

Chapter 82

Everyone was stunned.

Why would William offer support to Steven?

This kid must have something wrong with his brain, right?

Felicity was so angry that she gave him a kick under the table.

He felt a sudden pain, but deep down he was a little disappointed too.

"You're a coward!" Felicity muttered with a gloomy face.

Everyone studied William with their mocking eyes.

This kid finally knew his place! He finally surrendered to them.

He finally recognized the truth that the Bai family was going to make a majestic comeback. Thus, he had made up his mind to obey their orders like an obedient dog!

"Haha, that's right. Xena, Felicity, learn from William. Sometimes, you have to sacrifice yourselves for our family's benefit. We'll never forget or ignore your contributions," Rebecca immediately added.

Felicity had nothing to say for a moment.

Seeing the determination in William's eyes, Xena didn't dare to mumble a word either.

She was convinced that it was going to be a good show when Steven took over the project and found out that the owner of the Genuine Care Medical Center was actually William.

At this time, Steven had already raised his glass and began to give a toast to Yasmine.

He was extremely proud of himself.

In the third generation of the Bai family, he was the only male.

Of course his grandmother would give the most trust to him. Who else could she trust if not him?

Why would she trust her two incompetent granddaughters instead?

In the end, he was the one who carried out the main duties of the Bai family!

Everyone had different thoughts going on in their minds. Some finished the meal with a sullen expression on their faces.

Suddenly, William received a call from a stranger.

"Brother Lu, it's me, Mr. Chen," Baxter said on the phone.

"Mr. Chen? Which Mr. Chen are you?" William's mind drew a blank.

"I'm Baxter Chen from the North Wind Fund,"

Baxter replied hurriedly.

"Oh, what's the matter?" William asked.

Baxter immediately answered humbly, "Brother Lu, I'm really sorry about what happened last night. I didn't know who you were. I just bought a car the day before yesterday. I've finished the transfer procedure and I wish to give it to you. I am being told that you are in Hoversky Restaurant now. My car is now parked in the underground parking lot. Shall I send you the key?"

William's mouth curved into a smile. Baxter's call had just come at the right time.

William had already had a plan; he wanted Baxter to be his pawn. Therefore he said nonchalantly, "Drop the key at the reception."

"Sure, Brother Lu. I will do everything that you say!" Baxter understood what William meant instantly when William agreed to accept his car key.

After William hung up the phone, he continued to dig in.

Felicity, at this moment, was giving him a suspicious look.

After dinner, everyone walked out of the room. Steven deliberately patted William's shoulder in front of everyone and exclaimed, "Hey boy, you've done a good job this evening. Be a good dog of the Bai family in the future, and I will never mistreat you."

William ignored him and turned to Felicity. "Felicity, I'll drive you home."

Felicity was stunned. Her car had been smashed by Fernando and had not been repaired yet. How could William get a car?

William walked to the reception and got the car key from the receptionist. He added, "I have a car."

Everyone suddenly quieted down after hearing him.

Steven burst out laughing straight away. "My goodness! You have a car? Wow! The dog of our Bai family has bought a car! It's really amazing! I can't wait to see your car."

As soon as he finished talking, he went forward and snatched the car key from William's hand. He gave it a glimpse before he leaned his head back and laughed.

"Wow, look here everyone! It's a Lamborghini! This car key looks just like a real one! Go back and send me the link or contact details. I'd like to buy one to brag about it at the nightclub too!"

Everyone immediately looked at William with a completely different expression.

Lately, it was really popular for guys to show off luxury car keys in nightclubs to hook up with girls.

"I didn't expect this kid would do this too. He seems so simple-minded, but it looks like we are terribly wrong. He's actually a 'bad' boy."

A lady in her forties chimed in, "Well, you can never judge a book by its cover, can you? He must be doing this because he wants to boast himself in front of us. But little did he know that he's going to embarrass himself!"

Felicity's face darkened.

She pulled William and walked towards the exit. She really couldn't stand such humiliation!

But at this moment, Steven grabbed hold of William and asked with a note of sarcasm in his voice, "Hey, where did you park your car?"

William replied, "In the underground parking lot."

It sounded like William was telling the truth. Steven got even more intrigued. "Our car is also in the underground parking lot. Let's go down together. I'm very curious to see your car."

He thought that William was just putting on an act in front of the crowd.

He could not wait to reveal William's hypocritical side and lies.

However, William turned to Steven and said, "If Felicity doesn't want to sit in my car, I won't drive it. You guys can go ahead and leave."

When everyone heard this, they thought that William wanted to find an excuse to prevent his made-up stories from being exposed.

Rebecca glanced at William for a while before she pulled Felicity over abruptly. "Let's go to the underground parking lot and look at Steven's new car. We will try it out together."

Felicity was dragged into the elevator. She knew it was useless for her to struggle and break free from Rebecca's grip.

William shook his head and followed them.

When they arrived at the underground parking lot, Steven's lips curled into a smirk. He could not wait to see William being embarrassed in front of them. He asked, "William, where did you park your car?"

William replied calmly, "I don't know either. Let's look for it."

All of a sudden, the crowd burst into laughter.

This reason was so lame!

Felicity's face turned red.

She did not understand why William, who had always been arrogant, would do such a thing to humiliate himself.

Was it because she was angry with him the previous night? Was that why he was so eager to prove himself in front of her at this moment?

Steven put his hand on William's shoulder and said mockingly, "Sure. We have plenty of time left to look for it with you."

Then, Steven led the rest of the people around the parking lot to find William's so-called car.

There were several Lamborghinis in the parking lot. Every time Steven passed by a car, he bloviated, "Is this one your car? Oops, no, I don't think so. This car costs at least one million yuan. It's a pity that you can never make that amount of money."

His theatrical remarks made everyone's face turn red.

Everyone held back their laughter although they wanted to burst out laughing so much.

Felicity really couldn't stand such humiliation. She pulled at William to signal him that she wanted to leave this place.

At this time, Steven suddenly stopped at a car and trumpeted to everyone with a smile, "What a pity. I can't find William's car. But look, I've found the car I just bought."

Everyone's eyes were fixed on a white BMW SUV. It only took Steven one press on the key before the car's headlights blinked to life.

"Hey, this is the car I just bought. It costs more than seven hundred thousand yuan. I'll let you all experience a great ride this evening. Do you want to try it?" Steven gloated.

He shot a provocative look at William.

Everyone present knew that William had lost to Steven.

In fact, William had just made a fool of himself in public.

But at this time, the corners of William's mouth curved up into a smile, his eyes fixed on one point not far away.

Sometimes, coincidence happened in the most unexpected way.

A brand new Lamborghini was parked next to Steven's BMW.

Like a pretty horse, the Lamborghini that was painted red caught everyone's attention instantly.
