

The Guardian's Sword By Talking Cigarette

Chapter 681-690

Chapter 681

"So just speak up and don't hold back."

Zander poured Harry a glass of water and sat down on the couch.

They had little contact these days to keep a low profile

Harry must have something to say if he purposely came here to see Zander

"Brother Zander, I..."

"I don't think I'm cut out for this.

"I won't back down if you asked me to go out and kill the enemy, but I'm not comfortable being the general manager.

"Look at this suit. It's not as comfortable as my camo clothing "

Harry pulled at his fancy suit, his tone a little bitter

"The business world is just like a war zone. It's pretty much the same thing.

Zander shook his head slightly, unable to suppress his smile

It indeed bothered Harry.

"Pretty much?"

"You have no idea how confused I was when they showed me financial statements and proposals.

Harry picked up his coffee cup and took a sip, sounding even more resentful.

“That’s why I hired Qamar.

“He has a clean background and was a soldier. He once started his own company, but his opponent tricked him and made his capital chain rupture, causing him to go bankrupt.

“He knows more about all things business than any of us. I hired him to help you.

“Over time, you can give him full control of the company when we trust him enough.

“We’ll never have the risk of a ruptured capital chain here so he can give it a go.

“You can relax by then.”

Zander put down his coffee cup after he finished speaking to Harry.

He and Harry were friends in River City, so there was no such thing as manner and status.

“Alright.”

Harry nodded and had to accept.

However, Harry took another sip of his coffee, moved his mouth, and went on saying, “Brother Zander, I don’t understand. We...

“Forget it. Let’s not talk about it.”

Harry stopped talking halfway through the sentence.

“I know what you’re trying to say.

“You wonder why the Commander is wasting his time in River City when he’s recovered.

“You think he should find a way to return to the army, get what’s his, get revenge on his enemies instead of doing business in River City and wasting time, right?”

Harry froze slightly as Zander spoke because it was exactly what he wanted to say.

He had no idea what Sean was up to.

Was he doing business to make money?

However, he would never be short of money with what Sean had accumulated.

What was the use of all the planning to start Reach For Will Group?

“Brother Zander, you know that the war on the frontier is worrying. No one can handle it.

“I don’t understand why we’re doing business here when we’re supposed to be in battle.

“You have the most contact with Brother Sean. What is his plan?”

Harry ventured to ask, clenching his teeth slightly.

Instead of answering Harry’s question right away, Zander pointed out the window.

Brother Sean had plans, of course.

“But before I answer your question, look at that tree.”

Zander pointed at a tree not far from the window, with a flock of sparrows standing on its branches.

“Do you know why sparrows aren’t worried that the branch will suddenly break when they are jumping about on it?”

Harry was stunned by Zander’s question.

“They don’t believe in the strength of the branches but their own wings.”

Zander slowly withdrew his gaze, and Harry gradually saw the light when he heard that.

“You have to be tough to forge iron. It is better to seek oneself than to seek others.”

With that said, Zander paused slightly for two seconds and asked again, “Who do you think Commander can seek now? Who would let him seek them?”

Harry could not answer the question.

“Let me ask you again. What keeps a nation running?”

Zander picked up the coffee pot and asked again.

The Guardian’s Sword By Talking Cigarette Chapter 682

Chapter 682

“What sustains a nation...”

11

Harry froze a little before thinking with a frown.

“Are the people and the citizens.”

Harry said a few seconds later.

“That’s right.

“But there are many different types of people.

“What sustains a country are businesses, politics, and the army!

“Large countries have heavy troops to protect themselves and their people.

“Top politicians make decisions about the state.

“Business magnates control the economic lifeblood.”

Harry instantly understood and nodded his head as Zander said this.

“Brother Sean has lost his influence in the army.

“Getting involved in the business world is the most efficient and quickest way to gain influence.

“It’s also the only way we can take.”

Zander poured Harry more tea, sounding serious.

Sean was not short of money and could make Reach For Will Group expand and develop rapidly.

Given time, he could build a business empire.

“Could he do that in River City?”

Harry asked again after he understood.

“I don’t know.

“But Brother Sean said other cities can’t give him what he wants, but River City can.

“He said River City might be small and inconspicuous among the countless cities of Dragon Kingdom

“But you can make a big splash if given the chance.

“I don’t know what’s on his mind, but I’ll do whatever he says.

Zander picked up the coffee cup, speaking in an earnest tone.

“Brother Zander, I got it now.”

Harry nodded heavily, no longer as frustrated as before.

“Now, let’s go back to that topic.

“It’s not that Brother Sean doesn’t want to contact his old connections. It’s because he can’t.

“Again, you have to be tough to forge iron. How can people respect Brother Sean if he has nothing to offer?

“Speaking of which, I’ve seen a lot of new things since I returned to the civilian world.

“Look at this app. It’s called TikTok. I watch it when I’m free. 1

“Influencers with five million followers would never hang out with influencers with only hundreds of thousands of followers.

“Why do

you

think that is?”

Zander’s statement gave Harry an epiphany.

Both were at different levels and not in the same circle.

If Sean had to go to his adopted father's old connection, it was no different than begging.

More importantly, it was unlikely anyone would want to offend Blaze, who was now a nine- star Commander, for him even if he begged.

"Brother Zander, I got it now!

Harry nodded his head heavily, all doubt dispelled.

"Do your job.

"The Commander has never let us down."

Zander slowly got up and walked to the French window as he muttered to himself.

"Yes!"

Harry replied and got up to leave.

4 p.m.

Sean was looking at a file.

"Jason's going to be a tough nut to crack if I want to deal with the Zimmer family."

