

Chapter 24 James Channing

Thinking of this, Alston started to plan to visit Elena's relatives and friends. But she has none. She used to regard him as her everything. He is her only relative and friend.

At this moment, Alston realized how cruel he had been to her, and he couldn't help but slap himself, "What have you done?"

He did like Elizabeth, but when Lizzy really married him, he knew that he and Elizabeth couldn't work out.

He was willing to go to protect Elizabeth but did not want to marry her anymore.

Elena was different; he finally realized that it was Elena who was protecting him all along.

Alston covered his face, "Elena, where the hell are you?"

Fourteen years is not that easy to forget, right?

At this time, his secretary John came in, "Mr. Rivers, you have a dinner party this evening. It's time to get dressed."

He always dresses meticulously, no matter what occasion. It's a habit that has been kept for years.

"John, tell them I can't make it. I have other things to do."

John wanted to say something, but finally said, "Mr.

Rivers, aren't you looking for Miss Forbes? I heard she will attend it."

At this instant, Alston was shouting, "I'll go!"

John turned around and quietly breathed a sigh of relief.

The meaning of the Channing family holding this banquet was very obvious . They wanted to pull the strings with everyone for their illegitimate son.

Speaking of which, the Channing family's illegitimate son had a good relationship with Alston before, and then after Elena's operation, the two drifted apart and are now barely considered friends.

Last time Alston was dumped by Elena, James Channing was there. But this doesn't matter. For these people, there are no eternal friends, only eternal interests.

So, he had already sent invitations to those two and probably wanted to see their drama.

James Channing, a person who is good at scheming, seems to get along with everyone, but in fact, he is a snake hiding in the shadows.

Relying on playing dumb and nice, step by step, he tortured the other two sons of the Channings. So, they had no choice but to ask him back.

James Channing has been preparing this banquet for a long time! And Elena, he would love to pull that woman down the altar.

He turned on a lighter in his hand, hooked his lips, and smiled, "I heard that Elena has a crush on a college boy? Good, I need a waiter here!"

The banquet had already started. Elena arrived late, and the eyes of the crowd were focused on her.

She was dressed in a black evening gown, showing her pretty face and perfect figure to the fullest.

She was going to show her face, greet the Channings and go, because she was so busy and she almost forgot about it.

If it wasn't for James Channing's father who was polite to her before, Elena was not even going to attend this time.
