and with a slight grin, he let out a chuckle at her embarrassment.

With Rebecca joining him now, he wouldn't be embarrassed all by himself anymore. How wonderful!

Lily and Kev recognized their mom on TV, and the two babies were overjoyed. They reached out with their tiny hands, trying to grab their mom from the screen.

Kev even toddled over, wobbling slightly, and with arms outstretched towards the TV, he gleefully shouted, "Mommy, hug

The whole family was enchanted by the adorable little boy before the nanny hurried over and scooped him up into her arms.

"Mommy..." Lily called out as well as she stared at the TV.

It wasn't just their family watching it, all across the country, countless families were gathered in their living rooms, watching the show together.

However, TV shows varied in quality, and many viewers grew impatient, frantically switching channels. Despite their efforts, they couldn't find something they liked. But for some, as they kept switching, they suddenly stumbled upon....

Some talented video editors unexpectedly discovered how amazing this show was. To seize the opportunity and gain more followers, they immediately started searching for all kinds of information about this show before creating promotional videos and posting them on their social media accounts.

Over the next few days, the viewership ratings for Lovey Princess soared, almost catching up to Disciple Meets Master in no time. Many people speculated and bet on whether Lovely Princess could surpass Disciple Meets Master to become this year's dark horse in the industry.

Love Me Or Leave Me Chapter 105

The audience was just there for the fun, but the actors involved in these two dramas were different.

All the actors in Lovey Princess were so excited that they were screaming and congratulating each other through messages.

The leading actors of Disciple Meets Master looked gloomy, especially the male lead, Hackett Cousy. When the director told him that the female lead was Janet, he knew things were not going well

In their circle, the most popular thing was the girlish persona. Jafet was just exposed for having a child out of wedlock. Her fans would think she was no longer a girl, but a young woman.

It was expected that few people would like this drama for a young woman playing a young girl!

However, the person who was in the worst mood right now was the female lead of "Disciple Meets Master, Janet. As the best actress, after it was revealed that she had a child out of wedlock, Disciple Meets Master" was the first work that Janet officially starred in after her postpartum comeback. This drama must be a hit to consolidate her position in the entertainment industry.

But now, with only a week on the air, the drama "Disciple Meets Master" she starred in was about to be overshadowed by Lovey Princess starring Rebecca!

If Janet was suppressed, she would lose her significant role in the entertainment industry.

Janer was thinking irritably, but she was not in a hurry. On the contrary, she sat on the sofa and watched Lovey Princess on TV. Seeing the heroine played by Rebecca laughing in the play, she gave a smile full of malice.

She thought, Just go viral. Let Rebecca make a name.

Janet would wait until Rebecca reached the peak of her career and then let her fall down hard!

The New Year passed by unknowingly, and everyone had to go back to work, especially Paul and Bryce, who had a special job. They had to return to work earlier than others.

A week later, the family stretched out their little hands, stumbled towards her, and fell into her arms.

Debra held Kev in her arms and got into the car.

Rebecca also picked up Lily and got into the car.

“Take it easy and pay attention to safety,” Cynthia reminded them worriedly

“Okay, got it. Cynthia, you should go back soon. It’s cold outside” Rebecca responded in the car while looking at Cynthia through the window.

The driver started the car and drove away.

It was not until the car drove into the busy traffic that Debra asked, “How do you feel? Is it tiring to take care of two children alone?”

Rebecca shook her head. “I’m fine. Cynthia also helped me look after the children.”

Debra nodded and felt relieved. “Okay.”

After returning home, Rebecca received a message from Lynn. Just as they had expected before the New Year, after Lovey Princess and Reverse Days became popular, her status rose rapidly, becoming a second-tier star. The opportunities she could access now were much better than before.

The most important thing was that all the resources were actively offered by the drama producers or brands, instead of Rebecca having to beg them for an audition opportunity.

Lynn sent Rebecca several scripts and endorsements, asking her to take a look. If Rebecca wanted, she could give it a try.

Rebecca happily agreed.

So in the next few days, she began to concentrate on selecting scripts

Rebecca was reluctant to take endorsements for the time being, because she entered the showbiz just to win the Best Actress Award and prove that what her adoptive parents and Janet said were wrong. Rebecca had a talent for acting, and as long as she was given the opportunity, she would not be worse than Janet

This was her deepest regret after so many years in the Mitchell family, or rather she would never let it go. If Rebecca didn't try hard once to prove herself, she would probably even doubt her ability.