Sean mumbled to himself. It seemed he had to deal with Jason after all.

However, Sean had not figured out how he should take down Jason.

Just then, his phone rang.

The caller ID showed an unfamiliar number.

Sean hung up and continued to look through the file.

However, the number called him again seconds later.

Sean picked up his phone and pondered for two seconds before picking it up.

"Hello, is this Mr Lennon?"

"I'm a doctor at River City People's Hospital I was Old Madam Quinn's attending doctor the last time she was sick

The tone of the person at the other end of the line sounded a little panicked They identified themselves as soon as the line got through.

"What's the matter?"

Sean was a little confused. 'Why did the hospital call me?'

"Mr. Lennon, we have an emergency. An old lady has the same condition as Old Madam Quinn last time.

"None of the specialists in our hospital can do anything about it, so..."

The doctor's voice was pleading.

"I don't have time."

Sean wanted to hang up without thinking after hearing that.

He never had the grand idea of practicing medicine to help people.

There were so many patients in the hospital every day that he could not save all of them even if they were to clone him.

“Mr. Lennon, wait! Listen to me first!

“The old lady isn’t an ordinary case. You have much to gain if you cure her!”

The doctor sounded so urgent as they clutched the phone and said.

“Haha.”

Sean felt like laughing when he heard that.

Why did they sound like he should rush over and treat her?

Even if she was not ordinary and was rich or powerful, what could she do if Sean refused to cure her?

It was ridiculous for the doctor to talk like that.

“That’s your hospital’s business.

“I have something to do, so I gotta hang up.”

Sean shook his head and was about to hang up.

“I’ll call my brother and tell him to come back from the army!”

Just then, a woman’s voice rang suddenly.

Sean paused when he heard that.

“Mr. Lennon. Are you still there, Mr. Lennon?”

The doctor on the other end of the line asked again as he seemed to have walked into a quiet room. 7

The Guardian's Sword By Talking Cigarette

Chapter 683

Chapter 683

"What's going on with the old lady?"

Sean was silent for two seconds before asking.

"Mr. Lennon, she has the same condition as Old Madam Quinn.

"Her son is servicing in the army, so he can't always be there for her. She's already sick, and her missing her son aggravated her condition.

"If you don't help her, she'll be dead in two days."

The doctor's tone had a deep resignation.

Sean was slightly silent before letting out a sigh.

He could ignore the rest.

However, he could not ignore the old lady.

Sean used to be a member of the army, and he could not just look away.

Even if soldiers did not share the same division, they were still comrades.

In Sean's opinion, the families of these soldiers deserved to be taken care of.

"I'll be right there."

With that said, Sean hung up, grabbed his car keys, and headed to the hospital.

River City People's Hospital. Outside the intensive care unit.

The doctor called Sean and waited anxiously in the hallway.

A man and a woman were standing in the doorway.

The woman seemed to be in her thirties, and her eyes were red and swollen from crying.

The man next to her, presumably her husband, was softly comforting her.

Besides that, several other medical experts were in a nearby room, discussing treatment plans.

"What should we do? What should we do?"

"Is there nothing your hospital can do?"

"Hurry and save my mother. My brother will thank you!"

The woman reached out to grab one of the doctors' arms as he said hoarsely.

However, several doctors gently shook their heads and sighed.

They were doctors, not gods!

There were diseases they could not cure and people they could not save.

"Ms. Yeast, take it easy. "

"I know a good doctor. He must have a way."

Dr. Sutherland, who had called Sean, came forward and comforted softly.

“What nonsense are you talking about?”

An attending doctor immediately glared at Dr. Sutherland.

There was nothing the whole hospital could do, and Dr. Sutherland was talking nonsense.

How would they explain when they failed to save the old lady?

“Chief, last time Old...”

Dr. Sutherland was about to explain, but the attending doctor cut them off.

“Stop talking. We’re working on a treatment plan.”

The attending doctor frowned slightly. Though they said they were working on a treatment plan, they knew they were only comforting themselves.

The old lady inside was getting worse. She would not live another day.

They were dragging their feet, waiting for the old lady’s son to come back and see her one last time.

“Where is she?”

Just then, a voice came from behind them.

Sean asked Dr. Sutherland as he walked over.

“In there. Right in there.”

Dr. Sutherland did not expect Sean to be so quick. They hurriedly led Sean to the ward door.

“Stop! Who is he?”

The attending doctor immediately stopped them.

“Chief, I don’t have time to explain Old Madam Yeast’s condition to you. We can’t afford the delay!”

Dr. Sutherland clenched their teeth slightly, their voice a little impatient.

“I’m asking you, who is he?”

The attending doctor snorted coldly but showed no intention of stepping aside.

“He’s the doctor I found. He must have a way to cure Old Madam Yeast.”

Dr. Sutherland also knew that the attending doctor would not allow a stranger to casually examine patients, so they explained through clenched teeth anyway.

Several doctors around Dr. Sutherland could not help frowning when they said this.

How could a twenty—something man like Sean have a way to handle something specialists like them were stumped with?

Was that a joke?

No one believed it. The woman called Talia Yeast shook her head too.

“My last name is Lennon.”

Sean glanced at the attending doctor and muttered.

“Lennon?”

The attending doctor was stunned at first. Then they could not help frowning.

There was lately a doctor with the last name Lennon in River City, who was known as Miracle Doctor Lennon.

Ordinary people might not know much about this, but medical professionals like them had heard about him.

Could it be the man before them?

“Are you sure?”

The attending doctor paused for a few seconds, still a little unconvinced.

