

Chapter 9 Her black and white photo

Three months passed.

Alston's body was basically back to normal.

It's just that every time he thinks of Elena, his heart aches vaguely.

"Do you know how Elena is doing now?"

He asked his friend and her colleague.

But everyone shook their heads, saying they didn't know.

The woman who liked to hang around in front of him seems to have evaporated from the planet.

He couldn't hear a single word about her.

Elizabeth would say: "She is pregnant, probably staying in a scenic place to give birth . She is always aloof and arrogant, and does not have many friends around . Of course, few people know her whereabouts."

Arrogant?

Alston never felt that Elena was an arrogant person.

On the contrary, he finds her noisy and clingy as hell.

But others would not think she is aloof and arrogant, but regard her as a goddess, an ice beauty.

Yes.

Elena is a beauty.

She has the habit of working out, so her shape is perfect.

She is educated, classy, and always able to satisfy his man's vanity at the party.

He just never admitted it.

He always belittled her and denigrated her.

All the time, he claimed that she was the one who had ruined his happiness.

Elizabeth wanted them to get married.

Alston did not refuse.

But he did not give Elena a wedding, not even a decent wedding ring.

They got married in the city hall.

This woman never complained about it.

Elena... Where the hell did she go?

Alston took a picture of him and Elizabeth's invitation and sent it to Elena.

After waiting for a while, there was no response.

And then he took the initiative to make an invitation.

"I hope you can come to our wedding next Monday."

Then, he felt it was not enough, and added,

"Mom will be there too. She wants to see you."

But still, like a stone dropped into the sea.

Alston's heart was squeezed tight. He couldn't breathe.

"Mom, Alston and I are getting married, I can't sleep in the guest room forever."

Upstairs, Elizabeth and Caroline Collin were arguing.

No matter what Elizabeth said, Caroline just didn't want to give Elena's room to her.

Elizabeth was annoyed.

"Mom, if you still want Alston to be happy, you'd better not go against me."

Caroline still did not back down.

Elizabeth gritted her teeth and simply reached out and slapped herself in the face.

Then she shrieked and cried out.

Caroline looked at her with surprise: "You, what are you doing"

"Mom, why are you slapping me? I was just trying to get into the room to put some of my stuff....."

Elizabeth's tears fell so naturally.

Alston ran upstairs, two steps at a time.

He shielded her in his arms.

"Mom, you shouldn't have done that."

Caroline hurriedly explained, "I didn't hit her."

Alston took a deep breath, very helpless.

He said, "Mom, after our wedding, you'd better go back."

Those words made Caroline Collin freeze.

"Back to... what?"

"Go back to the manor abroad. Lizzy has suffered a lot. I think you are not quite fit to live together."

Caroline's eyes widened, "Suffered? You think I gave her a hard time?"

Alston took a long breath: "Mom, Lizzy is a very kind person, and she's not happy these days..."

"She's not happy. Do you think I'm happy?"

Caroline suddenly flared up.

"Mom, I don't want to fight with you."

Elizabeth pulled the corner of Alston's clothes, crying, "Alston, don't talk to her like this. It's my fault. I shouldn't have moved in this room."

"Elena has left, she..." Alston paused, "she said she will never come back, so there is no need to keep a room for her. Give it to Lizzy."

When he spoke of Elena, Caroline's eyes immediately turned red.

She couldn't hold back her tears.

Caroline's heart was oppressed to the extreme.

She gritted her teeth and opened the door of the room.

"The room is here; you can use it if you want."

Alston froze.

Caroline then walked into the room.

When she came out again, she was clutching a black frame in her hand.

On it was Elena's photo.

Elizabeth's face blanched: "What is this..."

Caroline could no longer hold back her tears: "It's Elena."

Elizabeth looked at everything in horror. How could she anticipate that the room would have these things in it?

Alston's heart suddenly clenched up.

He asked in confusion, "Mom, what are you talking about?"

"Can't you see this is Elena?"

Caroline exhaled and smiled coldly: "She loved you for more than twenty years..."

"Now, she died trying to save you."

"This heart of yours was donated by her."

"Do you know that she was pregnant with your child..."

"She gave up even the unborn child in her belly, just to save you, to give you this heart so that you could live!"

"The heart that was pumping in her chest was given to you!"
