

Returning from the Dead: His Secret Lover Chapter 1254

Chapter 1254 Your Wife Is Pregnant

Sebastian was contemplative.

I can't accompany her though since I'm quite busy these days.

I've been running back and forth between the Aquene Temple and the Jadeson residence in hopes of locating the old man as soon as possible.

That being said, it should be fine to let her visit the kids first.

"Okay, you can go and see them first. Karl hasn't recovered yet though. Who do you want your driver be?"

"Uhh..."

Sasha was in a quandary.

Who should I choose?

It's very perilous to head outside alone since Eddie is still at liberty.

Hence, I need a stalwart driver by my side.

"How about me?" A deep voice was heard from outside the study room.

Sasha lifted her head up to gaze at the person who was coming into the room.

“You want to accompany me, Grandpa? But you...”

“What? Am I not allowed to?”

Seeing the reluctant look on Sasha’s face, Jonathan was peeved. He scowled before adding on, “Let me tell you something. I was leading an army when these two were still in their mothers’ tummy. Are you doubting my capabilities?”

“N-No, of course not...”

Sasha was stuttering.

That’s not what I meant.

I’m just worried that his old age would get the better of him during our excursion.

“Grandpa, that isn’t what I meant. I am merely...”

“Just let him tag along. I’ll find a few strong men to accompany you two,” Sebastian cut her off.

Sasha was speechless.

Gazing at her face, Jonathan let out a grin.

“See, even Sebastian is okay with me tagging along. I’ll go pack my things now. Tony, get the car ready for me. I need to head to Silvervale.

Sasha let out a joyous smile.

Vivi loves the desserts in Silvervale.

In the end, Jonathan went with Sasha on her excursion to Miralaea.

Upon hearing this news, Sabrina was overjoyed. She took out all the toys as well as clothes that she bought for her niece and nephew and handed them over to Sasha.

“Take these with you. The battleship figurines here are exclusive. Those two will definitely like them.”

“Okay. Let me thank you on their behalf.”

Sasha smiled brightly.

She sure does love her niece and nephew. Back when she was still in the Hayes Residence, She would always watch over them. Moreover, she also put Vivi under her aegis when she was at the Oceanic Estate.

Sabrina took out a strange looking box and gave it to Sasha.

“There’s more? What is it?”

“How could you not know what this is? It’s Vivian’s favorite thing, dolls. You dare call yourself a mother when you don’t even know what your daughter likes?”

Sabrina glared at Sasha with contempt.

Chagrined, Sasha lowered her head and accepted the box from Sabrina's hands.

When she opened the box, she saw several dolls that looked one of a kind. The dolls were exceptionally beautiful.

"Pretty, right? Let me tell you something. Vivi is already nine years old. A girl her age would want to play with these types of dolls. The dolls here are custom-made for her," Sabrina explained patiently.

I'm such a good aunt.

She put on a smug face.

Filled with gratitude, Sasha wanted to thank Sabrina once again. However, before she could, a pungent smell went into her nose and gave her the urge to puke.

Sasha quickly covered her mouth and ran outside.

Sabrina was baffled.

What?

Were the dolls that revolting?

The dolls are made of agarwood and are very clean.

Wait, could it be that she's...

The woman who was carrying a child raised her eyebrows and dashed outside.

A few minutes later, Sebastian's conversation with the people in the garden was interrupted by the same woman carrying a child.

"Good news, Sebastian! Your wife is pregnant with another baby!"

"What did you say?"

Sebastian was incredulous. Is that really true? Or has she just gone gonzo?

The woman continued on, "Your wife is pregnant! She puked in my room just now. I gave her a doll and she just puked. Why would a doll make her want to puke? She must be pregnant."