

Impulsive Vow to an Enigmatic Husband (Cornelia Stewart) Chapter 781

Chapter 781

Marcus was still sporting his usual white shirt and black trousers. He stood tall and elegant next to the car, his gaze falling on Cornelia who was running towards him. His eyes were full of intense affection behind his silver-rimmed glasses.

Seeing him up ahead, Cornelia felt a bit shy and slowed down her pace, walking towards him, "Why did you ask me to come out?"

It was hot out and she had been running, her cheeks were flushed and it made her look incredibly adorable..

Marcus chuckled and ruffled her hair, "Get in the car first, I'll take you somewhere."

"Where?" As Marcus reached out to hold her hand, Cornelia not only didn't extend her hand, but also instinctively hid it behind her, "It's too hot, my hands get sweaty."

Marcus understood her excuse to avoid holding hands, but he didn't call her out on it. He opened the passenger door for her and let her get into the car first. Afterward, he got into the driver's seat and slowly drove out of the villa.

About ten minutes passed without a word from Cornelia. Marcus glanced at her and noticed her sitting silently in the passenger seat, "Why aren't you talking?"

Cornelia said, "I'm thinking"

Marcus asked, "About what?"

Cornelia said, "I'm wondering where you're taking me."

Marcus said, "You could have just asked me directly"

Cornelia said, "I did ask, but you didn't answer."

Marcus said, "We'll be there soon. You'll know when we get there."

Cornelia said, "Oh."

*Marcus said, "Do you remember what I said to you last night before you went to the hospital to see Granny?

Of course, Cornelia remembered. It was impossible for her to forget. It was one of the few times a guy had confessed his feelings to her. She couldn't forget it even if she wanted to. But she didn't know how to face this issue now, so she played dumb, "What did you say last night? I was sleepy. Might have forgotten right after"

Before Marcus could respond, Cornelia quickly changed the subject, "I didn't see you when I woke up today. Granny said you went out to handle some business. What were you up to?"

But Marcus didn't follow her lead, "I told you last night that I think I like you. You haven't responded to me yet."

Cornelia didn't know how to answer. This guy was really annoying. She had been trying so hard to change the subject, couldn't he take a hint? Why did he keep bringing it up?

Did he get a kick out of making her feel awkward?

Marcus said, "Cornelia, avoidance won't solve anything!"

Cornelia decided to turn the tables and take control of the conversation, "Yeah, avoidance won't solve anything. I asked you what you were up to, why didn't you answer me?"

Marcus said, "I was looking into someone"

Marcus had always been observant. When he mentioned Clair last night, Granny Rebecca seemed overly anxious. So, he decided to dig deeper into Clair. If his hunch was right, this Clair definitely had something to do with Cornelia.

"Who are you looking for? Did you find them?" Cornelia asked.

Marcus had intended to keep it from her, but Cornelia was a smart girl, she would find out sooner or later, "It's Clair,"

Chapter 782

Hearing that he had been helping her again, Cornelia felt a warmth in her heart, "Thanks for the help! But I have my own way of dealing with Clair, you don't have to get involved"

Marcus asked, "How do you plan to deal with her?"

Jokingly, Cornelia said, "I can't beat her up, nor can I pull her hair. So I can only fight fire with fire, use the public opinion against her Clair is Granger's wife, and everyone in Riverton knows, and I'm just an assistant. If we talk about reputation, she definitely has more to lose than me. If she, as the lady of the Reese family, isn't afraid of getting embarrassed, what's there for me to be afraid of!"

After grandma's incident, Cornelia had planned to take Ayden straight to the Reese family for a showdown. If it hadn't been for seeing Marcus spending a lot of money to clean up the mess for her, she would have gone all in.

In the end, she didn't go. But that didn't mean she wouldn't hold Clair accountable. She could also manipulate the public opinion.

Marcus wasn't surprised that Cornelia would use public opinion. He believed that Cornelia had the ability to destroy Clair's reputation. But he had to stop her, as he didn't want her to regret it in the future, "Cornelia, can you promise me something?"

Cornelia said. Tell me, if I can do it, I'll definitely agree."