However, Old Madam Yeast’s condition was urgent. If she was not treated effectively, she might not survive.

Why not make every possible effort?

“I’ll have to see it to find out.”

Sean did not speak too confidently.

“Ms. Yeast, why don’t we let Mr. Lennon give it a try?”

The attending doctor hesitated for a few seconds before turning around to ask.

“Try? Are you using my mother as a guinea pig?”

“No! I disagree!

“Does he have a medical license? Does he have clinical experience?”

Talia pointed her hand at Sean and shouted questions at the doctor.

The Guardian's Sword By Talking Cigarette

Chapter 684

Chapter 684

Sean glanced at Talia with a poker face.

Sean would have walked away right now if it were not for the fact that the son of the old lady in there was a soldier.

He did not reject healing and saving people, but he would not actively seek to do it.

Everything depended on fate.

He would not do anything if it was not meant to be.

"Ms. Yeast, let me be honest with you. Our hospital has no way to save Old Madam.

"The last time Mr. Lennon intervened, the patient he treated had the same condition as Old Madam Yeast.

"So only Mr. Lennon could save your mother!"

Dr. Sutherland explained earnestly to Talia as they did not want to see Old Madam Yeast's condition get worse.

Talia was silent for nearly half a minute before she looked up again.

"Okay! I'll give you a chance to cure her.

"If you can cure her, I'll give you money or anything you want!

"But if you make my mother sicker, I'm not gonna let you get away with this!"

Talia clenched her teeth and looked intently at Sean.

“Severe brain disease. There are only minutes left to heal her.

“Keep talking nonsense. I’m in no hurry.”

Sean looked at his watch and said indifferently.

“You!”

Talia was furious.

Dr. Sutherland did not have time to say that much. They opened the door and let Sean in alone.

“Mr. Lennon, everything you might need is ready for you.

“Let me know if you need anything else.”

Dr. Sutherland closed the door and waited outside after sending Sean into the hospital ward.

“What do you mean?”

“Did you just let him go in by himself?”

Talia’s eyes widened again at the sight of it.

“Ms. Yeast, please wait for a while.”

Dr. Sutherland had no time to explain much to Talia. They stood at the door and waited.

“I’m telling you. No one could get away with this if something happened to my mom!”

Talia clenched her teeth and pointed at the crowd as she shouted.

Even though she agreed to let Sean treat Old Madam Yeast, she did not have much hope for

Sean.

In the ward.

After checking Old Madam Yeast's pulse, Sean raised his hand and parted her eyelid.

Old Madam Yeast had no idea of any of this. She had fallen into a severe coma.

Sean already knew what was going on after taking her pulse.

"Missing him is inevitable, but you should be even more proud.

"He dedicated his life to protect everyone and his country.

"You should be proud of him."

Sean sterilized the silver needles as he whispered.

Old Madam Yeast, who had fallen into a severe coma, moved her head slightly as if she had heard Sean.

Swoosh!

The silver needle glimmered as it penetrated the acupoints accurately.

"He's luckier than I am.

"At least he has an old mother to look forward to.

"No one worries about me, and no one will be proud of me."

Such ideas could not help appearing in Sean's head, but he quickly got rid of them.

Swoosh!

Swoosh!

Nine silver needles of varying lengths were quickly inserted into specific acupoints.

Boom!

Sean flicked his fingers, and the nine needles trembled as if pulled together by an invisible thread.

Then Sean reached out to put his thumb on one side of Old Madam Yeast's head and massaged

1. it.

If a doctor had been in the ward, they would have been so shocked that they could not say a word.

A monitor nearby showed that Old Madam Yeast's soaring intracranial pressure was slowly subsiding.

As time ticked by, it was almost down to normal.

It was a medical miracle.

Medical doctors local and abroad would be so shocked that their jaws would drop.

It was impossible in the medical world to do this without a craniotomy.

Sean was doing the impossible casually.

Time ticked by.

Half an hour had passed in the blink of an eye.

Talia and the rest waiting outside grew more anxious.

“No! I’m going in.”

Talia stepped forward and was about to push the door open.

“Ms. Yeast, Mr. Lennon doesn’t like to be disturbed during his sessions.”

“Why don’t you wait a little while longer?”

Dr. Sutherland immediately stopped Talia from entering.

“Wait? Wait any longer, and my mother will be gone!

“I must be a fool to believe someone you found randomly.

“Get out of the way! It’s my mother in there, and I have the right to enter!”

Talia reached out to push Dr. Sutherland away. She desperately tried to get in.

Thud!

Just then, the door opened from the inside, and Sean stepped out.

Swoosh!

Everyone froze.

“Mr. Lennon, what... what’s the matter?”

Dr Sutherland asked in a panic as they went forward immediately.

“Her condition was severe, but not anymore.

“She’s okay now.”

Sean waved his hand, ready to leave.

“Stop right there!”

“It’s not up to you to decide whether my mom is okay!”

Talia called out to Sean before following the other doctors into the ward.

Old Madam Yeast was still in a coma

However, she looked better.

“Hess’ This This This This”

The attending doctor suddenly gaped and pointed at the monitoring device with a trembling finger

“Well? How’s my mom?”

Talia frowned and asked.

“Old Madam Yeast’s intracranial pressure has returned to normal.

“Her indicators are stable. Her... her intracranial hydrocephalus has been relieved!

“How did he do it?”

“It’s... it’s a miracle!”

The attending doctor could not help exclaiming in marvel.

“What? Really? Is this true?”

Talia widened her eyes and exclaimed in disbelief.

“Now, can I go now?”

Sean asked indifferently after glancing at Talia.

