

Chapter 127 What Is the Truth

"Has Finley found anything?" Seeing the confident look on Rupert's face, Annabel squinted at him curiously.

Rupert adjusted his position in the bed and answered, "It's still under investigation, but I believe the truth will come to light soon."

"We have to find solid evidence before Judson holds the press conference. Otherwise, we'll be in trouble."

Rupert gave Annabel a reassuring smile. "Don't worry. I'll take care of everything. Judson won't keep this up for long."

Annabel sighed in relief. Rupert's smile inexplicably made her feel safe.

Anyway, she had already sent Anthony to investigate the matter. They would get to the bottom of this soon enough.

By then, Judson would have a taste of his own medicine.

The press conference was scheduled to take place in two days.

Everyone had their own theory about the explosion at Benton Group's branch factory. They were looking forward to the press conference, eager to find out the truth behind the so-called "accident" and the radiation material found in the Ice and Fire series.

The press conference was held in the function room of a luxury hotel in France.

Annabel arrived early and sat in an inconspicuous corner.

She texted Anthony, "Have you found anything out yet?"

Soon, Anthony replied, "Yes. I've sent it to your e-mail."

Reading this, Annabel cracked a small smile. "Thanks."

It seemed that today's press conference was going to be very interesting.

Judson was sitting onstage. He was wearing a smart-looking suit.

A lot of reporters surrounded the stage, and all cameras were pointed at Judson, bombarding him with flashing lights.

At ten o'clock sharp, the press conference began.

The emcee climbed onstage and greeted everyone. "Welcome to Benton Group's press conference. I will now hand the floor over to Mr. Judson Finch."

Amidst the applause, Judson stood up and held up his hand to silence the crowd.

"I believe that everyone here has heard about the explosion of Benton Group's branch factory in France. The reason why we called for a press conference is to clarify this matter."

"Was the 'Ice and Fire' collection really made with radioactive materials? How did these materials get into the factory?"

"Was the explosion really an accident?"

The reporters bombarded Judson with questions, one after another.

"Please be quiet first!" Judson raised his voice and looked at the crowd firmly, holding up a piece of paper. "In my hand is Benton Group's official statement on the matter."

After a pause, he turned to the paper and read it in a mechanical voice. "The investigation into the allegations that Benton Group used radioactive materials in the Ice and Fire jewelry series has revealed that some of the raw materials in the French branch's warehouse do contain radioactive elements. It turned out that two warehouse keepers were dissatisfied with the company for personal reasons. They wanted to take revenge on the company, so they tampered with the raw materials, introducing some materials that were indeed radioactive. This affected the quality of the manufactured jewelry, consequently poisoning the customers who purchased them. In addition, according to our investigation into the explosion, it turns out that one of the warehouse keepers were smoking, which was a direct violation of the rules. The cigarette butt came in contact with the explosive raw materials, causing the explosion. The two people who were killed in the explosion were proven to be the warehouse keepers who tampered with the raw materials before."

After hearing what Judson said, the crowd broke into discussion.

"Seriously?"

"The victims of the explosion were the two warehouse keepers who tampered with the raw materials? That can't be a coincidence!"

"It's a cover-up! Benton Group is just trying to cover up the truth!"