Marcus said, "Leave Clair to me. Don't touch her for now."

Cornelia asked, "Why?"

Marcus paused slightly, then said, "She's still useful."

Cornelia said, "Alright. Since she's still useful to you, I'll let her run wild in Riverton for a few more days."

Marcus said. "Thank you!"

Cornelia said, "We're husband and wife, no need to be so polite."

Marcus asked, "So, have you answered my question?"

Oh!

They had been chatting about other topics for so long, and she thought he had forgotten about that question. Why did he still remember?

Cornelia, with her face flushed, said, "Have you had lunch yet? What did you eat? I bet you have no idea how much I ate at lunch. Both grandmas and Patricia, all three of them kept piling food onto my plate, as if they were afraid I wouldn't get full."

To avoid the question, Cornelia kept talking, not giving Marcus a chance to interrupt. After a while, when she stopped talking, Marcus said, "If you don't want to answer my question, it's okay, I can wait."

Cornelia hesitated for a moment, and decided to tell him her worries, "It's not that I don't want to answer you. I'm not sure if I like you. Think about it, you were my boss for a year, and then just my husband for a few days. I haven't adjusted to your role change, how can I know if I like you?"

Marcus said, "Alright, take your time to think about it."

Looking at him, Cornelia suddenly said, "Let's have a baby."

Before, Cornelia always put her career first, planning to wait a few years before having children. But after grandma's severe illness, she knew that she could wait, but grandma might not be able to. She hoped to fulfill all of grandma's wishes while she was still around.

Marcus turned his head to look at her, his expression serious, "You're not even sure if you like me, but you want to have a child with me?"

Cornelia replied, "We're husband and wife. Our union isn't because of love. Marriage is about having children, and it's not wrong for me to want a child. What Cornelia said was exactly what Marcus used to think. In the past, he never fel t anything wrong with this idea, even considered his thoughts mature and rational. But now he realized how absurd and irresponsible this idea was.

He thought admitting that she was his wife was being responsible for her, but in fact, he was just treating her as a tool for childbirth.

He absolutely didn't want to see her as a tool for having children. He firmly believed that if they were to have a child, they must both like each other, then could they bear the fruit of love.

Chapter 783

Marcus stated sternly, "I'm not planning on having kids right now"

If he didn't want kids, then fine. But why did he have to say it so harshly?

"If you don't want kids, then forget it. I can't force you to have one with me." Cornelia felt a bit upset, then she suddenly remembered a crucial factor she had overlooked.

Marcus couldn't have kids! How could she demand him to have one with her?

She felt like a complete idiot for nearly hurting his pride.

Marcus continued driving, focused as ever. Cornelia sneaked a peek at him, his face was unchanging, but she felt an intense oppressive feeling.

He was definitely pissed! She was sure Marcus was mad!

She regretted her words, knowing he couldn't have kids yet suggesting they have one together. He'd be a saint not to be angry.

After some thought, Cornelia decided to cheer him up. "Marcus, if you don't want kids, then we won't. It's no big deal, kid or not, doesn't matter.

Her voice was soft, sweet, and utterly enchanting, unlike her work voice. Marcus was almost swayed by her voice. Luckily, he had good self-control.

Without any response from him, Cornelia moved closer, ‘Forget what I said earlier. I’ll respect your decisions, I won’t force you into anything.’

Could she even force him? Was she overestimating herself? Marcus was almost amused by her, though his expression remained cold.

Cornelia was a bit annoyed; if he was going to ignore her, she’d ignore him. She turned to look out the window. Through the window, she could vaguely see his profile. His profile was truly perfect, flawless from every angle. Even now, it felt like a dream, unable to believe her boss was now her husband.

About half an hour later, Marcus pulled into an underground parking lot of a fancy leisure club.

One of the most expensive places in Riverton, a night’s spending starting from hundreds of thousands.

Previously, Cornelia accompanied Marcus for a business deal, and they were invited here after the deal was made. She had been here once with him.

The drinks here tasted no different from elsewhere, but the prices were absurdly high, and the cheaper ones were barely sold. It was as if everyone came here to spend money.