“Ah... You... You... I...”

Talia’s face turned red, and her heart filled with mixed feelings.

Sean shook his head slightly and headed out of the ward.

At the same time.

Two modified Hummers raced up to the hospital gate.

The special license plates on them caused security to open the gate.

Screech!

Six uniformed youths instantly dismounted after the two cars had stopped.

A middle-aged man with a stern expression got off the car hastily.

The man was River City Garrison Sergeant Major Jason. 2

The Guardian’s Sword By Talking Cigarette Chapter 685

Chapter 685

What was a garrison sergeant major?

Soldiers would be stationed outside some important cities and suburbs.

Their job was to protect the peace.

Underworld kingpins like Flint would be punished if they offended the authorities.

Things could escalate if he fought back, or if River City's departments could not take him down fast enough.

The matter would be handed over to the soldiers by then.

Therefore, a city garrison was a calming presence.

No one dared to do anything with them around.

The so-called garrison sergeant major was the top commander of this troop.

You could imagine how important Jason was.

The Zimmer family could develop rapidly because of Jason.

With Jason's status, he could support anyone he wanted with just one word.

However, he could not help the Zimmer family too much. After all, his identity was sensitive. If someone found something against him, he would be finished.

However, it was enough for the Zimmer family to make a fortune only by giving them some information that others could not get even if he did not know publicly help the Zimmer family.

With the Zimmer family's power, some cooperation's could never touch them.

However, the Zimmer family would get special treatment from big companies if Jason gave them a hint.

Jason had been in the army for a long time and did not mingle in River City, so not many people knew him.

However, those who knew him were respectful to him.

“Sir, Old Madam is in the intensive care unit.”

A young man in uniform with a steely expression reported to Jason.

Jason nodded and picked up his pace again.

Sean had already left Old Madam Yeast’s ward by now.

Dr. Sutherland followed him.

“Mr. Lennon, you... you’re so impressive!

“If you can use your medical skills in our hospital...”

Dr. Sutherland was so excited that they instinctively wanted to make Sean an offer.

However, they quickly closed their mouth mid sentence.

Everyone had their own ambitions. Sean did not want to sit in the hospital and give medical aid, so they did not want to talk much about it.

“Go home. I have something to do.”

Sean said casually as he stepped out.

“Mr. Lennon, don’t you wanna wait here?

“Old Madam Yeast’s son is said to be important in the army.

“He’ll be very grateful to you for curing his mother.

“So why don’t you wait?”

Dr. Sutherland said it for Sean’s benefit..

After all, knowing an army bigshot was a great thing.

You needed connections most to survive in society.

If Sean could hold on to that connection, he would be making rapid advances in life!

At least no one in River City dared to mess with him.

“No thanks.”

Sean frowned slightly.

He must not make contact with anyone from the army until he was ready.

He should take one step at a time.

If he reached out to the wrong person ahead of time, it would disrupt Sean’s plans or even derail them.

He was well aware of the power of that position.

Blaze wanted to kill Sean, and it was as easy as killing an ant.

With that in mind, Sean slowly stopped walking.

“I need you to keep my identity secret.”

Sean spoke sternly as he looked at Dr. Sutherland with authority in his eyes.

“Well... Okay! I know what to do.”

Dr. Sutherland froze for a second before nodding in reply.

"You don't have to see me to the door."

Sean reached out to stop Dr. Sutherland and whispered.

"Yes! By the way, Mr. Lennon, has Old Madam Yeast recovered?"

"Does she need any medication?"

Concerned about their patient, Dr. Sutherland asked about Old Madam Yeast's condition again.

"No.

"I have to do it again if we want to get rid of the disease."

Sean pondered before saying while straightening his clothes.

"Again?"

"Well, Mr. Lennon, when is that gonna be?"

Dr. Sutherland froze slightly before quickly asking.

"Not now.

"As a doctor, you should know that we could only identify some diseases at their onset.

"Then only can you begin to cure them.

"So let's just wait."

Sean said before walking slowly into the elevator.

Dr. Sutherland froze for a few seconds before understanding what Sean meant.

Since Sean asked to wait, it meant he was still willing to help out.

In that case, Dr. Sutherland had nothing to worry about.

Downstairs.

Jason and his crew were waiting anxiously at the elevator entrance.

“What floor is Old Madam on?”

Jason checked the time and asked through gritted teeth.

“Sir, she’s on the eighth floor.”

Jason abandoned the idea of taking the stairs when a young man told him what floor she was

1. on.

Ding!

The elevator finally reached the first floor, and Jason and the rest were about to enter it.

Just then, a casually dressed young man with a calm expression slowly stepped out.

Jason and the young man instantly met each other’s eyes.

Then they both narrowed their eyes and sized up each other quickly.

The Guardian's Sword By Talking Cigarette

Chapter 686

Chapter 686

The young man was none other than Sean.

Sean's eyes narrowed slightly and moved subconsciously, landing on Jason's shoulders, chest, and soles of his feet momentarily.

Jason, who was utterly anxious, subconsciously stepped aside and let Sean go first

Sean withdrew his gaze, calmly stepped out, and nodded.

Jason immediately led his crew into the elevator and pressed the floor number

However, Jason turned around to look at Sean after entering the elevator.

Sean had a steady gait, and he could feel a pair of eyes watching him from behind him.

However, he never turned around.

"He had removed his epaulet and badge number

"But he did not change out of his custom made army boots!"

Sean mumbled to himself as he walked.

He did not know who the person was, but they both felt a sense of familiarity with each other.

It was the kind of aura that could only be forged through battle.

He was at least a lieutenant in the army.