After finishing all this, Rebecca might study business and help her father run the family business as her parents expected.

However, when she was carefully selecting the script, something went viral.

A well-known internet gossip blogger, Gossipy Girl, released a video, revealing a shocking secret. "Why does the new rising star Becky have so many good opportunities?", "The new rising star Becky is Charlie's mistress?", "In order to support Becky, Charlie not only pulled strings to get a role for her in Reverse Days, but also invested 20 million dollars in 'Lovey Princess'?", "Becky is married and has children. Her husband is Theodore, a wealthy outsider. According to accurate information, they had a boy and a girl last year?", "Becky is shameless. She and movie star Charlie bought a house next to Edwards Villa. They openly have an affair in front of her wealthy husband and provoke her husband", and "Becky changed the surname of her and Mr. Edwards' children to Charlie's".

The video was a hot topic, shocking netizens. It was a big secret at the beginning of the new year, and everyone was thrilled about what would happen.

Soon, countless netizens and bloggers forwarded this video, and the number of likes and comments under Gossipy Girl's short video increased rapidly.

Soon, there came some trending topics on Twitter, "Becky is shameless", "Becky, get out of the entertainment industry", and "The relationship between Charlie and Becky"

A series of topics related to Becky became trending topics.

Countless netizens discussed this topic on major well-known forums. Everyone was shocked. They didn't expect the rising star to be so shameless. Some even felt disgusted and regretted watching Lovey Princess.

Some people said that they were really amazed when watching Lovey Princess, but they did not expect that Becky was such an immoral person. So, they could no longer watch Lovey Princess

Even the crew of Lovey Princess were panicked. Ruth anxiously contacted Lynn and Rebecca, asking them what was going on. Was there a misunderstanding and was there any way to save the situation? The higher-ups had started to review the TV series, saying that if there were any problems with actors' character, Lovey Princess might be banned directly!

However, before the crew of Lovey Princess came to Rebecca, Charlie had told her what to do, so after receiving the news from Ruth, Rebecca was not panicked or anxious. She followed what Charlie said and told the director not to worry. Nothing would happen.

Ruth was in a daze, feeling very confused. How could this be okay? This was a disaster.

On the other hand, Lynn finally found out the relationship between Rebecca and Charlie. They...were actually siblings!

At first, Lynn thought Charlie was lying, but as straightforward as Charlie was, he asked her to look at the paternity test report. Lynn then shut up and relaxed.

There was nothing to worry about

As soon as this paternity test was posted, those rumors would be nonsense!

On the contrary, the more serious the situation was now, the more popular Becky would be when things turned around in the end. Maybe this incident...could directly make Becky an A-list star.

"Because of some reasons, the relationship between me and Becky cannot be exposed for the time being. Don't tell anyone else these days," Charlie reminded Lynn again.

Lynn raised her eyebrows. "Do you want to hype it up?"

Charlie smiled, "No need to bother you. Just let them continue for a few days. In a few days, when the time is right, I will make it public"

Lynn nodded. "Okay."

There were only a few days left in the cool-off period for Rebecca and Theodore's divorce. After that, they could get a divorce. Then Charlie would immediately make the paternity test public to prove their true relationship.

Because of the scandal, the ratings of Lovey Princess did not decrease but increased. Many people rushed in to curse Rebecca while watching the show.

The leading actors of Lovey Princess were worried. Some contacted the director privately to ask what was going on

The crew put great effort into the TV series. Every scene was practiced repeatedly for many days to make sure that every detail was done to the best. They wanted to make a name through this drama!

If the show was taken off the air because of Becky's scandal, everyone would be heartbroken.

Chapter 106

What could Ruth say? She knew nothing. After contacting Becky and Lynn that day, she was told not to worry for nothing would happen!

How could Ruth be at ease?

But she waited for a few days, and later, she found that the high-ups stopped the investigation. Lovey Princess was broadcast as usual, and there was no news of it being taken off the air or binned, as if the negative news on the Internet had no effect.