Even though she was now a millionaire, she still believed money shouldn’t be spent recklessly but on necessary things, “President Hartley, if you want a date, let’s switch places. It’s too expensive here, I don’t think we need to waste money like this.”

Marcus still ignored her, parked the car, and headed straight for the elevator. Cornelia had no choice but to follow him.

The elevator ascended all the way to the twenty-ninth floor. As they stepped out, a waiter immediately came over to guide them, “Mr. Hartley, Mrs. Hartley, this way please!”

Cornelia carefully took two steps ahead, lightly grasping Marcus’s sleeve, “President Hartley, how did he know I’m your wife?”

Chapter 784

Marcus furrowed his brow, his gaze falling on her soft hand clutching the hem of his shirt, his heart instantly softened, "Do you enjoy being called Mrs. Hartley?"

Cornelia answered. "I'd rather be called Mrs. Artis!"

Technically speaking, the name of her spouse on her marriage certificate was Jeremy, not Marcus. She should rightfully be called Mrs. Artis.

Marcus was speechless. This girl always had a way of stabbing his heart with a single sentence.

They walked down the long hallway, getting closer and closer to room 8888.

The door to room 8888 was wide open, and Cornelia could hear the conversation inside before she saw anyone.

Hannah said, "President Hartley's love for his wife is legendary. But as his friends, we've yet to meet her."

Rosie chimed in, "I was kinda hoping he and Cornelia were an item before. Marcus is handsome and Cornelia is beautiful. They look like a perfect match, but they're not together."

Hannah said, "Stop that. They should be arriving soon. If Mrs. Hartley hears this, Cornelia's in for a rough ride."

Rosie said, "It's just wishful thinking on my part, I sincerely wish President Hartley and his wife a lifetime of happiness."

Lucas took over, "Honey, do you really think Marc and his assistant look like a couple?"

Rosie said, "I can't talk about this anymore. If anyone hears, Cornelia might lose her job. Cornelia's such a darling, I'd feel guilty for a lifetime if I caused her to lose her job."

Lucas said, "Marc isn't here yet. The waiter would let us know when he arrives. Feel free to speak your mind."

asked, "You really want to know? When did you start taking such an interest in others' affairs?"

Lucas said, "I'm not interested in others' affairs, I'm only interested in Marc's."

Rosie said, "If you really want to know, I'll tell you. I don't know if it's just my imagination, but I think President Hartley has a thing for Cornelia. The way he looks at her is different from how he looks at us. A few times, I caught President Hartley stealing glances at Cornelia when she wasn't paying attention. His gaze was so smitten and adoring, as though he wanted to devour her. I don't know what his wife thinks, but if Lucas, you ever looked at another woman like that, I wouldn't stand for it."

Hearing this, Cornelia outside the door quietly looked up at Marcus, "Did you really used to sneak peeks at me?"

Marcus answered, "Yeah."

His answer was straightforward, without a hint of evasion, leaving Cornelia at a loss for words.

Marcus added, "That wasn't until I knew you were my wife."

Cornelia asked. "But you denied it when I asked if you liked me."

Marcus said, "Just listen to what they're saying"

Inside the room, Steven took over, "Lucas, your wife has a keen eye."

Lucas said, "Rosie's always been smart."

Zavier, quietly sipping his drink, let out a cold laugh, "I've already said I wouldn't come tonight, but you insisted, and now you're praising their marriage. How boring."

Steven said, "We couldn't have our gathering without you."

Zavier said, "You're all paired up. Have you ever considered my feelings?"

Steven said, "Isn't your family looking for a spouse for you? All young and beautiful ladies from reputable families. None of them are lesser than Skyler, but you're not into any of them?"

Zavier said, "As long as that marriage is still valid, I'm a married man. I don't want to be accused of bigamy"

Steven said, "I didn't realize your feelings for Skyler were so deep."

Zavier said, "Go fuck yourself!"

Chapter 785

Steven asked, "So you're saying Marc's hidden your wife somewhere? You've searched high and low and haven't even found a trace of her?"