The elevator.

"Whew!"

Jason let out a breath as the elevator doors closed slowly.

He took out a paper towel and wiped the sweat from his forehead.

"What's wrong, Sir?"

A young man next to Jason noticed something wrong with him.

"I'm alright."

Jason wiped away his sweat. How could he tell his subordinates what was on his mind?

He made way for Sean not out of politeness.

It was more like instinct.

He did not want to admit it, but he had to admit that the young man's aura intimidated him!

It felt like a beast meeting the king of beasts, submitting subconsciously.

Jason had no idea where the feeling came from, but that moment was so vivid in his mind.

It puzzled him.

Jason was a garrison sergeant and had participated in numerous wars.

He could not believe someone could subdue his aura.

Besides, that person was only a young man in his 20s, and that shocked Jason.

“River City’s really something!”

Jason took a couple of deep breaths to adjust his mood before stepping out of the elevator and going straight to the ward.

The ward.

Several specialists were giving Old Madam Yeast a full body examination.

The more they checked, the more shocked they were.

“This.... this is a miracle!”

“What did he do to get the hydrocephalus absorbed so quickly?”

That attending doctor could not stop exclaiming in wonder.

Talia had no medical knowledge. She only knew that Old Madam Yeast was now much better, and that was enough.

“Excellent. Excellent!”

Talia’s face was full of excitement, and her heart filled with gratitude for Sean.

“Talia, how’s Mom?”

Just then, Jason pushed the door open and entered. The people he brought waited outside.

“Brother, you’re back!”

“You’re finally back. I was scared to death!”

Although Talia was in her thirties, she still behaved like a little girl in front of Jason. She hugged Jason and began to cry.

"I'm sorry.

"I can't leave my post at will."

Jason gritted his teeth slightly with a guilty look on his face.

"I know you have important tasks. Mom and I understand.

"Mom's alright now. The... the man cured Mom."

Talia wiped her eyes and quickly explained to Jason.

"The man?"

Jason was a little confused.

'Didn't the hospital cure Old Madam?'

Jason frowned slightly and went to Old Madam Yeast's hospital bed and reached out to take her hand without thinking much.

Two seconds later, Jason fell to his knees.

"Mom, I was unfilial. I almost..."

Jason gave a long sigh. It was difficult to be both loyal and filial since ancient times. In this position, he could not be around his family all the time.

Dr. Sutherland and the rest did not speak

They could tell that Jason was a good son.

However, he had to remain by his post.

“Brother, the hospital told me Mom was critical. She almost...”

Talia stepped forward and gently helped Jason to his feet. “Whew!

“I want to thank whoever cured my mother.”

Jason got up, exhaled, and turned to look at the crowd.

Several doctors, including Talia, looked at Dr. Sutherland in unison.

Sean was already gone, and only Dr. Sutherland knew Sean’s identity.

Jason immediately walked up to Dr. Sutherland and held out his palm to thank them.

“Well... it wasn’t me, Mr. Yeast. It’s someone else who cured Old Madam.’

The Guardian’s Sword By Talking Cigarette Chapter 687

Chapter 687

Dr. Sutherland shook his head. Sean told him to keep it a secret.

However, Talia and the rest witnessed Sean curing Old Madam Yeast.

Dr. Sutherland could not take credit for it even if he wanted to.

“Oh? Who is it?”

Jason froze slightly and turned his head to look at the specialists.

Talia went up to Jason before looking at Dr. Sutherland.

“Brother, that man seems to have the last name Lennon.

“He is Dr. Sutherland’s friend. Dr. Sutherland brought him.

“But he left after curing our mom without asking for any money.”

Jason nodded and asked as he looked at Dr. Sutherland.

“Dr. Sutherland, who is Mr. Lennon?”

Dr. Sutherland shook his head.

“I don’t know.”

“Isn’t he your friend? How could you not know?”

Talia panicked. She wanted to thank Sean and also apologize to him.

“I knew by chance that he’s skilled in medicine.

“But I don’t know who he is. I don’t even know anything else about him.”

Dr. Sutherland shook his head and said with a stern expression.

The crowd looked at each other, speechless.

Was this Mr. Lennon an anonymous do-gooder?

“Don’t you have his number?”

“Call him and tell him my brother wants to see him.”

Talia thought for a moment before speaking to Dr. Sutherland.

“Well...”

Dr. Sutherland froze. He could not explain it.

After all, he did call Sean over.

Jason frowned slightly and glanced at Dr. Sutherland with a flicker of doubt in his eyes before showing a meaningful expression.

However, Jason said nothing but waited for Dr. Sutherland’s answer.

“Okay, I’ll call Mr. Lennon.”

Dr. Sutherland nodded before walking out the door, holding his phone.

However, he soon walked back

“I can’t get through to him.”

Dr. Sutherland was obviously lying, so his face was flushed.

Jason saw this and nodded thoughtfully again.

It seemed Mr. Lennon did not want to talk to people!

“Then give me his phone number, and I’ll contact him later.”

Talia thought for a moment before taking out her phone.

“Ms. Yeast, don’t put me in a spot.

“Mr. Lennon would be upset if I did that.”

Dr. Sutherland gritted his teeth slightly and shook his head in resignation.

Speechless, Talia pointed at Dr. Sutherland.

“You! How could you be so inflexible?”

“That’s enough! Let’s go out and talk.”

Jason glanced at Old Madam Yeast, who was resting on the hospital bed before leading everyone out of the ward.

“Brother, look up this Mr. Lennon.

“He must have a reputation in River City for having such good medical skills.

“This is our mom’s savior. We must thank him in person.

