

Chapter 23 New energy company

Elena drove back to an office building downtown.

Immediately someone greeted her, "Miss, you finally came. Today someone came to ask about the new energy . We sent you so many messages, but did not get your reply."

This was a bit of a complaint, yet Elena was in a happy mood today, so she didn't care about the secretary's words. She just said, "Send all the documents to my office, I'll read them here."

Her new energy company is just starting up. They have no big programs.

At first, she just wanted to kill some time, after all, she was used to working and was bored without something to do on her hands.

She never thought she opened the company.

The new energy resources were something she hadn't ventured into in her previous life, and she knew the prospects were good, but if you really wanted to do well, it would take a lot of effort.

So, she hired some experts.

Now they did not have a lot of liquidity on hand, and this was a business demanding stable funding, so her idea of slacking off was just nipped in the bud.

Thinking about it, Elena was a little amused. When she raised her hand, she saw the fire charm accessory still hanging on her little finger.

Placing it on her desk, she finally felt like she was finally truly alive.

At this moment, she wanted to make this company the strongest, so that Alston could see what he missed before.

Elena hooked her lips and smiled.

An employee outside passed by and inadvertently saw her smile, which instantly made him hit the wall with a jolt. Everyone laughed, "Jesus, Lee, focus, which vixen has hooked your soul away?"

Lee said in his heart, if they knew the vixen was their cold-hearted boss, they would all get down on their knees and beg for mercy.

So, he hurriedly shook his head, "What nonsense! I just drifted off. If you guys are too idle, apply for more projects with the boss!"

Several colleagues made zipping moves near their mouths.

When Elena was in the company, she worked wholeheartedly on a project, so she did not know that some people outside looking for her were crazy.

Especially Alston who had his heart set on her.

It may be that Elena's coldness has made him know that he has become a dispensable presence in her heart, so he has been careful to contact her.

But he never expected that Elena just wouldn't answer his call.

Even though he changed his phone number, there was still no answer. He seemed to have been put in a forgotten corner.

So, he went crazy trying to get hold of Elena, he knew her previous address, so he went there to wait her here for half a month, but she didn't even come back.

Then he had no choice but to send someone there to keep an eye on her, but also failed.

Elena seemed to disappear from this world. He panicked, as if he was reliving his previous life.

The time he saw her again, was her posthumous photo.

But this time he didn't have heart failure, much less want her heart.

It couldn't be that she doesn't want to live, right?

Alston thought about this time in his previous life, and shook his head. Although what happened now was a little different from before, she was still the same person. She should not be the person who would bail.