Mentioning this topic made Zavier's blood boil He was so pissed off, he could've torn Marc to shreds, "So why the hell did you guys invite me to tonight's dinner?"

Steven explained, "We've been buddies for years. When we got married, we all formally introduced our wives to each other. Marc's bringing his wife tonight to officially introduce her to us. It's a big deal. We couldn't do it without you."

Lucas chimed in, "Yeah, it wouldn't be the same without you."

Zavier scoffed, "We've all met her. There's no need for a formal introduction. He's just showing off, deliberately trying to make me upset"

Steven said, "We get how you're feeling, but Hannah and Rosie haven't met her yet, so the introduction has to be done."

Rosie asked, "You guys have all met Marcus' wife? What does she look like? Is she as beautiful as Cornelia? But no matter what she looks like or if she's as beautiful as Cornelia, I should wish them happiness and a long, loving marriage.”

“Thanks for your blessing!” A deep, pleasant voice came from the doorway. Everyone turned to see Marcus, tall and upright, standing there. There was no strange woman by his side, only his assistant, Cornelia.

Zavier continued to drink, ignoring Marcus and his wife completely.

“Marc, you’re finally here!” Steven greeted him with a smile, “You’re the man of the hour, and you’re late. That’s not cool.”

“Cornelia, it’s so good to see you today Hannah and Rosie immediately rushed over to Cornelia, hugging her tightly, “We’re so thrilled.”

They’d come to Riverton today to meet Marcus’ wife. This was a private gathering of friends. Marcus brought his wife, so they didn’t expect to see Cornelia as well. Her appearance was a total surprise. Hannah and Rosie were absolutely elated.

Especially Hannah, who hugged Cornelia tightly, “Cornelia, you know what? I was just thinking, after I’ve done the rounds, I’ll text you to grab a late-night snack. And here you are! Is it because God heard my inner prayers and brought the lovely you to me?”

“Must be, that’s why God sent lovely me to your lovely self.” Cornelia was also happy to see them, I’ve missed you guys. Last time we met in Woodpine, we didn’t get the chance to chat properly”

Hannah said, “I’ve finished filming my drama, and I’m not planning to pick up any new scripts soon. I’ve got plenty of time to chat.”

Rosie said, “I don’t have anything particular to be busy with lately either. Why don’t we stay in Riverton for a few more days and let Cornelia show us around?”

Cornelia happily agreed, “Sounds great!”

Steven walked over and pulled Hannah away from Cornelia’s arms, “Honey, you should be hugging me, not Cornelia.”

Hannah glared at Steven as he pulled her away, "Steven, are you going to forbid me from talking to my girlfriends now?"

I'm your husband, how can you call me Steven? It's so distant." Steven said, then bent down to kiss her. Hannah instinctively tried to dodge, but Steven had already anticipated her move.

He held her slim waist with one hand, cradled her head with the other, and completely ignoring the others around. He quickly kissed her lips, demanding passionately for her to respond to his kiss.

Chapter 786

Hannah

stomped on Steven's foot in fury, putting all her weight into it. The top of the foot was a tender spot, so it should've hurt like hell. But Steven didn't even flinch, keeping his imposing presence all over her senses.

Lucas cracked a joke with a grin, "Steven, what's the rush, man? There's a room right over there. You guys wanna take this to the next level?"

It was just a joke, but it was like nails on a chalkboard to Hannah. In her mind, she was nothing more than a plaything for Steven in front of his buddies, something they could trample on without a second thought.

Hot tears welled up in Hannah's eyes and slid down her cheeks. Steven, who was forcing a kiss on her, noticed and immediately let go, "What's up?"

Hannah didn't want him to see her crying, so she buried her face into his chest, wiping her tears on his shirt.

When she lifted her head again, her eyes were filled with smiles, "President Dixon, can we wrap this up now? If it's okay, I'd like to have a word with President Hartley"

Steven squinted at her, puzzled.

Hannah simply ignored him and turned to Marcus, "President Hartley, you should spend more time with your wife. Can you give Cornelia a few days off, so she can hang out and have some fun with us?"

7 disagree." Steven retorted immediately

"Sure." Marcus replied.