“And I was... rude when I spoke to him. I wanted to apologize to him in person.”

Talia ended her speech with a slight blush.

However, Jason shook his head.

He was not going to do that.

“How’s your mom, Mr. Yeast?”

Just then, another group of people came down the corridor.

Jon led the way, followed by several bodyguards in black, who also looked in a hurry.

Jason frowned slightly when he saw Jon.

It was inappropriate for him to have too much contact with Jon.

However, come to think of it, the Zimmer family was related to their family, so they could not keep them from visiting Old Madam Yeast.

"She's alright now."

Jason waved his hand slightly and was lukewarm toward Jon.

"That's great! That's great!"

"I came over as soon as I heard about it.

"I was thinking of getting Old Madam a specialist."

Jon let out a breath, not forgetting to get on Jason's good side.

"Mr. Zimmer, thank you."

Jason nodded slightly, trying to be polite.

He was actually upset.

Jason's hometown was not here, and his family did not live in River City previously.

However, Jason was assigned to River City's army, and Jon happened to be here.

Therefore, Jason was brought here in the name of relatives helping each other.

While Jason was away, Jon took care of his family.

It was why Jason helped the Zimmer family.

It was kind of a quid pro quo.

However, Jon often neglected to check up on Old Madam Yeast, which upset him.

Old Madam was old and could get sick easily. In a way, Jon had failed her.

However, it was a little too shameless that he only came over after Old Madam had already been in the hospital for so long.

Jon could also see that Jason was upset and immediately apologized with an obsequious smile.

"That's enough.

"Luckily, my mother was able to get cured."

Jason waved his hand slightly, not wanting to hear Jon speak.

"Someone?"

Jon followed up on Jason's question.

Talia thought for a moment before immediately looking at Jon and asking.

"By the way, Mr. Zimmer, you're from River City, so you should know that person.

"There's a miracle doctor surnamed Lennon in River City with extraordinary medical skills. Do you know him?"

"A miracle doctor?"

Jon paused at that.

He did hear about a Miracle Doctor Lennon these days.

However, he did not pay much attention to it, even thinking they were brainwashed.

Judging from Jason's statement now, Miracle Doctor Lennon cured Old Madam Yeast?

"Yes, a miracle doctor, and he's young."

Talia nodded and looked at Jon expectantly.

Jon touched his forehead and suddenly recalled something.

Quill had told him that Sean had become friends with Larson Pharmaceuticals because Sean had cured Old Master Larson.

Sean had medical skills, the last name Lennon, and was as young as Talia had said.

“Could it be him?”

Jon mumbled in shock.

“Who is it?”

Jason asked as he looked up quickly.

The Guardian’s Sword By Talking Cigarette Chapter 688

Chapter 688

Talia and the rest also looked at Jon.

Jon froze instantly, and many ideas flickered in his mind.

What if it was Sean?

Jon knew perfectly well how filial Jason was.

If Sean just saved his mother, Jason would consider Sean as his savior

In that case, Sean would have gotten Jason on his side.

“Speak!”

Jason immediately frowned at Jon’s silence.

“Mr. Yeast, I did hear some rumors about a miracle doctor in River City

“But I haven’t had any contact with that man either. I’ll ask around for you when I get back.”

Jon immediately nodded and said after recomposing himself

“Oh...”

Talia shook her head slightly.

Jason stared at Jon for a few seconds and only slowly withdrew his gaze from Jon when he became uncomfortable.

“There’s no need to ask around.”

Jon felt his heart sink when Jason said this.

Did Jason already know who he was?

“It’s fine, Mr. Yeast. You don’t have to do anything. I’ll have someone look into it.”

Jon quickly waved his hand and said obsequiously.

“I said there’s no need to ask around.”

Jason stared at Jon and frowned slightly.

“Yes!”

Jon immediately nodded, not daring to say another word.

“Brother, come here.”

Talia glanced at Dr. Sutherland and headed off into the distance.

After they had walked a long distance and made sure that no one could hear them, they slowly stopped.

“Brother, why do I get the feeling that Dr. Sutherland is trying to hide something from us?

‘He must know something about Mr. Lennon.’

Talia lowered her voice. She sounded confident.

“Yes.”

Jason slightly nodded too.

He could see what Talia could see too.

“So let’s look into it ourselves, Brother.

“I just checked. There are surveillance cameras in this hospital.

“If you get someone to deliver us a copy of the surveillance footage, you’ll find Miracle Doctor

Lennon in no time.’

Talia wanted to bypass Dr. Sutherland and ask Jason to find Sean with his connections

However, Jason shook his head again after hearing what Talia said.

“Brother, you’re too inflexible. With your identity, say one word, and they’ll help you out

“You’ll have no trouble finding anyone in River City”

Talia thought Jason did not want to use his privileges, so she was upset

“Talia, why do you think Dr. Sutherland hid it from us?”

Jason patted Talia on the shoulder to calm her down.

“Why?”

“Well... Did Mr. Lennon put him up to it?”

Talia thought about it. The more she thought about it, the more it was likely.

“Does he not want us to find out who he is?”

“Why? Or is he hiding from you because he knows who are?

you

“Brother, you don’t think this guy’s some fugitive, do you? Is that why he’s afraid to talk to people in the army?”

The idea flashed through Talia’s mind.

Jason frowned slightly as he glanced at Talia.

“Whoever he is.

“Since he made such arrangements, it means he doesn’t want us to know who he is.

“We have to respect his opinion. He is our mom’s savior after all.”

Jason was silent for two seconds before speaking in a serious tone.

