

Chapter 13 Come to my house

The young man was deep in his thoughts and didn't notice Elena's measuring eyes. Her lips moved silently, "You guys are so alike. Since I can't get Alston, I can find a substitute, right?"

Elena's lips arched, revealing a sensuous smile, making the young man feel a trace of chill running down his spine. He turned his head to look at Elena and giggled a little, and let Elena's cold hard heart move slightly.

She asked the young man with interest, "What is your name?"

"My name is Joey Smith, and you? Can I know your name? I want to repay you." Joey bit his lip and spoke.

Elena smiled lightly. He looked like a little rabbit. She didn't know whether he was a real rabbit or not, but, whatever, as long as she liked him.

She casually took a business card and gently and provocatively put it down from Joey's collar.

Joey was confused for a moment, felt the coolness from the business card, panicked and unbuttoned his shirt and took the business card into his hands. He did not understand why this girl kept molesting him.

And her aura was too strong to resist, and this feeling made him a little distracted.

But when he saw the name on the card, Joey's eyes widened at once, "You are Elena? Oh my god, I'm not dreaming, right?"

While speaking, he pinched his thigh and cried out of pain.

Elena was in a good mood at this moment, completely not expecting she would find an intriguing boy.

The vibrancy of his body made her feel alive and her world was no longer colorless.

The two had a chat, and not long after, Elena heard his voice getting lower and lower.

She turned her head to look and saw Joey's head gradually leaning back in the seat and falling asleep.

At this moment, she laughed again, "How can you be so credulous?"

When Elena drove to their school, the school gates were already closed. Elena pushed Joey awake, "Your school is here!"

Joey said thanks in a daze, and tried to pull open the car door to get off, but found that the door was locked.

In a flash, he woke up with a jolt and looked at Elena with uncertainty.

Elena gestured for him to look outside, "The school was closed long ago. How can you go back?"

Joey did see it, and he was already dumbfounded, "How could this happen? I haven't finished my project assignment yet! Ah, David Black, I hate your gut!"

His reaction was expected by Elena, "It's your first time staying out at night, right?"

Joey nodded with a sobbing face, "Yes."

"Did your roommate named David Black take you out?" Elena asked again.

Joey nodded again, "Yes."

"Next time don't do this. You're not up for it!" Elena reached out her hand around his chest, causing Joey to nod and lean back in panic.

Finally, Elena directly made a decision, "Since you can't get in, then come to my house."