Thanks, President Hartley!" Hannah beamed.

Rosie peered out the door. "Where's your wife? Today is a gathering for you and your spouse, yet you've dragged Cornelia along, not giving her any personal time. That's a bit much, don't you think?"

Marcus reached out and took Cornelias hand, "Ladies and gentlemen, let me formally introduce to you my beautiful wife—Cornelia!"

*Steven and Lucas had known Cornelia's identity all along, but they still put on a surprised act, "Whoa, Marc! Cornelia is your wife?

"You guys are terrible actors." Marcus retorted.

Steven dropped his fake surprised expression and reached out to shake hands with Cornelia, "Mrs. Hartley, nice to meet you!"

"President Dixon, nice to meet you too!" Cornelia replied.

"Mrs. Hartley, pleasure's all mine. Looking forward to working with you" Lucas chimed in.

"Likewise." Cornelia responded.

The guys in the room had known about Cornelia's identity, so when Marcus made the announcement, they weren't exactly startled. But it was a different - story for the two ladies present.

Hannah and Rosie were dumbstruck, their mouths hanging open, unable to process Marcus's words. After a moment, Hannah managed to find her voice, "President Hartley, what did you just say? Could you repeat that?"

Introducing his wife was something Marcus was proud of, so he repeated with joy, "My lovely wife, Cornelia!"

Chapter 787

Hannah was still in disbelief, "Cornelia, you're his wife?"

Marcus replied, "Yeah, Cornelia is my wife."

Hannah looked at Cornelia again, the two of them made a good pair, pretty easy on the eyes. But no matter how good they looked together, it didn't change the fact that.

Well, the people involved in a relationship knew best and outsiders had no place to butt in. Although Hannah was confused, she didn't voice it out. Rosie, always one to speak her mind, asked outright, Marcus, Cornelia, have you two split up with your previous partners?"

Marcus explained. "There was no previous partner. My wife has always been Cornelia!"

Rosie pressed on, "So no one got swapped out? What's going on exactly?"

Lucas, wrapping his arm around his wife, said, "Weren't you just saying that Marcus and Cornelia make a perfect couple and you hoped that Cornelia would be Marcus's wife? Now you're acting all shocked as if you can't accept it.",

Rosie responded, "It's not that I can't accept it. I'm just too shocked and I still don't understand what's really happening."

Steven suggested, This is a long story, let's all sit down and have dinner first, we can chat while we eat."

"You guys go ahead and sit, I have some things I want to discuss privately with Cornelia." Hannah felt that everyone else seemed to know about Marcus and Cornelia's situation and only she and Rosie were left in the dark

She had to ask Cornelia what was really going on.

Steven chuckled and said, "Honey, is there something you can't ask in front of me? You know, I'm a bit worried about Cornelia."

Cornelia replied bluntly. "Steven, as long as you treat Hannah well, she will stay and by you no matter what anyone says. Are you so worried about me being alone with her because you're not treating her well?"

Steven looked helplessly at Marcus, "Marcus, can you manage your wife?"

Marcus backed Cornelia without hesitation, "Did she say anything wrong?"

Cornelia gave Marcus a grateful look for always standing by her side and supporting her.

Steven complained, "You always listen to your wife! Are you even the Marcus I know?"

Lucas chimed in, "Steven, just let them talk. You're always clinging to your wife like a stalker, won't she get tired of you?"

Marcus said, "Let's go."

Steven had no response, and Lucas simply dragged Steven away.

Rosie commented, "Hannah, your husband really is clingy."

Hannah gave a slight laugh and didn't continue the topic. She turned to Cornelia, "Cornelia, can you explain to us what's going on with you and Marcus?"

Rosie interrupted, "Wait, I have something to say"

Cornelia said, "Alright, you go first."

Rosie said, "Before you guys arrived, I was telling everyone that I hoped you and Marcus were a thing. I knew Marcus was bringing his wife to meet us today and I had a bit of a hard time accepting it. I had no idea that you were actually his wife. Did I hit the nail on the head or what?"

Cornelia laughed and replied, "Yes, your prediction was spot on. You always seem to predict what's coming."