Ruth was confused. She understood that Becky must have found way to solve the problem, but Ruth was not quite sure how she made it. She just felt...it was great to have money and connections. Ruth was envious. How great it would be if she could be as rich and well-connected one day!

Love Me Or Leave Me Chapter 107

Others didn't care, but it didn't mean Debra and Patrick were the same. Debra was enraged.

Patrick kept calming his wife. He tapped her shoulders and rubbed her hands to appease her.

Even, in real life, some people knew the true relationship between Charlie and Debra. They texted to ask what was going on. Some ladies claimed they were concerned, but in fact they just wanted to seek fun.

Debra spat several times and blacklisted those hypocritical people.

In the chat group of the loving family, relatives were also concerned about this matter, but Debra and Patrick told them not to be anxious and not to disclose the relationship between Becky and their family. Just wait a few more days for the right timing, the Carter family would make it public.

When the relatives heard so, they felt relieved and no longer worried.

In Evergrande Entertainment, Janet had been in a very good mood these days. She always had a smile on her face while happily browsing information online.

Lisa was also in a good mood at the sight of it.

She worked for Janet, and whenever Janet was in a bad mood, she would suffer. Lisa was nervous and cautious every day. Now that Rebecca was in trouble, Janet was visibly happy, which made her work environment a lot more relaxed.

Janet, yesterday the staff from Beauty, Glory, and Nature texted us and wanted to hire you as the spokesperson for their products. Would you like to take a look?" Lisa handed Janet several documents as she said with a smile.

Beauty, Glory, and Nature were all well-known domestic brands. The fact that they asked Janet to be their spokesperson proved that Janet was not out of date yet.

It proved that Janet's performance in "Disciple Meets Master" was useful. As long as her drama was on air, she would be popular. With the popularity, there would naturally be no shortage of endorsements.

Janet took the documents, read them one by one, and then replied with a smile, "Sign them all."

Lisa was surprised upon hearing it. "Sign them all?"

Janet nodded. "Yeah."

Lisa felt a little dazed. She felt...Janet was in a really good mood today. In the past, she would only agree to sign an endorsement contract at most.

But this was a good thing. The more endorsements Janet signed, the more money she would earn. And as Janet's agent, Lisa could get more bonus commissions. Thinking about it, Lisa couldn't help but laugh happily.

"Where's the pen?" Janet asked.

Lisa quickly handed one over.

Janet took the pen and signed all three endorsement contracts in a few strokes.

In the next few days, Janet became busy. She hummed songs and flew all over the country to shoot the latest endorsement promotional video.

People's criticism of Becky intensified online, but Lovey Princess got more attention, overshadowing "Disciple Meets Master". Many people criticized the TV series while watching it. Lovey Princess won a lot of popularity due to the scandal instead.

Chapter 107

As the plot in Reverse Days showed, the male protagonist's sister played by Rebecca finally appeared.

As soon as she appeared, everyone's eyes lit up. She was so beautiful, just like a fairy.

However, soon everyone realized that the actress who played the "Tairy" was Becky, and many people couldn't help but curse harshly. Some people with bad tempers started to vent their anger by posting on major online platforms. "Becky, get out of the showbiz!", and "What's wrong with Charlie? Why would he get involved with such a woman!".

Those topics dominated the list, and all people demanded Becky to get out of the entertainment industry in Twitter.

Some people even made a lot of short videos, using special effects to throw rotten eggs and rotten vegetable leaves at Becky's face. In the video, Becky looked so embarrassed as she begged for mercy.

In response to these posts containing malicious personal attacks, Adrian in Hivalis said nothing, but he quietly preserved evidence for future charges.

When Debra encountered someone who began harsh personal attacks on Becky, she would note down the ID and hand it over to Adrian. With the evidence, they could sue the attacker later.

Besides them, Bryce, Charlie, Paul, and Patrick would check the news online whenever they were free. When they caught those who were particularly aggressive, they would preserve the evidence and forward it to Adrian.

The whole family was busy.

Theodore had been upset these days.

Rebecca got into trouble online, and he became the object of everyone's ridicule.

Many people sympathized with him for being cheated on.

Even the Edwards family's stocks declined slightly.

Theodore wanted to spend money to reduce the popularity of those posts, but now, during the critical period of competition with Gifford, every penny he had was important and must not be wasted.