It was what Jason decided. Since Mr. Lennon did not want to make contact with them, he had to respect him and not push him.

“But Brother, don’t you have a duty to catch him if he’s a fugitive or something?”

Jason fell silent again as soon as Talia said this.

Although soldiers’ duty was not to catch criminals, they were also obliged to help them solve some cases.

Therefore, Talia was not wrong.

However, Jason shook his head after all.

“Even if he’s a fugitive...

“Well, I’ll pretend I don’t know.

“Whether he gets caught is the government’s problem.”

Jason frowned and said what was on his mind.

Talia looked at Jason in surprise. She did not expect Jason to practice favoritism.

“Brother, you’re doing your superiors wrong by doing that.”

Talia bit her red lip slightly as she said that.

“But I can’t have our mom’s savior arrested and put in prison, can I?”

Jason looked up, widened her eyes at Talia, and let out a low growl.

To a dutiful son like him, saving his mother's life was a huge gesture.

There was no way he would arrest his family's savior and send him to prison.

"I see."

Talia quickly lowered her head when she saw that Jason was upset.

"Let's leave the matter at that.

"There must be a reason why he doesn't want to see us.

"Let's talk about it later."

Jason waved his hand before shouting to Dr. Sutherland.

Watching Dr. Sutherland walk toward Jason, Jon was uneasy.

He was genuinely afraid that Sean was the one to cure Old Madam Yeast.

If that were true, Sean would have a big backer from now on.

There was no way they could lay a hand on Sean again.

The Guardian's Sword By Talking Cigarette Chapter 689

Chapter 689

"Mr. Yeast."

Dr. Sutherland walked up to Jason and greeted him softly.

“Dr. Sutherland, you don’t have to be nervous.

“I called you here to help me thank Mr. Lennon.

“If Mr. Lennon ever encounters any problem, contact my sister. I’ll do my best to help!”

Jason said earnestly to Dr. Sutherland.

“Okay, got it.”

Dr. Sutherland nodded gently. He had no idea how much commitment he was getting from Jason.

“By the way, Mr. Yeast...”

Dr. Sutherland hesitated to tell them about Old Madam Yeast’s illness.

Sean said Old Madam Yeast’s illness had not been fully cured. She needed another treatment.

However, they had to wait until the onset of symptoms before she could be cured.

However, Dr. Sutherland found it inappropriate as the words got to the tip of his tongue.

Jason and his sister would be worried and unable to proceed with their lives if they told them.

Sean was going to help anyway, so it was best not to tell them for now.

“What’s the matter?”

Jason looked at Dr. Sutherland in confusion.

“Mr. Yeast, Mr. Lennon said you’ll meet again.”

Dr. Sutherland weighed his words and spoke.

“Really?”

Jason could not help freezing a little.

However, he quickly came to his senses and nodded lightly.

It was not long before Old Madam Yeast woke

1. up.

However, she fell asleep again after a few minutes.

Several specialists examined her and told Jason it was normal.

Jason and his sister were finally relieved.

“Talía, take good care of Mom.

“Call me if you need anything.

“I have to go.”

Jason checked the time and spoke through gritted teeth.

“Okay!”

Talía was a little reluctant, but she still nodded sensibly.

“Come here.”

Jason glanced at Jon before leaving.

Jon followed obediently without hesitation.

“Mr. Yeast, don’t worry.

“I’ll take good care of them.

“It’s because the nanny I hired didn’t get the message to me in time this time.

“So I came a little late.”

Jon followed Jason and mentioned it himself.

He was uneasy.

The more Jason said nothing, the more unsure he became.

“Yeah, thank you for your effort.”

Jason looked calm and did not seem to blame Jon.

After all, outsiders were not obligated to help him take care of his mother.

“So, is everything okay in River City these days?”

Jason asked casually before stepping into the car.

“Mr. Yeast, speaking of which, something did happen.

“There’s a new company in River City called Reach For Will.

“It’s rich, bold, and brazen. It’s vaguely trying to become the head of River City’s business world.

"A lot of companies are upset with them. And for some reason, they kept picking on the Zimmer family."

Jon weighed his words and reported to Jason what had happened recently as simply as possible.

"They're picking on the Zimmer family?"

Jason frowned slightly.

"Yes! They've been picking on us."

Jon nodded without asking Jason directly for help.

It was because he knew that he did not have to say much when talking to big shots like Jason.

He would set the record straight, and it was up to Jason to help and decide how to help.

"I see."

Jason nodded and stepped into the car.

"Mr. Yeast, take care."

Jon nodded and saw him off, feeling happy.

Jason did not reject right away. That meant he was going to help.

With Jason's identity, any word from him was enough to trouble Reach For Will Group.

"Haha, Reach For Will Group. Just wait and see!"

"Do you think that the Zimmer family is as easy as the Quinn family?"

Jon sneered and prepared to get into the car to leave.

He would have someone else look after Old Madamn Yeast. He got a lot on his plate, so he would not stay around.

As soon as Jon got into the car, the phone in his bag rang.

"Mr. Zimmer, we've looked into it.

"Sean is indeed related to Reach For Will Group.

"Sean was also the interviewer for the interview you mentioned."

The

person on the other end of the line reported as soon as the line connected.

"What?

"It's true?"

Jon clenched the steering wheel, his brow furrowed.

'Sean's involved with Reach For Will Group?'

After leaving the Quinn family, Sean had no background in River City.

How did he get involved with Reach For Will Group?

"Even if he knows Homer, who was Homer to talk to Reach For Will Group?"

The more Jon thought about it, the less he understood it.

Larson Pharmaceuticals was well known in River City.