Chapter 788

Rosie said, "I gotta tell ya, you and President Hartley are a perfect match"

Cornelia said, Thanks!"

Hannah said, "Enough of that, let Cornelia tell us how she and her hubby got together"

Everyone was eager to know, and Cornelia didn't hold back, "My husband and I were set up by our grannies. We got married the first time we met."

Rosie said. "You're a real daredevil, marrying a guy you've just met."

Hannah said, "Rosie, hush. Let Cornelia keep going"

"Alright, I'll zip it." Rosie promptly shut her mouth.

Cornelia continued, "After we got the marriage certificate, he handed me a bank card, said he had stuff to do, and left. He didn't contact me after that, and I didn't really care. I just went on with my work, even forgot what he looked like. So, a year later, when I saw him at the company, he seemed familiar, but I couldn't place him. It wasn't until the other day when I was packing to move and found our long-lost marriage certificate that I realized Marcus was my hubby who disappeared right after the wedding"

It was mind-boggling, but it really happened.

Hannah poked Cornelia's forehead, "You can't remember his face, his name, but you remember you're married?"

Cornelia said, "He registered under the name Jeremy, not Marcus."

Hannah and Rosie asked in unison, "Did he use a different name because he was afraid you'd be after his money?"

Cornelia said,

"No, he's not like that. Because of some special reasons, he's been using two identities. He didn't mean to fool me. He wanted to see me as soon as he returned home, but our paths just didn't cross."

Hannah said, "Always defending him."

Cornelia smiled and said, "He's my husband, what can I do?"

Hannah said, "Your husband is a good man, he respects your decisions in all things. You should stand up for him. Cornelia, you're gonna be very happy."

Cornelia asked, "Isn't mutual respect in a marriage normal?"

Hannah said, "Not every man knows respect. You've found such a good man. Cherish him."

Rosie nodded furiously, "I second that, I totally agree with Hannah."

Cornelia asked, "Didn't Lucas respect you?"

"Respect? If he knew how to spell that word, I wouldn't be Rosie." When it came to respect, Rosie felt she had a say, "Do you guys think Lucas treats me well?"

Hannah nodded.

Cornelia nodded too, "From what we've seen, yes."

Rosie said, "See, you've been fooled by his act."

If it came to Lucas, Rosie could talk for days, "He seems gentle, nice to me, but he's actually very controlling. He treats me like his daughter. He dictates what I can and can't eat. I can only do things he deems nutritious. I only can do what he thinks is right. I complained to my parents, saying Lucas was too controlling. But they didn't take side with me, instead they defended him. They said he was doing it for my good, that if it were someone else, they wouldn't bother."

Chapter 789

Rosie let out a long sigh, saying with a helpless tone, "Everyone thinks Lucas is bossing me around for my own good, but no one really cares about how I feel or what I truly want."

Cornelia suggested, "If you don't want him control you, you could try having a serious chat with him I think communication is key in any relationship. Any issues should be addressed promptly, or it could cause problems"

Rosie shook her head, "It's no use I've tried talking to him countless times, telling him to stop meddling in my affairs. I want to take care of my own stuff. But he just laughs it off, thinking I'm throwing a tantrum"

Cornelia pondered for a moment, "Maybe you could try talking to your parents, let them handle Lucas. It might have a different effect!"

At the mention of her parents, Rosie shook her head even more, "My parents are the reason Lucas takes care of me."

Cornelia, intrigued, asked, "How so?"

Rosie continued, "Our families have known each other for generations. When I was still in my mother's belly, the elders of both families agreed that if I were a girl, I would be engaged to Lucas. When I was born and turned out to be a girl, the elders were over the moon and immediately arranged a marriage for us. So, even when I was still in my mother's belly, my life was tied to Lucas."

Cornelia said, "I've heard before that you two were engaged from a very young age and have known each other since birth. Didn't think it was actually true. I think it's a rather pure relationship, knowing each other inside and out, and not having to worry about deceit."

Rosie said, "I don't mind growing up together, what I don't like is Lucas treating me like a child. From the moment I was born, they told Lucas, who was only four at the time, that I was the one he would marry and he should treat me well. He's a responsible person, so he promised to take care of me and has been doing so ever since.