His father Michael wa

Rebecca couldn't stand it any longer and said. "Theodore, it has nothing to do with you. You don't need to worry about it."

"I'm doing this for your own good! Theodore frowned and reminded.

Rebecca hung up the call and blacklisted the number. After doing all this, she felt better.

Theodore was stunned. When he came to his senses, he found that Rebecca had hung up on him.

Theodore's heart sank. He picked up his phone and called Releen again.

Soon, the system prompt told Theodore that Rebecca had blacklisted his new number!

As Theodore held the phone in his hand, his face darkened. He burned with anger, thinking, 'How dare Rebecca?

She kept blocking my phone number. Was it just because she had hooked up with Charlie? How shameless!

How shameless!

Did she even realize, with her current status, Charlie would never consider marrying her? She's embarrassing herself."

Rebecca was embarrassing herself.

Holding the phone in his hand, Theodore was so angry that his chest heaved violently.

No one had ever enraged him so much. Rebecca was the first!

After a moment, Theodore picked up the company's internal phone and ordered directly. "Go get me some new mobile phone cards!"

When assistant Jude Dudley heard this request outside, his heart skipped a beat. He knew something was wrong.

Jude then quickly went to apply for a few new cards before handing them over to Theodore.

Theodore took the SIM card, unwrapped it with a cold face, and put it into the phone before calling Rebecca again.

He finally understood what he should do. He was concise and went straight to the point. "Rebecca, those online scandals have affected the reputation and stocks of the Edwards Group. We must solve this problem as soon as possible."

Theodore didn't bother to talk nonsense, lest he get blocked again.

"Post a statement online, saying that you and Charlie are just friends, not in affair.

"Also, let's go to the Civil Registry Office together this afternoon to change the two children's surnames back."

Theodore thought that if he could use this opportunity to make Rebecca realize the seriousness of the matter and change the two children's surnames back, it would be a blessing in disguise, so as to avoid further entanglement in the future, which would be troublesome.

Frustrated, Rebecca didn't respond.

She blocked Theodore's number again, thinking there was something wrong with Theodore's mind.

In the Edwards Group, Theodore was surprised that Rebecca hung up on him again.

Theodore frowned and kept dialing. As expected, the number was blocked again!

A surge of anger rose inside Theodore, but he held it back, took out a new card, and installed it before making another call.

At the sight of the unfamiliar number, Rebecca didn't want to answer it, so she hung up and ignored it.

Theodore kept dialing, but he couldn't get through, which pissed him off.

He thought, "Is Rebecca crazy? Just because she's with Charlie, does she think she has become someone important? Does she know her place?"

Rebecca could not feel Theodore's anger for the time being, nor did she want to feel it. After hanging up on Theodore, she took out the scripts and continued to study them. These scripts were good, but she felt that something was lacking.

Rebecca thought about it for a long time and finally told Lynn her idea.

Lynn nodded after listening. "Well, these scripts are just ordinary, and there is still a big gap between them and top ones. But good scripts are hard to get. Some actors may get a top one soon after entering the industry. Some may have no such a chance even though after more than ten years, or even decades in the industry. In addition to performance, luck is also very important.

"But given your conditions, if you really want to star in a good script, there is a way," Lynn suddenly said.

As she quickly

Rebecca's eyes lit up, she asked, "What's it?"

"Buy the copyright, find someone to adapt it, and professionally customize the best script," Lynn replied concisely.

At Aotari shooting base, Lynn held her phone while saying seriously, "Nowadays, many scripts are adapted from novels, and the current novel market is very complete, with a variety of themes and settings. No matter what you want, it will be offered. You can go to major novel websites, and maybe you can find a novel that suits your taste.

"If you find it and you are willing to spend money, you can talk with the author or buy the adaptation rights of the novel from the website, and then have someone adapt the novel into the script you want," Lynn explained.

"Got it." Rebecca nodded in agreement.

In the next few days, Rebecca started to visit various major websites and read various novels, trying to find the content she wanted.

Another day passed. At night, Theodore appeared at Carter Villa again.

The servant came in in a panic and shouted, "Mrs. Carter, Ms. Carter, bad things happen. Theodore from next door comes again."

“Ignore him. If he dares to break in, tell the bodyguards to throw him out!” Debra said calmly while applying a facial mask.

