

MY PERSONAL LYCAN KING

Chapter 87 - Book-2 -2 Taking Her Out To An Outing!

'Tik'

'Tik'

"Jasmine!" Someone hushed.

'Tik'

'Tik'

"Come on! Wake up! Jasmine hunter!"

"Jasmine!!!"

"Pat" Jasmine woke up with a jerk when she felt the pain on her cheek.

"What t-" She was about to yell, however, before she could utter a word, a petite strong hand clasped on her mouth, making her panic in the darkroom as she immediately threw the person out of the window with her witch powers.

"God damn it! You bitch!" Jasmine heard her friend Milly cursing and couldn't help but rush towards the balcony to see if she was really here.

Much to her surprise, her friend was there lying face planted on the ground while her mate Jackson was laughing his ass off at her miseries.

"What kind of mate are you!! Laughing at the miseries and pain of your love." Milly scrunched before standing.

"What are you guys doing here?" Jasmine asked, confused as she peeked down at them from her balcony.

"Well, we are here to take you and let you have the fun of the night!" Jackson said, smiling like a fool, not before Kissing Milly's forehead.

Rolling her eyes at their display of affection, she pointed her fingers downstairs, indicating that Danny won't let her go.

"Come on it will be fun" Jackson whisper yelled.

"You guys go! I am not feeling like it either."

With that, she closed the door and window, not before showing them the middle finger for disturbing her sleep late at night.

Early in the morning, Jasmine was again woke up by the loud honking of cars.

"Whoever it is this time, I am going to make sure that you guys burn in hell, and I'll enjoy the sight with popcorn in my hands. You just wait!" She shouted annoyingly before teleporting herself downstairs, making Danny jump in his seat, who was having his breakfast.

"How many times I've to tell you to stop doing that? It's just a few stairs! Can't you climb your way down?" Danny shouted, however, he knew his words were falling on deaf ears.

Opening the door, she strutted towards the pavement and was visibly shocked when she saw her friend Milly, her mate Jackson, Alpha Sam, his wife Catherine and her two other friends Brittany and Tiffany sitting in the car.

"Woah! What's the occasion?" She asked as she pulled her hairs in a bun.

"Well, thank you for your colourful greeting," Jackson murmured, mentioning the colourful words she used earlier.

"Those who are intelligent know for whom those words were. Since you are the only person reacting to them, it means you know they were for you."

Jasmine rolled her eyes before looking at the alpha.

"We are going to Riverside City to drop those two girls off for their further studies. We talked to Danny about it already. And I think he has your bags ready too." Alpha Sam said, getting out of the car, motioning to two younger girls sitting in the car behind the alpha's car, who waived at her in return.

"And we know how much you like to go out, but Danny hardly has time to take you out after he started helping me with the duties. In fact, while I'll be gone, he'll be handling all the matters. So in return, I insisted on taking you with us. He didn't agree initially, but after I promised that there will be two boys always with you for your protection, he finally gave in." Alpha Sam said, rolling his eyes at the last part.

Only he knows how hard it was for him to handle and persuade Danny for the matter. However, he cared for Jasmine like his own daughter and knew that she wanted to go out somewhere and it was the perfect moment.

Turning around when she felt someone's presence behind her, Jasmine smiled at Danny before hugging him in gratitude.

She knew that he cares for her a lot.

Though she doesn't have any memories of her past, however, from the moment she has woken up with those injuries, Danny was the only person who stayed by her side and treated her like a parent, brother, sister, lover, friend, everything.

"Your bags are ready. Keep your toiletries and also an extra pair of shades. Don't loosen up your hairs too much, or they'll get damaged. Also, remember the rules. They are not to be violated under any circumstances." Danny said, making her nod in excitement.

He looked at how she rushed inside the house to take her bags and keep the necessary materials even when she'll be using her witch powers to bring anything she wants and doesn't have out of thin air.

Seeing her happy expression, all he could do was smile sadly at her. He wanted to show her the world too, but the only thing keeping him in this place was the fact that this place was governed by the coven of strongest witches because of their gratitude to the alpha lineage who had saved their annihilation.

Also, since those witches lived around 1000s of miles away from here, he knew that no one will find his girl here and become a threat to her life.

He had told the alpha about their condition partially, and he was willing to help in return for Danny becoming his secondary beta, which he readily agreed to.

"I have kept everything. I know not to forget any rules. No talking to strangers, no going out to weird places. Can I go now?" Jasmine asked with a bright smile on her face, making his heart soften immediately.

"You can go, baby." He said before hugging her and kissing her temple affectionately.

"Okay, enough with your protectiveness. We are going to be late if you start with reminding her everything." Luna Catherine said, making everyone chuckle at her words.

Sitting beside her friend Milly, she immediately hollered with joy once they exited the pack borders.

"So are we only going to drop the girls and come back?" Jasmine said after a long time.

Since the car was too crowded, once they reached the first fuel station, the first thing they did was arrange themselves in the three cars in order.

Now, the first car included Alpha Sam, Catherine, and the two younger girls.

The second car consisted of Jackson, Paul, Mike, and Justin.

The third car consisted of Tiffany, Brittany, Milly and Jasmine.

"Naa. Oh, we forgot to mention, we are also going to attend the birthday ceremony of the alpha king, which will be held few kilometres away from Riverside city." Milly said.

"Damn! Why didn't you guys told me that earlier! I would've brought my best gown for the occasion." Tiffany exclaimed.

"Like he is gonna ever look at you. Don't forget the stories that we've heard about him." Brittany said before rolling her eyes.

"Well, a girl can imagine. What if I am his mate that he had been looking for soo many years? Also, love can repel all the hate in this world. I will go shopping the first thing we reach there. And you all have to accompany me." Tiffany said.

"Woah! Those are some big words there. I'll see your confidence when we reach there. I bet you won't be even able to have a dance with him, let alone repel his hate with your love." Brittany smirked.

"Tut! Tut! You are so full of negativity." Tiffany murmured before looking out.

"What are these two talking about?" Jasmine finally asked after the girls stopped their bickering.

"Well, our Alpha king, though handles all the matters with utmost seriousness, has a heart of stone," Milly said.

"Woah, you are surely leaving no space for imagination." Jasmine chuckled at her big words.

"No, I am serious. I heard that whoever girl has tried to get closer to him has died mysteriously. Some say that he is a devil in disguise who feeds on innocent girls. His capabilities as a king can't be questioned, but when it comes to love affairs, he is worse than the worse Satan." Milly elaborated, making Jasmine roll her eyes.

"I bet it's all because he is ugly. What's his name again?" She asked.

"Damien Hunter. And no he is not ugly. He has a body even better than those werewolves models that you swoon over the whole day." Milly said, taking out her phone.

"Damien Hunter. This name sounds quite familiar to me. Hey, he is a hunter. And what's my name? Jasmine hunter. Don't you think it's destiny between us?" Jasmine joked, making everyone laugh at her.

"Here, see. This is him." Milly said, taking out a photo of him from a recent article published in the newspaper when he had helped many humans with food and beverages amidst a pandemic.

Taking the phone out of Milly's hands, Jasmine looked at the photo and couldn't help but feel a weird liking towards him.

It didn't help when the guy had the same amber coloured eyes that she keeps on dreaming about.

'Huh! It's just my hormones going haywire.' She thought before disposing of the thought.