"I've been under his care since I was little, got married to him as soon as I was of age, even before I graduated from college. In their eyes, I'm just a spoiled little girl who lives a pampered life, clueless about the hardships of the world. Without Lucas, I wouldn't even survive, so they think it's right for him to control me.

"I've tried expressing my desire for freedom, for making my own decisions, but no one listens. I gradually stopped resisting and became the person they wanted me to be, not working, shopping with Lucas's credit card, buying anything I wanted without considering the price."

Cornelia said, "I'm not sure whether you're complaining or bragging. Your life is what I've been dreaming of."

Hannah chimed in, "Me too."

Rosie continued. That kind of life is easy, but it's also very empty, especially when Lucas is too busy with work to spend time with me."

Cornelia suggested, "Then you could make more friends. When Lucas is not around, you could go out to eat, have drinks with your friends, that might make your life more fulfilling."

Rosie retorted, "That won't work either. Lucas is very strict about my diet, I absolutely can't eat anything he doesn't allow. The other night, I was having dinner with him and his clients. The table was loaded with gourmet food, but I didn't have any appetite, so I hardly ate anything. After dinner, when he was seeing off his clients. I saw a snack stand nearby. The delicious smell made me hungry, so I went to buy some."

Chapter 790

“The snack I’d been craving was finally ready I paid for it and was just about to take a bite when Lucas showed up. Without a second thought, he snatched it out of my hands and tossed it into a nearby trash bin. He tossed my food, then had the nerve to ask why I’d eat something so unhygienic. He lectured me about how I knew better than to eat random food that could upset my stomach.

“Sure, I know street food might mess with my stomach and I have no idea if it’s clean or not, but I just wanted a taste. Can’t eat this or that, life’s a real drag without those little pleasures Mentioning this, Rosie was still fuming She should’ve stood up to him then, and showed him she was not someone to be pushed around. That way he wouldn’t dare to pull the same stunt again.

Suddenly, Hannah said, “Is Lucas trying to play daddy?”

Rosie was like, “What do you mean?”

Hannah replied. “He’s treating you like a kid. If he wants to be a dad so badly, why don’t you pop out a baby for him to take care of? Once he has a kid, he’ll shift his focus and stop pestering you”

Hearing this, Rosie’s eyes lit up. “Yeah, that’s a brilliant idea. Why didn’t I think of that? I need to have a daughter ASAP! Let him spend all his time fussing over her and leave me alone. Then, I’ll finally be free.”

When Rosie mentioned having a daughter, childless Cornelia was a bit envious, “Rosie, can I be your child’s godmother?”

Rosie replied, “Sure.”

Hannah chimed in, “I want to be the godmother too”

Rosie added, “You and President Dixon have been married for a while, and he is almost 30. I think you guys should consider having a kid too.”

Hannah once thought about having a child with Steven, hoping it could change their relationship. But she was too naïve. Steven never considered having a child with her. He once said that she could never be the one to bear his child, she was just a cheap substitute.

From that day on, she realized she was just a stand-in for him.

Thinking about it, Hannah hid her feelings behind a smile, “My job is a bit special.

I can’t even announce my marriage, let alone consider having a kid in the near future.”

Rosie said, “You’re a talented actress, not an idol. Your fans love your work, whether you’re married or not shouldn’t matter to them.”

Hannah replied, “You think they don’t care? Trust me, they care! My fans are always pushing me to film. No sooner have I finished one movie than they’re asking about the next one. If they found out I secretly got married and want to have a kid, I’d lose a ton of fans. Right now, there’s this idea online that fans want female actresses to stay away from men or they’ll be unhappy.

“Some time ago, a young actress who’d been acting since childhood started dating. Wasn’t it normal for a young person to date? She was not an idol, and she earned her living through her acting skills, but she was attacked online for months.”

Cornelia said, “These fans are too nosy about people’s private lives. They’re even more involved than the stars’ own mothers. They’re always chasing after celebrities, where do they get the money? Don’t they have their own lives to live?”