Rebecca was wondering whether to go out and take a look, but when she heard Debra’s suggestion, she calmed down. Yes, she could ignore Theodore.

In this way, they went through the last few days. The one–month cooling–off period expired, which meant they could officially go to get divorced.

That morning, the whole family got up very early. Everyone was happy and sincerely hoped that everything would go well today.

After Rebecca was done, she checked the time and saw that the Courthouse was about to be open for business, so she took out her cell phone and called Theodore.

In the villa next door, Theodore was upset to receive Rebecca’s cal

Chapter 108

It was obvious that Rebecca couldn’t wait to divorce him.

Theodore found it ridiculous. Why did Rebecca do that? Did she choose Charlie because he was nicer to her? Was she...so eager for love?

But Rebecca used to be so obsessed with Theodore.

When Theodore thought about the past, his heart ached slightly

He misunderstood Rebecca, so Charlie took advantage of the opportunity.

Rebecca wanted love so much that she was easily deceived.

Theodore wondered, ‘It doesn’t matter. Charlie is just playing with Rebecca. After the divorce, Rebecca will know that Charlie will never marry her. To Charlie, Rebecca is just his mistress. She will realize the truth sooner or later. By that time, the Edwards family’s affairs must have been resolved, and I can get her back.’”

As Theodore, who was restless, thought about it, he slowly calmed down.

Love Me Or Leave Me Chapter 109

Theodore contained his emotions and then answered the phone

Rebecca spoke briefly and reminded him that he needed to go to the Courthouse to get the divorce license today.

Theodore didn't badger, and just simply replied a word, "Okay"

Rebecca was stunned by his crisp reply. She paused for a moment and nodded. "Yeah."

After hanging up, she picked up her bag and went out.

Debra was worried about her, so she hurried to follow.

When they arrived at the door, they happened to see Theodore opening the door and walking out of the villa next door.

At the same time, in a villa diagonally opposite, a paparazzo was taking pictures of them.

The bodyguards hired by the Carter family could prevent paparazzi from hiding near the villa and taking secret photos. Still, they had no way to deal with those paparazzi who bribed others and found ways to sneak into nearby villas. After all they couldn't break into other people's homes to stop those paparazzi, and there was no need for that.

Rebecca, Debra, and several bodyguards got in the car.

Theodore watched them with a frown and then got into his car without saying anything.

His car followed the Carter family's car. They drove to the Courthouse.

Half an hour later, the two cars arrived at the entrance of the Courthouse and stopped in the parking lot.

They opened the car doors at the same time, got out of the cars, and glanced at each other before walking towards the gate of the Courthouse.

Behind them, a black car followed. Inside it, Daly Moore, a paparazzo, looked at the gate of the Courthouse with his eyes widened in shock. He immediately realized something. Then, he excitedly picked up the camera and frantically took pictures of the backs of Rebecca and Theodore, who were walking towards the gate of the Courthouse.

Big news! Big news! Daly thought he was going to make a fortune from this news,
There was indeed something wrong with Rebecca.

Theodore was about to divorce her.

Daly was excited. He took some photos in a row, then got out of the car and wanted to follow.

However, as soon as he got out of the car, two bodyguards in black suits came out of Theodore's car and walked up to him. Daly had a bad feeling. He quickly turned to go back to the car, inserted the key, and wanted to drive away

It was too late. His car was stopped, and a bodyguard stood beside the car door, asking Daly to open the door and get out

Not only Daly, there were many paparazzi in other places. Many bodyguards came out from all directions. Without exception, all the paparazzi were stopped.

Rebecca and Theodore didn't care what happened outside. Debra paid the couples in the front line and let Rebecca and Theodore jump the queue and stand at the front.

It didn't take long before Rebecca got the divorce license. The moment she got it, she felt the depression in her heart finally Debra was happy. She took the divorce license from Rebecca and looked at it. The more Debra looked at it, the happier she felt. She couldn't help but take a photo of the license with her mobile phone and send it to the family chat group of six people.

Soon, there were many messages, emojis, and stickers to celebrate Rebecca's divorce.

"Becky, look, they said they have transferred money to you to celebrate your divorce. Check it!" Debra was excited. She pulled Rebecca beside her and reminded her happily.

little girl

Rebecca was amused, thinking, "Sometimes, Mom is very cute, acting like a little girl:

Thinking of this, she took out her mobile phone, checked the group chat messages, and received the transfers.