However, they were nothing against the behemoth—Reach For Will Group.

Therefore, there was no way Homer introduced Sean to Reach For Will Group.

“Mr. Zimmer, I don’t think it’s a big deal that Sean works for Reach For Will Group. “My friend’s aunt is also a cleaner there.”

The young man on the other side of the line continued to speak.

The Guardian’s Sword By Talking Cigarette Chapter 690

Chapter 690

“I see.

“Let’s leave this one at that.”

Jon put his phone down with a sneer flickering in his eyes.

Jason was going to help them take on Reach For Will Group.

Sean only worked for Reach For Will Group. So what if he knew the owner of Reach For Will Group?

No one could resist Jason.

7 p.m.

Willow left the office and headed to Old Madam Quinn’s residence after finishing work

Simon and Faye came to tell Willow that Old Madam Quinn needed her.

Willow dared not disobey.

Willow soon arrived.

Old Madam Quinn was already waiting at home.

To Willow's surprise, Samuel and the rest were not around today.

Willow was relieved.

It was because they would always gang up on Willow whenever they were around.

Willow was relieved that they were not around.

"Grandma, you wanted to see me?"

Willow greeted Old Madam Quinn as soon as she entered.

"Willow, you're here. Have a seat."

Old Madam Quinn waved her hand, and the maid immediately offered Willow a cup of tea.

Willow took it politely and sat down in a chair.

"Are there any further problems in the company?"

Old Madam Quinn asked as she smiled at Willow.

"No.

"Grandma, Mr. Clarke kept his word. They've stopped targeting our company."

Willow shook her head and truthfully reported the situation of Quinn Corporation.

“Good’ Nice.

“They must know about the Quinn family’s background.

“So they won’t push us too hard even if you don’t talk to them.

“They just played along when you happened to see them.”

Old Madam Quinn said casually as she picked up the teacup.

“Grandma...”

Willow frowned slightly at that. Old Madam Quinn was denying Willow’s efforts!

She did not care about the credit, but what she did care about was that she could have more say in the Quinn family with it.

“Stop. I know what I’m doing.”

Old Madam Quinn waved her hand slightly and interrupted Willow.

“Alright.”

Willow had always been obedient to her alders, so she could only nod in resignation.

“By the way, I heard Sean has some contact with Reach For Will Group?”

Old Madam Quinn took a sip from the teacup and asked seemingly intentionally.

“It seems he does.”

Willow thought for a moment before nodding

Sean was sitting in Harry's office when she went to talk to Harry.

Willow had no idea what Sean and Harry said to each other.

However, it was true that they had contact with each other.

"Why are they in touch with each other?"

"Businessmen value profits above all else. And Reach For Will Group won't engage in meaningless social networking.

"Sean has no background or identity in River City. There's no way he could be friends with Reach For Will Group, could he?"

Old Madam Quinn spoke tactfully.

What she really wanted to convey was that Sean's identity was not good enough to be in touch with Reach For Will Group.

"Grandma, I don't know. I haven't talked to Sean."

Willow shook her head and whispered back.

"Good! It's best that you have no contact with him.

"Now that he no longer has anything to do with the Quinn family, we'll stop talking about him.

"Whether he's doing well has nothing to do with the Quinn family. I asked you here today to talk about you."

Old Madam Quinn put down the teacup and looked earnestly at Willow.

"Me?"

"Grandma, what about... me?"

Willow froze and put down her teacup

"A man should get married on coming of age, and so should a woman You are old enough to get married.

"Sean put you off, and now that you have nothing to do with him, it can't wait any longer.

Old Madam Quinn said what she wanted without beating around the bush

"Grandma, I have no intention of doing that for the time being, so..."

Willow was about to refuse when Old Madam Quinn stopped her.

"I know what you think.

"But you ought to marry when you are old enough.

"You won't have many suitors when you are in your thirties.

"Do you want me to die with regret?"

Old Madam Quinn frowned slightly with some sternness in her voice

"Grandmother, nonsense. You're healthy."

Willow answered quietly with some resignation.

"You ought to be married whether I'm healthy

"Most importantly, you know that the Quinn family's issue is still unresolved even though Reach For Will Group stopped targeting the Quinn family.

“Simon is the only legitimate descendant among the three generations of the Quinn family

“I do value him, but I also know that Simon isn’t business material, and the Quinn family will fall even further with him.

“The Quinn family needs a boost and some fresh blood.

“So I’ve decided to find you and Faye a well–matched husband to help the Quinn family.

“Otherwise, the Quinn family will soon drop to the bottom and ruin the Quinn family’s reputation.”

Old Madam Quinn heaved a long sigh and said what had been on her mind.

“Grandma, didn’t you say you’ll stop forcing me to be with Quill?”

Willow was torn, but she retorted.

“I won’t force you, of course.

“So this time I’ll put out word that the Quinn Family are looking for a husband, a bridegroom for you and Faye.

“Why don’t you have your pick of River City’s young talents who came?

“As long as they’re an appropriate match and could help the Quinn family, I won’t stand in the way.”

Willow’s eyes shot wide when she said that.

It turned out Old Madam Quinn wanted to talk to her about it.

“Grandma, that’s the ancient way of finding husbands.

“Young people find theirs on their own nowadays.”

Willow only thought Old Madam Quinn was a little ridiculous.

“What about people you know?”

Old Madam Quinn rendered Willow speechless with one sentence.

“Alright, I’m not negotiating with you.

“It must be done my way.

“Tomorrow, I will put the word out, and it will be done as soon as possible.”

Old Madam Quinn waved her hand, her tone dominant. 1
