

Chapter 175 Connection

Topaz's p.o.v.

When I felt the connection to Nero I was ecstatic, I had finally found the male that would make us happy. I am not saying that we weren't happy, but with our Mate in our life it would be even better and with Nero being the future Gamma of our combined Pack it meant we would get to spend a lot of time together.

Nero being our Stepbrother complicated things a tiny bit, but I knew I would never give him up if our connection turned into a Mate-bond.

I missed him like crazy while he went back to Autumn Pack to pack up his belongings and to hand over his workload to Nikolay. What I hadn't counted on was to feel a connection to all four Brothers, at first I thought it might be the forming of a sibling bond and a part of me felt disappointed.

That was until I felt Nathan and Noah's arms wrapped around us, it showed me that this was the start of a true Mate-bond and it left me confused, it left me torn between wanting a Mate-bond and doing what was expected of us.

I doubted there would be many people that would accept a Mate-bond between us and our Stepbrothers, but Mom took away those worries. Our time in Autumn Pack was what I needed to realize that I wanted a Mate-bond and I wanted the four Brothers, but I also had to think about my Human.

She was hurt by her friends and family when they didn't believe her, her abilities had never shown before that day and neither one of us had expected them to ever show up.

It seemed as if they all started showing up at once, her ability to blend in with her surroundings and then the gift of hearing. A gift we were both grateful for, a gift that helped her realize that someone wasn't happy with us showing up and who knows what it will do for us in the future.

It did give my Human the change to figure out that our friends and family thought she had been lying, even though she hadn't but they didn't know about our bloodline and she was more than ready to forgive them for not believing her.

Her gift of camouflage came after we heard Noah say they hadn't felt a connection to a female yet and even though he explained why he said that to the female with them, it was his remark that insinuated that it might be a false Mate-bond that had us both fuming.

Top that of with Noah lying about why he doesn't want Blood Stone Pack to be invited and I am really starting to wonder what I have to do to help my Human.

She is the one that gets hurt over and over again, I know she can't handle much more of this before it is going to blow up in their faces and when we can tell through the mind-link that Grandma is lying I know shit is going to hit the fan.

I doubt anyone had expected her to react the way she did and even though I don't agree with her completely I do understand her, she deserves to know the truth if it concerns her.

We need time away from our friends and family to find out what it is we want to do and if it means going to Blood Stone Pack for some answers than that is where we are going.

I still believe there is a true Mate-bond forming between us and the four Brothers, but right now I can't tell my Human that and I will take my time before telling her. She doesn't need this on top of everything else that is going on in her life, she needs to be calm before I tell her.

Maybe I will get the chance before we leave for Blood Stone Pack and if she is willing to listen to me I might be able to convince her to take them with us, we need to spend time together to form the Mate-bond. Traveling together will ensure that, after all, Blood Stone Pack isn't around the corner and we might have the Mate-bond in place by the time we get to our destination. I really hope they don't really believe this might be a false Mate-bond, it might destroy my Human's trust in males.

Nero's p.o.v.

We all stare after Alayah as she walks out of the backyard and I can tell that everyone is surprised she knew we were lying to her, probably another gift that surfaced.

"I don't care what this is about, but you better understand that in this case I will chose my Daughter over anyone of you. I hope that somehow she will calm down and realize that she reacted before thinking it through, if not I fear you will see her transfer papers on your desk soon, Alpha Randell.

And as for the four of you better get your heads out of your asses, if your idiocy hurts my Daughter in anyway your Father can start digging your graves. How could you lie about something that concerns your Mate?" Mara says and I know that Alayah has told them that she feels a connection to all of us.

"You better fix this or I will retreat to the back of your mind and never show myself again." Miku growls in my head, before he turns his back on me and curls up in the back of my head.

Dad and Mara walk away before anyone can respond and when Anton says that he is going to check on his Cousin my Brothers and I follow him, All we can do is watch as she places a picture in her bag and walks out of her bedroom.

I can see that Grandfather gives Uncle Paul a warning when he wants to say something to Alayah and he does the same to Grandma, making me wonder how she will respond to Grandfather interfering with her life.

She is already walking out of our lives because we didn't tell her the truth from the start and in this case I am talking about the connection we felt to her and Topaz, don't get me started about her finding out we know more about her bloodline than she does.

I don't bother following her out of the Pack-house, I know she won't give us the time of day and she sure as hell won't say goodbye to any of us.

I walk back up the stairs to the Gamma floor to wallow in self-pity for a while, I don't care if my Brothers follow me or not and I sure as hell don't want to talk to anyone else. I lost my chance on having a Mate and the only one I can blame for that is myself, I should have trusted the connection Miku felt.