Rebecca thought for a moment and sent a message: [Thank you

Theodore stood aside and kept looking at Rebecca. She hadn't looked at him since she got the divorce license. She actually...didn't even show the slightest reluctance. He clenched the divorce license slightly. After a while, he pretended to put his hand in his pocket casually and turned to leave the Courthouse.

Bryce sent another message to the group chat: [Becky, go to the Civil Registry Office and change your last name.]

Rebecca saw the message and replied with a smile [OK]

Debra saw Bryce's message as well as Rebecca's reply. She turned to look at Rebecca, feeling very happy.

Then, she took Rebecca's hand, left the Courthouse, and went to the Civil Registry Office together.

It was easy for an adult to change his or her name. Rebecca took the relevant information, went through all the procedures, and changed her name.

"This is the temporary passport. You can use it during this period. The official one will be processed after a while." After completing the process, Bryce gave Rebecca the passport and spoke with a smile.

From today on, Rebecca's name was Stacey Carter.

Debra and Patrick gave her this name a few days ago, and Rebecca liked it very much, so she changed her name to this today.

"Thank you, Bryce." Stacey looked at Bryce and said with a smile

Bryce also smiled. He couldn't help but rub her hair lovingly. After enduring for so long, Stacey finally went through the hardship and started her new, happy life.

"Don't be so polite to me. If you have any problems in the future, feel free to leave them to me. I will do my best to protect you," Bryce said lovingly.

In the office, a female officer on duty turned to glance over quietly, showing great curiosity

“If you have nothing else, go home and rest. I still have to work for a while. I’ll go home after getting off work,” Bryce said with a smile.

“Okay,” Debra agreed immediately. As she spoke, she secretly glanced at the female officer in Bryce’s office and suddenly smiled brightly.

The female officer was caught peeking and was startled. She quickly shifted her gaze but soon realized that she was overreacting, so she pretended to be calm and turned around naturally to say goodbye to Debra with a smile, ‘Goodbye, Madam. Be safe.’” marned? How old are you? Do you have a boyfriend?” Debra didn’t want to leave. She looked at the female officer and asked with a smile.

“Hey, are you

Bryce realized what Debra wanted to do. His ears turned red, and he quickly stopped her. “Mom, she’s just my colleague. Don’t overthink. It’s getting late. Go home with Stacey. As he spoke, he pushed Debra out.

Π

Debra looked at the female officer. That girl was good-looking, and she had been peeking at Bryce just now, Debra thought the girl and Bryce were well-matched.

Stacey also smiled. She couldn’t help but secretly take a few more glances at the female officer. The girl was really beautiful. When Bryce noticed Stacey’s gaze, he felt helpless, quickly pushing them out and letting them get in the car.

“Mom, Becky, go home. I’ll be off work soon and be back.” After the car door closed, Bryce breathed a sigh of relief and said with concern.

Debra smiled. “Go back to work. It’s not bad to work overtime occasionally. Come on, Bryce!”

Bryce was speechless.

Love Me Or Leave Me Chapter 110

Stacey returned home. Lillian and Kevin toddled towards her. Lillian could walk a long distance without the support. She was growing up.

Stacey squatted down, opened her arms, and hugged Lillian, who threw herself into her arms, “Mama Mama...” Kevin couldn’t walk very well, and he fell after toddling a few steps. The nanny hurriedly supported him, took his hand, and helped him walk towards Stacey. Seeing Lillian in her arms, Kevin babbled anxiously.

Debra came in. Looking at Kevin, she smiled, bent down, and hugged him. She kissed his cheek. He was so cute.

Stacey kissed Lillian, then picked her up and walked inside, followed by Debra with Kevin in her arms.

The home gave Stacey a different feeling. She looked up at Deb and couldn’t help but smile.

Debra showed a sincere smile. It was great that Stacey finally got rid of that scumbag “Becky, how about we buy another house? Let’s live in a different place, somewhere farther away from/Theodore.” Debra thought about it and said.

Stacey was surprised, asking, “Mom, have you decided where to buy a house?”

