

Chapter 1161 Draco Is Really Angry

Mandy hadn't expected Janet to attend the dinner party. After she saw the heated exchange between her and Brenna from a distance, she became very excited, as she had been looking forward to something like this. She had thought Brenna would teach Janet a lesson, and didn't expect that Brenna herself would rather be taught a lesson by Brandon.

Mandy had never seen her as embarrassed as she was today!

"Brandon has some nerve. Who does he think he is? Does he think he can do whatever he wants in Barnes just because he's rich? Unbelievable!" She put her glass down and got ready to walk over to help.

"Calm down, Mandy!" Draco commanded in a cold voice, grabbing her wrist firmly and giving her a stern look.

Mandy was shocked by his reaction. "Why are you upset with me? It's your employee, Janet, that you need to be upset with! She needs some discipline!"

She could sense the anger in his tone and knew that he was trying to stand up for Janet.

In addition to that, he had been mean to her the entire night.

Mandy had thought that Draco was there to apologize, but now she understood that he only came there to confront her.

"You keep picking on Janet. On several occasions I've had to remind you to desist from it." Draco let go of her wrist and said coldly, "You didn't feel any remorse at all, and you ended up getting Brenna in trouble. You're so stubborn."

Mandy suddenly felt inexplicable sadness. She anxiously asked, "Do you mean to say that I intentionally brought Janet here tonight?"

The mere thought of that was ridiculous.

"Mrs. Olson and I didn't know that she would be here today. Mrs. Olson didn't plan this." Mandy had never been this devastated by Draco's disapproval.

He squinted his eyes and asked, "Wasn't it Brenna who brought a lot of bad press to W Marks? I've already spoken to the media outlets, and they all said that she was the one who leaked the information to them."

Mandy didn't know what to say in the moment. She then admitted with a lot of guilt, "Mrs. Olson was just telling the truth, and on the day that she called, Elizabeth tried to blame me for it."

With a clear mind, Draco immediately made a concise point. "If you hadn't gone ahead and moved all the things out of the W Marks, and also hadn't asked Brenna mount pressure on me to make me apologize, none of these events would have taken place today."

This made Mandy's heart skip a beat. She realized that Draco was really angry this time.

She bit her lower lip, with eyes full of tears. She touched the hem of his clothes and said softly, "Don't be so mad at me. I'm here to make amends."

Draco avoided her touch and glanced at her coldly. "I just came here to let you know that I won't be siding with you anymore. Take care of yourself. If you still consider me as a friend, don't do anything more disappointing than you already have."

As soon as Draco finished speaking, he left the villa. Mandy took a deep breath, wiped the tears from her face and ran out after him. 4

At the center of the dance floor, Janet rested her head on Brandon's shoulder and danced to the rhythm of the music. She cast an innocent glance at the entrance and suddenly saw the flash of a familiar figure.

She couldn't help but stare in the direction of the front door.

"What's wrong?"

"I just saw someone who looked like Mr. Wesley." By the time Janet finished mentally processing what she saw, the familiar figure had disappeared.

"It can't be him. Draco definitely wouldn't attend an event like this." As he held her waist, Brandon suddenly lifted her off her feet.

Taken by surprise by his move, Janet rested her hands on his shoulders and blushed, completely forgetting about Draco.