

Chapter 37 Will you marry me

This time, Alston formally said goodbye to Elizabeth, burying the memories with her to the deepest.

He cleaned himself up a bit, ready to go to Elena. He has taken care of all his love debt, now it is time to formalize his relationship with Elena.

In the last life, he did not want to marry her. Now, Elena doesn't want to marry him. To say the least, god was really fair, Alston thought.

If he can get Elena back, he will really treat her well for the rest of his life, after all, she is the one who can sacrifice her own life to keep him alive!

Alston personally went and picked out a bouquet and a very expensive perfume, and then waited for Elena at her company.

And at this time, Elena who still did not know what she was going to face, and was driving slowly from home to company.

Her working hours are actually rather random, but she basically follows the schedule in order to give a good example.

When Elena arrived, the first thing she saw was Joey, breakfast in his hand.

She pretended as if nothing had happened, gently and deftly took the breakfast from Joey's hand, and softly said, "Thanks a lot."

Joey smiled at her, "If you have anything else you want to eat, you are welcome to order."

Elena nodded, a bit surprised. After all, Joey's food is really quite delicious, very much to her appetite. These days, she has been used to eating what he cooks.

But Joey did not allow her to order, and she didn't know why he accepted it now.

While she was lost in her thought, she heard a deliberate coughing sound, and the familiarity engraved in her soul told her that Alston was here.

She then turned to look and saw Alston standing behind her with flowers in his arms. It seemed that when she came over just now, there was indeed a person there.

Thinking about it, Elena was slightly embarrassed. She didn't expect that she didn't notice Alston at all.

If she were in her last life, she would be completely unable to believe it.

She coughed and asked Alston, "Hello, Mr. Rivers, I didn't know you were here. Is there something wrong?"

Her company is completely avoiding the Rivers family's investment and interests, so as not to let him find the opportunity to cooperate. And the flowers, who was he paying a visit to?

Was he there to see her? He wouldn't come after her because she showed him the true face of Elizabeth, right?

Elena thought, that even if he wanted to settle scores, he should go to Elizabeth.

Alston was exasperated by Elena's polite tone, "Elena, I'm here to thank you, and at the same time, I want to say it again, will you marry me?"

In the last life, they married really quickly. This life, with so many things that happened, it was time they got back together, Alston rightfully thought.

He was now fully sincere, and Elena should accept him. After that, he would have more confidence to face her.

Not like this, with Elena so high above and him sinking so low, which made him really uncomfortable.