Debra nodded. “I have a few places I want to go. If you are willing to move out, we can choose a place we both like and then move there together.”

“Okay,” Stacey agreed.

Debra was delighted. She immediately took out her mobile phone and started searching for the property information in Macloria.

In fact, Debra had planned to take Stacey back to Hivalis after she got the divorce license. Then, Stacey could stay away from the bastards in the Edwards family. Unexpectedly, just after Stacey’s troubles had just been resolved, Bryce seemed to meet his partner.

Debra thought Bryce and the female officer could be a couple, so she wanted to stay and try to bring them together. What p it worked out?

If Bryce could be unavailable, Debra would be happier.

Stacey's mobile phone rang when she was choosing a house with Debra.

Stacey was stunned. She picked up the mobile phone and saw that the caller ID was Charlie, then immediately answered the video call.

"Congratulations! You finally got rid of that scumbag!" As soon as the video was connected, Charlie happily Congratulated in a loud voice.

Debra heard Charlie's voice, craned her neck to look at Stacey's phone, and saw Charlie..

Thinking about Stacey's divorce, Debra felt very happy and relieved.

"Chuck, Becky got the divorce license, so we need to solve those things on the Internet as soon as possible. I can't bear those people who scold Becky anymore," Debra reminded Charlie seriously.

Charlie was happy to hear this. "Yeah, I called Becky to talk to her about this."

As he spoke, he looked at Stacey and said excitedly. "Becky, I prepared the paternity test. At nine o'clock tonight, I will have

"By the way, have you changed your name?" Charlie asked with great anticipation.

Stacey smiled and nodded. "Yes, I'm Stacey Carter.

Charlie paused, looking very confused. He looked at Stacey, then at Debra. "What? Didn't you change your name to Rebecca Carter?"

Debra's mouth twitched, and she scolded, "Rebecca Carter? Shut up! I don't like it."

Charlie was speechless. It seemed that his parents knew how casual they were when they casually named him. Not only Rebecca but also her three brothers...

He thought, "Forget it. There is nothing I can do."

"What is the meaning of Becky's new name?" Charlie asked again. He no longer trusted his parents' naming skills. He really wanted to know the meaning of the second name they gave to Rebecca.

Debra saw Charlie's doubting look.

"Stacey, it means stable, and she will bounce back. Listen, if you keep doubting me, I will beat you up!" Debra warned.

Stacey realized belatedly. She didn't expect her name to have this meaning.

Upon hearing Debra's warning, Charlie was afraid.

He dared not let his mind wander anymore and quickly remembered his sister's name.

"Yeah, yeah, it's a good name. Stacey Carter." Charlie felt happy when he was speaking.

Debra could not help but laugh.

The video call lasted for a long time. After talking about everything that needed to be said, Charlie hung up the video call.

Thinking about what Charlie had just said, Stacey picked up the phone and sent a message to Lynn.

Lynn replied quickly and told Stacey not to worry, as she would take care of everything.

Stacey felt relieved and happy after hearing this.

She couldn't help but start looking forward to nine o'clock tonight

Stacey thought about it and went back to the room. She took out her tablet and started watching a TV series.

Lovey Princess was aired on TV and online drama platforms. However, the online streaming lagged behind television broadcasting, but it did not affect her keeping up with the drama.

This drama was really popular. On the online drama platform, its popularity was second to Reverse Days, starring Charlie.

Seeing the rankings of these two dramas, Stacey felt very happy. Then, she clicked and played the drama.

As soon as the drama started, the screen was covered by countless comments, most of which were cursing Stacey.

Many netizens criticized her for being shameless and a bitch, and some dirty words were abbreviated, leaving a long series of asterisks.

Stacey watched these comments for a while, then simply closed the comments and continued watching the drama.

Janet had been attending activities here in Amando for the past few days. After a tiring day, she finished her work. When she returned to the hotel at night, she took a shower, then lay on the big bed in her pajamas, took out her mobile phone, and started reading the news on the Internet.

Janet thought about it, switched to the burner account, and contacted the internet trolls that she had hired a few days ago. She added a large sum of money and ordered them to continue to curse Rebecca online and manipulate the online public opinion, maintaining the negative popularity of Rebecca.

Janet thought, This time, I'll definitely drive Rebecca out of showbiz. She will never enter it again in this life!
