

The Wolf's Bride Novel

Chapter 912

The underground river was very deep.

Andrius estimated it to be at least over twenty meters deep. There was no sight of the bottom. The surroundings were pitch black with no trace of light, making it impossible to see anything except some faint shadows.

Kate did not intentionally dive this deep. It just so happened that she discovered the fish at this depth.

Before long, she keenly spotted the fish in the water.

She immediately signaled Andrius, and both of them followed the school of fish, swimming toward the unknown distance.

The journey would be a long one.

The fish in the river swim leisurely, but they consistently headed toward the distance.

Around ten minutes later, Andrius' expression changed drastically. He saw a faint glimmer of light ahead!

Splash...

Kate was also excited, and her swimming speed increased significantly.

However, Andrius suddenly felt a severe sense of weakness. He became dizzy, his limbs were powerless, and he could not control his body anymore.

He was seriously injured, and his meridians were still damaged, preventing his inner energy from recovering naturally. What remained in his body was the inner energy that the family heads had given him.

Now, it was completely depleted.

Andrius immediately realized the danger, but in the deep water, calling for help was almost impossible.

Glug...

Gurgle...

The feeling of extreme oxygen deprivation made him lose control of his body. He kept exhaling bubbles, and water continued to flow into his stomach and lungs.

'Am I... going to die here?' Andrius could not help but mock himself. He did not die on the battlefield or at the hands of Norvin but underwater in such a helpless manner.

What a tragic humiliation.

Splash...

Fortunately, at the critical moment, Kate heard something unusual behind her. She immediately turned around and swam to Andrius as fast as she could.

Then, she kissed Andrius' open mouth.

Pure inner energy flowed into his body, and his eyes slowly regained some vitality.

Seeing him recovering, Kate blushed slightly and then let him go. She pointed toward the direction where the light was coming from.

Andrius nodded.

Then, they continued to swim forward.

Just like that, each time Andrius ran out of inner energy, Kate used the same method to transmit inner energy to him.

They arrived at a small opening.

Then, what they saw widened their eyes in astonishment. They had emerged from the underground river!

Since that other side was close to the magma layer, the water was still warm.

As they moved away from the magma layer, the river water became freezing, causing Andrius to shiver uncontrollably as he got soaked.

Seeing this, Kate immediately grabbed his hand and swam toward the surface.

There was a thick layer of ice on the water's surface.

Whoosh...

Without hesitation, Kate enveloped her fist with inner energy, delivering a powerful punch that shattered the ice. Then, the two of them surfaced.

“We finally made it!”

Andrius looked at the hole in the ice, his heart filled with lingering fear.

Whistle...

Before he could sigh, a chilling wind suddenly blew. The bone-piercing cold instantly made both of them shiver from head to toe. The climate on Mount Albus was harsh.

“Let’s start a fire and dry our clothes.”

Andrius already had goosebumps all over his body. He was terribly weak now.
