

Chapter 16 Let nature take its course

He was not sure how Elena thought, but Joey thought he knew something about this kind of thing.

So, he said, "In fact, the more you avoid him, the more you may not be able to let go of him at the end. It is better to let nature take its course. This way, although it's not the quickest way, it's the most effective."

"This is new." Elena's cold eyes looked at him, causing Joey to subconsciously take a step back.

"Afraid of me?" Elena raised her eyebrows, "Since you are afraid of me, but you still dare to say those things. It seems that you are really a bit silly and bold!"

Joey stifled, "I'm not silly. I'm afraid that something will happen to you."

"What does it matter to you if something happens to me?" Elena asked with extreme indifference.

Joey opened his mouth, and finally could only shake his hand and go out.

But where could he go? After going out, he could only stand in the hallway in bewilderment.

On the contrary, Elena, looking out the window again, found Alston had already left.

She sighed and thought about what she had said to Joey earlier.

Elena went out and saw Joey leaning against the rail and falling asleep.

She squatted down to his side, her fingertips lingering on his face. He is handsome but his words are indeed a bit too much.

It seems that in the future, before bringing him over, she has to make some rules for him.

Joey seemed to have felt the itch on his face and raised his hand and grabbed it.

Elena looked at their two entwined hands . She suddenly realized this rebirth was not so meaningless.

The next day, Joey did not see Elena. It was her butler who instructed the driver to send him to school.

It was also at this time that Joey felt that although Elena was a bit abnormal, she was generally a good person.

So, when Elena sent her friend request, he accepted it at once.

He clicked into Elena's homepage, which was monotonous, with occasional shares of songs, and nothing else worthy of attention.

Elena did not talk about anything big with him, at most some holiday greetings, and that was all.

What Joey didn't know was that while he thought her life was peaceful, she lived quite a blast.

Early that morning, Elena was asked out by Alston.

Originally, she did want to avoid him, but accidentally she remembered Joey saying, the more you want to forget, the more you cannot forget.

The place Alston booked was always classy and upscale.

But in her opinion, she couldn't do anything and have to pretend she enjoyed herself here. So she always felt very tired, and couldn't get enough to eat.

So, when the food was here, she was uninterested . Of course, if it was in the past, she would have been grateful. But this time, she did not want to indulge him again.

Seeing her like this, Alston took the initiative to ask, "Elena, you don't like this?"

Elena tossed her hair back, "Isn't it obvious?"

Alston eyes narrowed, "You often came here before, so I thought..."

"You think I still like this place?" She asked back with amusement.